M'Arthur Says China Planned Korea Invasion Last Summer

Tenth Report To U. N. Is Made Public

LAKE SUCCESS, Dec. 27 (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur charged in a United Nations report released today that Chinese Communists made plans to invade Korea months before U. N. troops crossed the 38th parallel.

The report, covering military operations in Korea for the two-week period ended Nov. 30, said the Chinese plans "for the active and aggressive intervention in the Korea war were undoubtedly developed early in the summer."

Communist China has said that Chinese "volunters" took up arms in Korea to defend their country against U. S. aggression. The first U. S. patrols did not cross the 38th parallel until Oct. 8.

Tenth Report Of War

The report, MacArthur's tenth of the war, said that "the vast quantities of personnel and materials now poised Nov. 15-30 along the Yalu River and aggressively employed against United Nations forces in Korea far exceed the most elaborate requirements for the establishment of a purely defensive structure along the Korea-Manchurian border."

"It is evident," the report continued, "that the assembly of such an array of force could not have been effectively accomplished overnight. These factors, considered with other pertinent manifestations, certainly indicate that plans for the active and aggressive intervention in the Korea war were undoubtedly developed early in the summer."

The U. S. delegation also made public MacArthur's ninth report, covering the first two weeks in November, in which he branded Chinese Communist intervention "an act of international lawlessness far exceeding that of mere brigandage." The reports are sent to the U. N. Secretary-General for distribution to members of the Security Council.

Truce Group Works On Report

MacArthur said that up to the end of November "completed organized Chinese Communist units totaling over five Chinese Communist armies with a strength of approximately 250,000 have already crossed into North Korea and attacked United Nations forces."

The United States delegation made public MacArthur's reports as the three-man U. N. cease-fire committee held another meeting to discus their next step in view of Communist China's rejection of their mediation attempts.

The group met for less than one hour. They made no statement, but U. N. sources said that presumably they worked on a "failure" report to be submitted to the Assembly's Political Committee early next week.

U. S. Steel To Build $351,414,000 Plant

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP) — The government gave a go-signal to U. S. Steel Corporation today to erect a $351,414,000 steel mill, believed to be the biggest single steel expansion project in history.

The plant is to be located near Morristown, Pa., on the Delaware River opposite Trenton, N. J.

It was one of 32 defense plant expansion propects approved today for tax benefits by Chairman W. Stuart Symington of the National Security Resources Board. Rapid tax write-offs are permitted on such projects. Such certificates now amount to more than $1,000,000,000 for the steel industry alone.

The new, completely integrated Morrisville plant will produce $1,800,000 ingot tons of steel annually. It will be called the Fairless works in honor of Benjamin F. Fairless, U. S. Steel's president.

All U. S. Seamen Become Subject To Loyalty Check

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP)—By the Coast Guard's order, all maritime workers became subject today to a security clearance system designed to safeguard America's ships and harbors from sabotage and spying.

All seamen on U. S. vessels will be required to have security cards, as will all dockworkers who wish to enter restricted waterfront areas designated by captains of the port. The Coast Guard can deny those cards if they are "reasonable grounds" to believe that the applicant has a subversive record or connections. The Coast Guard already is checking foreign ships and their personnel in the anti-sabotage, anti-subversion program.

Vice Adm. Merlin O'Neill, Coast Guard commandant, ordered the new clearance system into effect immediately even though the reaction of two maritime union chiefs to the original draft of the regulations was a threat to strike.

The final form of the regulations varies considerably from the original wording, but there was no immediate assurance that the changes would satisfy the men who voiced the strike threats—Harry Bridges, head of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (ILWU) which claims 70,000 members, and Hugh Bryson, Jr., chief of the 10,000-member Marine Cooks and Stewards Union (MCSU).

Both of those unions are active on the west coast, where fighting men and supplies are loaded for Korea, and both unions were expelled from the CIO earlier this year on charges of following the Communist Party program.

Stanton Griffis Named U. S. Envoy To Spain

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP) — President Truman today selected Stanton Griffis to be the first U. S. Ambassador to Franco Spain since 1945.

The White House announced the nomination of the 63-year-old New York investment banker, who has served as envoy to Argentina, Egypt, and Poland, will be sent to the Senate when Congress reconvenes Jan. 3. It is expected to win prompt approval since Congress had made plain a desire for closer relations with strategic Spain by authorizing recently a $62,500,000 loan.

McKeldin Sees No Md. Tax Hike

BALTIMORE, Dec. 27 (AP) — Governor-elect McKeldin said today Maryland can continue spending at its present rate without boosting taxes.

"There will not be any tax increase from my knowledge of the budget up to this point," McKeldin said. "We can hold the line."

McKeldin's tax announcement came after a new report by the Board of Estimates that the state can look for more income in the next 18 months than it had anticipated.

The board predicted general fund revenues for the remainder of this fiscal year, ending next June 30, would amount to $77,186,673. That would be $906,000 more than was forecast a month ago.

For the 1952 fiscal year, General revenues were estimated at $77,315,526. That would mean an increase of $1,437,697 over the previous figures.

McKeldin scorned tax hikes despite a gap of some $15,000,0400 between revenue anticipated for the 1952 period and $92,468,444 requested by state departments which operate on general funds.

ACCUSES EX - MATE — Mrs. Ann Remington sits outside the courtroom at federal court in New York where she testified yesterday in the perjury trial of her former husband, William H. Remington, a one-time Commerce Department employe. She testified that Remington turned over a "top secret" formula for explosives to an admitted Russian spy ring courier. (AP Wirephoto).

Remington Gave Reds "Secrets," Ex-Wife Says

Turned Over Data To Elizabeth Bentley

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP)—The divorced wife of William W. Remington testified today at his perjury trial that he gave a Russia agent a "top secret" formula for making explosive from garbage.

She said the agent, Elizabeth Bentley, collected their Communist Party dues, and that they entertained and associated with Communists in New York, Washington and Mexico.

Remington, a 33-year-old former Commerce Department economist, last May denied under oath to a federal grand jury that he ever was a Communist.

Remington Contradicted

Miss Bentley, an admitted former courier for a Russian spy ring, first named Remington as one of the sources of her secret information. Remington denied knowing her except casually, and then under another name.

Yesterday Mrs. Ann Remington testified that her former husband was a Communist, and that she was too, in their college days more than 10 years ago.

Continuing her testimony about the explosive, Mrs. Remington described a series of meeting around Washington in 1942-44 between Miss Bentley and Remington.

"At one meeting, he (Remington) had information he was very excited about," she said. "He called it top-secret and wanted to be sure it got to Russia.'

Held Party Meetings

This, she said, was the explosives formula.

Mrs. Remington said she and her former husband held Communist Party meetings at their previous home at Croton-on-Hudson and in their New York apartment. She declared they "took orders" from people running Earl Browder's 1940 presidential campaign. Browder is the former head of the U. S. Communist Party.

She told of a Mexico honeymoon with Remington where she said they met Mexican Communists at party headquarters there.

Baby Dies In Fire

CENTREVILLE, Md., Dec. 27 (AP) — A six-months-old baby girl was burned to death, five small dwellings were damaged or destroyed and $5,500 in damages resulted from fires in this area today.

This afternoon, flames whipped by high winds in freezing temperatures took the life of the baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Cooper at Kent Narrows.

Civil Defense Officials Warn Target Areas

Urged To Expand Health Services

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (INS)—Civil defense officials warned today that an enemy might hit the U. S. with paralyzing "nerve gas" or germ warfare before an actual shooting conflict and urged the nation to expand health services to cope with "the worst possible disaster."

These grim possibilities were underscored in a 250-page handbook issued to guide states and cities in preparing local health services to cope with atomic, biological and chemical warfare.

Critical target areas were urged at act immediately on the recommendations.

Dr. Norvin C. Kiefer, civil defense medical chief, told a news conference that government is not trying to be "an alarmist" but to prepare the nation for a "challenge that must and can be met."

Gases Paralyze Breathing

The new civil defense volume declared that aerial bombs or other devices can be used to spread infectious diseases among humans, animals and crops and such germs "might be delivered by sabotage before or after open war, or as part of an overt attack."

It said colorless and odorless nerve gases, which paralyze such vital functions as breathing and blood circulation, were developed at the end of World War II and might be used against strategic U. S. cities in event of a future war.

The volume stressed that the nation can and must expand its existing health services to cope with "the worst possible disaster" and outlined major functions to be performed by local authorities in a program to save lives and relieve suffering.

Civil defense officials recommended:

1. Development of an automatic monitoring device for outdoor use that would detect a gas attack "within seconds" and sound an alarm.

2. Organization in a city slightly larger that Detroit of a minimum of 96 mobile first aid stations with a total of over 17,000 attendants and $144,000 worth of supplies to handle casualties of a single A-bomb delivered without warning.

Expansion Of Hospital Supplies

3. Expansion of normal hospital supplies by 20 per cent; preparation of plans to evacuate 75 per cent of the patients now in hospitals to make room for bomb casualties; plans to develop improvised hospitals in school buildings, hotels, apartments and dormitories.

4. Establishment in safe, non-target areas of huge federal stores of medical and surgical supplies for delivery to a bombed city after an attack; storage of adequate supplies on the outskirts of cities to meet the initial post disaster needs.

Civil defense experts reiterated that an A-bomb attack on an average American city might bring anywhere from 40,000 to 120,000 casualties—killed and injured—depending on the time of the attack, size of the bomb, the way it is used and the amount of warning.

Md. Legislators Will Organize Wednesday

BALTIMORE, Dec. 27 (AP) — Democratic legislators, who control Maryland's General Assembly, will organize for the 1951 session next Wednesday at 11 a.m.

The Republican senators and delegates will hold their caucus at 10 a.m. in Carvel Hall.

When the 90-day session will formally convene is still uncertain. It will be some time later that day.

South Koreans Flee From Capital

Refugees crowd aboard flat cars and clamber over Allied tanks in Seoul railway yards as they flee the South Korean capital ahead of an expected Red drive. Korean government officials yesterday estimated that more than half of the city's 1,000,000 population has fled southward.

Truman To Ask For More Taxes At "Right Time"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP) — Any doubt that President Truman intends to ask Congress soon for more taxes to help pay the country's soaring defense bill was removed today.

A high official, who declined to be quoted by name, told reporters that the administration will present its tax proposals to the lawmakers within a few weeks.

He said the President is standing pat on his past position that large increases will be necessary to cover as much as possible of the rise in defense outlays.

Short Amplifies Remark

This official added that administration leaders will begin talking over the situation with congressional tax leaders soon after the new Congress meets on January 3.

At the same time Joseph H. Short, Mr. Truman's press secretary, amplified a remark he made last night that he doubted there would be a request for new taxes in January.

Short issued this statement:

"The President will make known his views and recommendations on the new taxes necessary for the defense program at an appropriate time.

Expanded Program Necessary

"In the meantime, it is positively certain that a much broader and expanded tax program will be necessary to meet the heavy costs of the defense program in the calendar year 1951 and subsequently."

Short's remark that he doubted there would be a request for new taxes in January was made to reporters last night after he had attended a dinner of the President and four top advisers — Secretary of Defense Marshall, Secretary of State Acheson, Secretary of the Treasury Snyder and Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Enforcement Of Flight Plan Rule Delayed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP) — A government order requiring airmen to file flight plans for planes entering or moving within vast air defense identification zones became effective today.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration announced that enforcement will be delayed 15 days to give fliers time to familiarize themselves with the rules and restricted areas.

The zones extend along the entire west coast, the northern half of the Atlantic coast, much of the Canadian and Mexican borders, and around atomic installations.

Relief From Cold Wave Is On Way

[By The Associated Press]

Bone-chilling cold swept across the Midwest and East Wednesday, but more moderate temperatures were on their way.

The lowest official reading in the nation was 36 degrees below zero at Lone Rock, Wis. It didn't feel any warmer in Decorah, Ia., and Big Moose, N. Y., with -35. Rochester, Minn., had -30.

The U. S. Weather Bureau at Chicago said the lows generally were reached around 7:30 a.m. Wednesday, and had moderated by afternoon over the area north and west of Chicago, including Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, the Dakotas and Nebraska.

Warmer air will spread gradually southward over Illinois and Indiana Wednesday night and Thursday, the bureau said, and will reach the east coast some 12 to 24 hours later.

U. S. Attorney Is Suspended

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP) — Harvey L. Carey was suspended by Attorney General McGrath today from his office as U. S. attorney for the western district of Louisiana.

McGrath's action was announced in a terse Justice Department statement. It said the Shreveport official was being placed on temporary leave status pending the outcome of an investigation into "allegations concerning the conduct of his office."

The Attorney General consented to see reporters a few minutes after this statement was issued, but he declined to elaborate or to discuss the nature of the allegations.

In his talk with reporters McGrath said:

"I do not think it fair to discuss the Louisiana inquiry until it is completed. However, I felt that the matter had gone far enough to justify, in the public interest, my announcement that Carey had been placed on temporary leave status."

All-Weather Jet Planes Guard Industrial East

MITCHELL FIELD, N. Y., Dec. 27 (AP) — The Air Force disclosed today that lightning-fast F-94 all-weather jet planes now are guarding New York City and the industrial East.

The Lockheed interceptors are designed for round-the-clock defense against enemy bombers.

O'Conor Heads Probers

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP) — Sen. O'Conor (D-Md) today was named chairman of a new Senate Commerce subcommittee created to investigate shipment of any war-useful materials to Communist areas.

Railroad Unions Are Dissatisfied With Peace Pact

CLEVELAND, Dec. 27 (AP) — Mutterings of dissatisfaction over last week's agreement in the rail dispute arose today from union strongholds.

It had appeared the three-year pact between the railroads and four operating brotherhoods had settled the wage disagreement.

But today James P. Shields, grand chief engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, said final acceptance of the agreement was up to union chairmen on each of the railroads.

Union To Consider Pact

Some 125 general chairman of the engineers' union will meet to consider the pact tomorrow.

"I'm not very well satisfied with the agreement," Shields said. "We don't like the three-year moratorium on further wage movements. And there are not sufficient increases for road engineers."

He said he would make no recommendation one way or the other to the general chairmen, however.

At Cedar Rapids, Ia., a spokesman for the Order of Railway Conductors said "we're not satisfied with the peace pact either."

Chairmen of that union decide on the agreement at a meeting in St. Louis on Jan. 7.

Two Other Unions Included

The other two unions involved are the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Brotherhood of firemen and Enginemen.

President David B. Robertson of the firemen and enginemen reported he had "no opinions to express on the subject" but added:

"When you're under government control you take what the government gives you."

He told reporters he would make no recommendations when the general chairmen of his union meet here Jan. 4.

Betty Hutton Again Files Divorce Suit

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Dec. 27 (AP)—Betty Hutton, right back where she started 10 months ago, filed a second suit for divorce today against Camera Manufacturer Theodore S. Briskin.

The actress charged Briskin with extreme cruelty "which caused me grievous mental suffering" and asked custody of their two daughters, Lindsay, four, and Candice, two. The last separation between the couple came Dec. 3.

Last February she filed her first suit. She obtained an interlocutory decree in April, but after the pair reconciled in Chicago last July the decree was set aside.

Half A Million Enemy Troops Set To Strike

B-29s Start Fires In Kumhwa Area

TOKYO, Thursday, Dec. 28 (AP) — Nearly half a million Chinese and Korean Reds massed along the 38th Parallel today for a big blow that may fall at any hour.

Military sources in Tokyo expressed confidence that the waiting and outnumbered United Nations army will deal the enemy punishing blows when the Communists unleash this second invasion of South Korea.

Gen. MacArthur estimated the total Red force at 1,350,000 men. This great mass of enemy troops was either in Korea or in reserve in Manchuria.

Around-the-clock air blows hit Red troop concentrations, tanks and lines of supply in an effort to put the enemy offensive off-balance before it could get under way.

Fighters and bombers were off at dawn today despite predictions of cloudy weather. They went out as night-flying B-26s returned from 36 missions. The Far East Air Force flew about 500 combat sorties Wednesday.

B-29s Start Fires

The biggest air blow was dealt by Okinawa-based B-29s against the Red staging area of Kumhwa, 20 air miles north of the 38th Parallel. The raiders started a series of fires.

Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, new commander of the U. S. Eighth Army, toured part of the nervous, 150-mile Allied front by jeep as evidence mounted that the Communists, first expected to strike Christmas Eve, were ready now.

South Korean troops tore apart two Communist units threatening the approaches to Seoul, the half-empty republican capital.

Two companies of probing Chinese Reds were annihilated 32 miles north of Seoul and a North Korean regiment was encircled and methodically slaughtered 45 miles northeast of Seoul, South Korean army headquarters announced.

Allied fighters and light bombers killed or wounded more than 800 Reds Wednesday in attacks on Communist troops concentrating for the offensive.

Allied Forces Dig In

Ridgway took over command of the unified Allied ground army in Korea Wednesday after a brief visit with President Syngman Rhee of the Republic of Korea at the presidential palace.

"I aim to stay in Korea," the new commander told Rhee.

Five divisions of the U. S. Tenth Corps, evacuated from Northeast Korea through the Hungnam beachhead, were added to the Eighth Army as Ridgway took over.

The augmented Eighth is deployed across the width of Korea in mountainous defensive terrain fronting the 38th Parallel, the arbitrary dividing line that once separated Red north from Republican South Korea.

The Army commands all approaches to South Korea, Tokyo military sources said. It is prepared, the sources added, to hit hard any Red force launching a southward drive.

Russia Cleans Up Its 1950 U. N. Assessment

LAKE SUCCESS, Dec. 27 (AP) — Russia and three Soviet bloc countries paid nearly $2,000,000 to the United Nations since Nov. 30 on their 1950 U.N. assessments.

Figures released today show the Russians paid $1,612,575.50, cleaning up the balance of the Soviet assessment of $2,166,378.

The Soviet Ukraine and White Russia also cleaned up their balance with payments of $215,271 and $59,432.50, respectively. Poland made a part payment of $100,000 on her $300,776 balance.

Czechoslovakia, the other Soviet bloc nation, still owes a balance of $191,005.3, a U.N. public information statement said.

The paid-up United States assessment for 1950 was $ 13,596,243.

"U. S. Fighting Man" Named "Man Of The Year" By Time

The magazine's Jan. 1 cover carries a four-color portrait of a grim-faced helmeted soldier against a battle-torn background, symbolic of all the U. S. armed forces.

A special report praises and criticizes the soldiers as "an American, in the bitterly unwelcome role of the fighting man. The U. S. fighting man was not civilization's crusader, but destiny's draftee."

Here's some of the things Time said about its latest man of the year:

"He was the most comfort-living creature who had ever walked the earth and he much preferred riding to walking.

"He is more of an individualist than soldiers of other nations, and at the same time he is far more conscious of and dependent on teamwork.

"The American fighting man who went forth to battle, brandishing his chocolate bars, his beer cans and his wastebaskets x x x proved himself able to endure the tortures of climate and the thrusts of a brave and well-led enemy."

This is the first time the magazine chose a symbol as the man of the year.

Pearson Reveals Real Story Behind Anti-Tydings Leaflets

By DREW PEARSON
(Copyright, 1950, by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.

One of the most sensational upsets of the November election was the defeat of Millard Tydings of Maryland after a quarter of a century service in the Senate. Though Franklin Roosevelt failed to defeat Tydings in his purge campaign in 1938, in 1950 the Maryland Democrat was defeated by a hitherto unknown Republican, John M. Butler.

The Senate Campaign Investigating Committee has now unearthed some amazing evidence as to how the defeat was accomplished. If Sen. Gillette, chairman of the committee, decides to make it an issue, the evidence could prevent the seating of Butler on Jan. 3.

The facts gathered by Senate investigators also show such a complete disregard for the Corrupt Practices Act that, if the Justice Department wanted to move, certain politicos might find themselves in jail. Among other things, Senate investigators have discovered:

1. An $8,000 check to Butler from Clarence E. Tuttle, former president of the Rustless Iron and Steel Co. It is against the law for one person to contribute more than $5,000.

2. Various checks from Chicago, Wilmington, Del., and other big contributors used to pay printing bills directly, instead of being passed through campaign headquarters. This is illegal.

3. Candidate Butler wrote a letter to William H. Fedder, a Baltimore printer, guaranteeing to pay his mailing and production expenses. A candidate is limited regarding the amount of money he can spend personally.

Probably more important than any violations of the law, however, were some of the Fascist strong-arm tactics and unfair campaign literature put across by the McCarthy-Chicago Tribune group.

Most effective literature of the campaign, for instance, was a leaflet featuring a fake picture of Tydings supposedly in a chummy conversation with Communist Leader Earl Browder. Half a million copies of this leaflet were printed by the Washington Times-Herald, owned by the Chicago Tribune. Later, when the Senate committee investigated, Candidate Butler disclaimed responsibility, said that while he knew about the leaflet, he did not approve of it.

However, here is the real story of what happened.

About a week before the election, William H. Fedder, the Baltimore printer, sent his truck to the Washington Times-Herald, arrived with a letter from Jean Kerr, secretary to Sen. McCarthy, authorizing him to pick up half a million copies of the fake Tydings-Browder literature. He brought the literature back to his Baltimore warehouse, but having received no money for mailing costs, and since the Butler committee already owed him considerable unpaid bills, Fedder did not mail the literature. Instead, he approached Butler on Nov. 2, the Thursday before election, and reminded him that if he wanted the literature to get out before election in time to do any good,

Wealthy Oilman Acquires Pair Of New Sons-In-Law

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec., Dec. 27 (AP) —Multi-millionaire Glenn McCarthy had two new sons-in-law tonight — one a son of a banker, the other a son of a shoe repairman.

Mary Margaret, oldest of five McCarthy children, was married in an elaborate church ceremony a few hours after her oilman father confirmed the elopment of another daughter, Glenna Lee, 17.

Mary Margaret became the bride of Harry Richards, Jr., Texas A. and M. College junior and a son of a Houston banker. Glenna Lee was the matron of honor..

Glenna Lee and George Pontikes, 19, Rice Institute sophomore and a son of a Houston shoe repair shop owner, were married by a Waco, Tex., justice of the peace Dec. 2.

A high school senior, Glenna Lee will be 18 Sunday. She is a student yell leader at the public school where Pontikes starred in football and basketball.

Pintikes was among the guests at tonights wedding. He successfully avoided photographers as he entered the church and attempted to cover his face with his arms as he departed.

The ceremony was 15 minutes late starting because of a missing soloist.

"U. S. Fighting Man" Named "Man Of The Year" By Time

The magazine's Jan. 1 cover carries a four-color portrait of a grim-faced helmeted soldier against a battle-torn background, symbolic of all the U. S. armed forces.

A special report praises and criticizes the soldiers as "an American, in the bitterly unwelcome role of the fighting man. The U. S. fighting man was not civilization's crusader, but destiny's draftee."

Here's some of the things Time said about its latest man of the year:

"He was the most comfort-living creature who had ever walked the earth and he much preferred riding to walking.

"He is more of an individualist than soldiers of other nations, and at the same time he is far more conscious of and dependent on teamwork.

"The American fighting man who went forth to battle, brandishing his chocolate bars, his beer cans and his wastebaskets x x x proved himself able to endure the tortures of climate and the thrusts of a brave and well-led enemy."

This is the first time the magazine chose a symbol as the man of the year.

Remington Gave Reds "Secrets," Ex-Wife Says

Turned Over Data To Elizabeth Bentley

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP)—The divorced wife of William W. Remington testified today at his perjury trial that he gave a Russia agent a "top secret" formula for making explosive from garbage.

She said the agent, Elizabeth Bentley, collected their Communist Party dues, and that they entertained and associated with Communists in New York, Washington and Mexico.

Remington, a 33-year-old former Commerce Department economist, last May denied under oath to a federal grand jury that he ever was a Communist.

Remington Contradicted

Miss Bentley, an admitted former courier for a Russian spy ring, first named Remington as one of the sources of her secret information. Remington denied knowing her except casually, and then under another name.

Yesterday Mrs. Ann Remington testified that her former husband was a Communist, and that she was too, in their college days more than 10 years ago.

Continuing her testimony about the explosive, Mrs. Remington described a series of meeting around Washington in 1942-44 between Miss Bentley and Remington.

"At one meeting, he (Remington) had information he was very excited about," she said. "He called it top-secret and wanted to be sure it got to Russia.'

Held Party Meetings

This, she said, was the explosives formula.

Mrs. Remington said she and her former husband held Communist Party meetings at their previous home at Croton-on-Hudson and in their New York apartment. She declared they "took orders" from people running Earl Browder's 1940 presidential campaign. Browder is the former head of the U. S. Communist Party.

She told of a Mexico honeymoon with Remington where she said they met Mexican Communists at party headquarters there.

Baby Dies In Fire

CENTREVILLE, Md., Dec. 27 (AP) — A six-months-old baby girl was burned to death, five small dwellings were damaged or destroyed and $5,500 in damages resulted from fires in this area today.

This afternoon, flames whipped by high winds in freezing temperatures took the life of the baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Cooper at Kent Narrows.

Civil Defense Officials Warn Target Areas

Urged To Expand Health Services

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (INS)—Civil defense officials warned today that an enemy might hit the U. S. with paralyzing "nerve gas" or germ warfare before an actual shooting conflict and urged the nation to expand health services to cope with "the worst possible disaster."

These grim possibilities were underscored in a 250-page handbook issued to guide states and cities in preparing local health services to cope with atomic, biological and chemical warfare.

Critical target areas were urged at act immediately on the recommendations.

Dr. Norvin C. Kiefer, civil defense medical chief, told a news conference that government is not trying to be "an alarmist" but to prepare the nation for a "challenge that must and can be met."

Gases Paralyze Breathing

The new civil defense volume declared that aerial bombs or other devices can be used to spread infectious diseases among humans, animals and crops and such germs "might be delivered by sabotage before or after open war, or as part of an overt attack."

It said colorless and odorless nerve gases, which paralyze such vital functions as breathing and blood circulation, were developed at the end of World War II and might be used against strategic U. S. cities in event of a future war.

The volume stressed that the nation can and must expand its existing health services to cope with "the worst possible disaster" and outlined major functions to be performed by local authorities in a program to save lives and relieve suffering.

Civil defense officials recommended:

1. Development of an automatic monitoring device for outdoor use that would detect a gas attack "within seconds" and sound an alarm.

2. Organization in a city slightly larger that Detroit of a minimum of 96 mobile first aid stations with a total of over 17,000 attendants and $144,000 worth of supplies to handle casualties of a single A-bomb delivered without warning.

Expansion Of Hospital Supplies

3. Expansion of normal hospital supplies by 20 per cent; preparation of plans to evacuate 75 per cent of the patients now in hospitals to make room for bomb casualties; plans to develop improvised hospitals in school buildings, hotels, apartments and dormitories.

4. Establishment in safe, non-target areas of huge federal stores of medical and surgical supplies for delivery to a bombed city after an attack; storage of adequate supplies on the outskirts of cities to meet the initial post disaster needs.

Civil defense experts reiterated that an A-bomb attack on an average American city might bring anywhere from 40,000 to 120,000 casualties—killed and injured—depending on the time of the attack, size of the bomb, the way it is used and the amount of warning.

Md. Legislators Will Organize Wednesday

BALTIMORE, Dec. 27 (AP) — Democratic legislators, who control Maryland's General Assembly, will organize for the 1951 session next Wednesday at 11 a.m.

The Republican senators and delegates will hold their caucus at 10 a.m. in Carvel Hall.

When the 90-day session will formally convene is still uncertain. It will be some time later that day.

South Koreans Flee From Capital

Refugees crowd aboard flat cars and clamber over Allied tanks in Seoul railway yards as they flee the South Korean capital ahead of an expected Red drive. Korean government officials yesterday estimated that more than half of the city's 1,000,000 population has fled southward.

Truman To Ask For More Taxes At "Right Time"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP) — Any doubt that President Truman intends to ask Congress soon for more taxes to help pay the country's soaring defense bill was removed today.

A high official, who declined to be quoted by name, told reporters that the administration will present its tax proposals to the lawmakers within a few weeks.

He said the President is standing pat on his past position that large increases will be necessary to cover as much as possible of the rise in defense outlays.

Short Amplifies Remark

This official added that administration leaders will begin talking over the situation with congressional tax leaders soon after the new Congress meets on January 3.

At the same time Joseph H. Short, Mr. Truman's press secretary, amplified a remark he made last night that he doubted there would be a request for new taxes in January.

Short issued this statement:

Expanded Program Necessary

"In the meantime, it is positively certain that a much broader and expanded tax program will be necessary to meet the heavy costs of the defense program in the calendar year 1951 and subsequently."

Short's remark that he doubted there would be a request for new taxes in January was made to reporters last night after he had attended a dinner of the President and four top advisers — Secretary of Defense Marshall, Secretary of State Acheson, Secretary of the Treasury Snyder and Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Enforcement Of Flight Plan Rule Delayed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP) — A government order requiring airmen to file flight plans for planes entering or moving within vast air defense identification zones became effective today.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration announced that enforcement will be delayed 15 days to give fliers time to familiarize themselves with the rules and restricted areas.

The zones extend along the entire west coast, the northern half of the Atlantic coast, much of the Canadian and Mexican borders, and around atomic installations.

Relief From Cold Wave Is On Way

[By The Associated Press]

Bone-chilling cold swept across the Midwest and East Wednesday, but more moderate temperatures were on their way.

The lowest official reading in the nation was 36 degrees below zero at Lone Rock, Wis. It didn't feel any warmer in Decorah, Ia., and Big Moose, N. Y., with -35. Rochester, Minn., had -30.

The U. S. Weather Bureau at Chicago said the lows generally were reached around 7:30 a.m. Wednesday, and had moderated by afternoon over the area north and west of Chicago, including Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, the Dakotas and Nebraska.

Warmer air will spread gradually southward over Illinois and Indiana Wednesday night and Thursday, the bureau said, and will reach the east coast some 12 to 24 hours later.

U. S. Attorney Is Suspended

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP) — Harvey L. Carey was suspended by Attorney General McGrath today from his office as U. S. attorney for the western district of Louisiana.

McGrath's action was announced in a terse Justice Department statement. It said the Shreveport official was being placed on temporary leave status pending the outcome of an investigation into "allegations concerning the conduct of his office."

The Attorney General consented to see reporters a few minutes after this statement was issued, but he declined to elaborate or to discuss the nature of the allegations.

In his talk with reporters McGrath said:

"I do not think it fair to discuss the Louisiana inquiry until it is completed. However, I felt that the matter had gone far enough to justify, in the public interest, my announcement that Carey had been placed on temporary leave status."

All-Weather Jet Planes Guard Industrial East

MITCHELL FIELD, N. Y., Dec. 27 (AP) — The Air Force disclosed today that lightning-fast F-94 all-weather jet planes now are guarding New York City and the industrial East.

The Lockheed interceptors are designed for round-the-clock defense against enemy bombers.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP) — Sen. O'Conor (D-Md) today was named chairman of a new Senate Commerce subcommittee created to investigate shipment of any war-useful materials to Communist areas.

Railroad Unions Are Dissatisfied With Peace Pact

CLEVELAND, Dec. 27 (AP) — Mutterings of dissatisfaction over last week's agreement in the rail dispute arose today from union strongholds.

It had appeared the three-year pact between the railroads and four operating brotherhoods had settled the wage disagreement.

But today James P. Shields, grand chief engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, said final acceptance of the agreement was up to union chairmen on each of the railroads.

Union To Consider Pact

Some 125 general chairman of the engineers' union will meet to consider the pact tomorrow.

"I'm not very well satisfied with the agreement," Shields said. "We don't like the three-year moratorium on further wage movements. And there are not sufficient increases for road engineers."

He said he would make no recommendation one way or the other to the general chairmen, however.

At Cedar Rapids, Ia., a spokesman for the Order of Railway Conductors said "we're not satisfied with the peace pact either."

Chairmen of that union decide on the agreement at a meeting in St. Louis on Jan. 7.

Two Other Unions Included

The other two unions involved are the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Brotherhood of firemen and Enginemen.

President David B. Robertson of the firemen and enginemen reported he had "no opinions to express on the subject" but added:

"When you're under government control you take what the government gives you."

He told reporters he would make no recommendations when the general chairmen of his union meet here Jan. 4.

Betty Hutton Again Files Divorce Suit

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Dec. 27 (AP)—Betty Hutton, right back where she started 10 months ago, filed a second suit for divorce today against Camera Manufacturer Theodore S. Briskin.

The actress charged Briskin with extreme cruelty "which caused me grievous mental suffering" and asked custody of their two daughters, Lindsay, four, and Candice, two. The last separation between the couple came Dec. 3.

Last February she filed her first suit. She obtained an interlocutory decree in April, but after the pair reconciled in Chicago last July the decree was set aside.

Half A Million Enemy Troops Set To Strike

B-29s Start Fires In Kumhwa Area

TOKYO, Thursday, Dec. 28 (AP) — Nearly half a million Chinese and Korean Reds massed along the 38th Parallel today for a big blow that may fall at any hour.

Military sources in Tokyo expressed confidence that the waiting and outnumbered United Nations army will deal the enemy punishing blows when the Communists unleash this second invasion of South Korea.

Gen. MacArthur estimated the total Red force at 1,350,000 men. This great mass of enemy troops was either in Korea or in reserve in Manchuria.

Around-the-clock air blows hit Red troop concentrations, tanks and lines of supply in an effort to put the enemy offensive off-balance before it could get under way.

Fighters and bombers were off at dawn today despite predictions of cloudy weather. They went out as night-flying B-26s returned from 36 missions. The Far East Air Force flew about 500 combat sorties Wednesday.

B-29s Start Fires

The biggest air blow was dealt by Okinawa-based B-29s against the Red staging area of Kumhwa, 20 air miles north of the 38th Parallel. The raiders started a series of fires.

Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, new commander of the U. S. Eighth Army, toured part of the nervous, 150-mile Allied front by jeep as evidence mounted that the Communists, first expected to strike Christmas Eve, were ready now.

South Korean troops tore apart two Communist units threatening the approaches to Seoul, the half-empty republican capital.

Two companies of probing Chinese Reds were annihilated 32 miles north of Seoul and a North Korean regiment was encircled and methodically slaughtered 45 miles northeast of Seoul, South Korean army headquarters announced.

Allied fighters and light bombers killed or wounded more than 800 Reds Wednesday in attacks on Communist troops concentrating for the offensive.

Allied Forces Dig In

Ridgway took over command of the unified Allied ground army in Korea Wednesday after a brief visit with President Syngman Rhee of the Republic of Korea at the presidential palace.

"I aim to stay in Korea," the new commander told Rhee.

Five divisions of the U. S. Tenth Corps, evacuated from Northeast Korea through the Hungnam beachhead, were added to the Eighth Army as Ridgway took over.

The augmented Eighth is deployed across the width of Korea in mountainous defensive terrain fronting the 38th Parallel, the arbitrary dividing line that once separated Red north from Republican South Korea.

The Army commands all approaches to South Korea, Tokyo military sources said. It is prepared, the sources added, to hit hard any Red force launching a southward drive.

Russia Cleans Up Its 1950 U. N. Assessment

LAKE SUCCESS, Dec. 27 (AP) — Russia and three Soviet bloc countries paid nearly $2,000,000 to the United Nations since Nov. 30 on their 1950 U.N. assessments.

Figures released today show the Russians paid $1,612,575.50, cleaning up the balance of the Soviet assessment of $2,166,378.

The Soviet Ukraine and White Russia also cleaned up their balance with payments of $215,271 and $59,432.50, respectively. Poland made a part payment of $100,000 on her $300,776 balance.

Czechoslovakia, the other Soviet bloc nation, still owes a balance of $191,005.3, a U.N. public information statement said.

The paid-up United States assessment for 1950 was $ 13,596,243.

Pearson Reveals Real Story Behind Anti-Tydings Leaflets

By DREW PEARSON
(Copyright, 1950, by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.

One of the most sensational upsets of the November election was the defeat of Millard Tydings of Maryland after a quarter of a century service in the Senate. Though Franklin Roosevelt failed to defeat Tydings in his purge campaign in 1938, in 1950 the Maryland Democrat was defeated by a hitherto unknown Republican, John M. Butler.

The Senate Campaign Investigating Committee has now unearthed some amazing evidence as to how the defeat was accomplished. If Sen. Gillette, chairman of the committee, decides to make it an issue, the evidence could prevent the seating of Butler on Jan. 3.

The facts gathered by Senate investigators also show such a complete disregard for the Corrupt Practices Act that, if the Justice Department wanted to move, certain politicos might find themselves in jail. Among other things, Senate investigators have discovered:

1. An $8,000 check to Butler from Clarence E. Tuttle, former president of the Rustless Iron and Steel Co. It is against the law for one person to contribute more than $5,000.

2. Various checks from Chicago, Wilmington, Del., and other big contributors used to pay printing bills directly, instead of being passed through campaign headquarters. This is illegal.

3. Candidate Butler wrote a letter to William H. Fedder, a Baltimore printer, guaranteeing to pay his mailing and production expenses. A candidate is limited regarding the amount of money he can spend personally.

Probably more important than any violations of the law, however, were some of the Fascist strong-arm tactics and unfair campaign literature put across by the McCarthy-Chicago Tribune group.

Most effective literature of the campaign, for instance, was a leaflet featuring a fake picture of Tydings supposedly in a chummy conversation with Communist Leader Earl Browder. Half a million copies of this leaflet were printed by the Washington Times-Herald, owned by the Chicago Tribune. Later, when the Senate committee investigated, Candidate Butler disclaimed responsibility, said that while he knew about the leaflet, he did not approve of it.

However, here is the real story of what happened.

About a week before the election, William H. Fedder, the Baltimore printer, sent his truck to the Washington Times-Herald, arrived with a letter from Jean Kerr, secretary to Sen. McCarthy, authorizing him to pick up half a million copies of the fake Tydings-Browder literature. He brought the literature back to his Baltimore warehouse, but having received no money for mailing costs, and since the Butler committee already owed him considerable unpaid bills, Fedder did not mail the literature. Instead, he approached Butler on Nov. 2, the Thursday before election, and reminded him that if he wanted the literature to get out before election in time to do any good,

AIR BLOWS DEALT MASSED REDS

M'Arthur Says China Planned Korea Invasion Last Summer

Tenth Report To U. N. Is Made Public

LAKE SUCCESS, Dec. 27 (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur charged in a United Nations report released today that Chinese Communists made plans to invade Korea months before U. N. troops crossed the 38th parallel.

The report, covering military operations in Korea for the two-week period ended Nov. 30, said the Chinese plans "for the active and aggressive intervention in the Korea war were undoubtedly developed early in the summer."

Communist China has said that Chinese "volunters" took up arms in Korea to defend their country against U. S. aggression. The first U. S. patrols did not cross the 38th parallel until Oct. 8.

Tenth Report Of War

The report, MacArthur's tenth of the war, said that "the vast quantities of personnel and materials now poised Nov. 15-30 along the Yalu River and aggressively employed against United Nations forces in Korea far exceed the most elaborate requirements for the establishment of a purely defensive structure along the Korea-Manchurian border."

"It is evident," the report continued, "that the assembly of such an array of force could not have been effectively accomplished overnight. These factors, considered with other pertinent manifestations, certainly indicate that plans for the active and aggressive intervention in the Korea war were undoubtedly developed early in the summer."

The U. S. delegation also made public MacArthur's ninth report, covering the first two weeks in November, in which he branded Chinese Communist intervention "an act of international lawlessness far exceeding that of mere brigandage." The reports are sent to the U. N. Secretary-General for distribution to members of the Security Council.

Truce Group Works On Report

MacArthur said that up to the end of November "completed organized Chinese Communist units totaling over five Chinese Communist armies with a strength of approximately 250,000 have already crossed into North Korea and attacked United Nations forces."

The United States delegation made public MacArthur's reports as the three-man U. N. cease-fire committee held another meeting to discus their next step in view of Communist China's rejection of their mediation attempts.

The group met for less than one hour. They made no statement, but U. N. sources said that presumably they worked on a "failure" report to be submitted to the Assembly's Political Committee early next week.

U. S. Steel To Build $351,414,000 Plant

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP) — The government gave a go-signal to U. S. Steel Corporation today to erect a $351,414,000 steel mill, believed to be the biggest single steel expansion project in history.

The plant is to be located near Morristown, Pa., on the Delaware River opposite Trenton, N. J.

It was one of 32 defense plant expansion propects approved today for tax beneits by Chairman W. Stuart Symington of the National Security Resources Board. Rapid tax write-offs are permitted on such projects. Such certificates now amount to more than $1,000,000,000 for the steel industry alone.

The new, completely integrated Morrisville plant will produce $1,800,000 ingot tons of steel annually. It will be called the Fairless works in honor of Benjamin F. Fairless, U. S. Steel's president.

All U. S. Seamen Become Subject To Loyalty Check

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP)—By the Coast Guard's order, all maritime workers became subject today to a security clearance system designed to safeguard America's ships and harbors from sabotage and spying.

All seamen on U. S. vessels will be required to have security cards, as will all dockworkers who wish to enter restricted waterfront areas designated by captains of the port. The Coast Guard can deny those cards if they are "reasonable grounds" to believe that the applicant has a subversive record or connections. The Coast Guard already is checking foreign ships and their personnel in the anti-sabotage, anti-subversion program.

Vice Adm. Merlin O'Neill, Coast Guard commandant, ordered the new clearance system into effect immediately even though the reaction of two maritime union chiefs to the original draft of the regulations was a threat to strike.

The final form of the regulations varies considerably from the original wording, but there was no immediate assurance that the changes would satisfy the men who voiced the strike threats—Harry Bridges, head of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (ILWU) which claims 70,000 members, and Hugh Bryson, Jr., chief of the 10,000-member Marine Cooks and Stewards Union (MCSU).

Both of those unions are active on the west coast, where fighting men and supplies are loaded for Korea, and both unions were expelled from the CIO earlier this year on charges of following the Communist Party program.

Stanton Griffis Named U. S. Envoy To Spain

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP) — President Truman today selected Stanton Griffis to be the first U. S. Ambassador to Franco Spain since 1945.

The White House announced the nomination of the 63-year-old New York investment banker, who has served as envoy to Argentina, Egypt, and Poland, will be sent to the Senate when Congress reconvenes Jan. 3. It is expected to win prompt approval since Congress had made plain a desire for closer relations with strategic Spain by authorizing recently a $62,500,000 loan.

McKeldin Sees No Md. Tax Hike

BALTIMORE, Dec. 27 (AP) — Governor-elect McKeldin said today Maryland can continue spending at its present rate without boosting taxes.

"There will not be any tax increase from my knowledge of the budget up to this point," McKeldin said. "We can hold the line."

McKeldin's tax announcement came after a new report by the Board of Estimates that the state can look for more income in the next 18 months than it had anticipated.

The board predicted general fund revenues for the remainder of this fiscal year, ending next June 30, would amount to $77,186,673. That would be $906,000 more than was forecast a month ago.

For the 1952 fiscal year, General revenues were estimated at $77,315,526. That would mean an increase of $1,437,697 over the previous figures.

McKeldin scorned tax hikes despite a gap of some $15,000,0400 between revenue anticipated for the 1952 period and $92,468,444 requested by state departments which operate on general funds.

When the 90-day session will formally convene is still uncertain. It will be some time later that day.

South Koreans Flee From Capital

Refugees crowd aboard flat cars and clamber over Allied tanks in Seoul railway yards as they flee the South Korean capital ahead of an expected Red drive. Korean government officials yesterday estimated that more than half of the city's 1,000,000 population has fled southward.

Truman To Ask For More Taxes At "Right Time"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP) — Any doubt that President Truman intends to ask Congress soon for more taxes to help pay the country's soaring defense bill was removed today.

A high official, who declined to be quoted by name, told reporters that the administration will present its tax proposals to the lawmakers within a few weeks.

He said the President is standing pat on his past position that large increases will be necessary to cover as much as possible of the rise in defense outlays.

Short Amplifies Remark

This official added that administration leaders will begin talking over the situation with congressional tax leaders soon after the new Congress meets on January 3.

At the same time Joseph H. Short, Mr. Truman's press secretary, amplified a remark he made last night that he doubted there would be a request for new taxes in January.

Short issued this statement:

"The President will make known his views and recommendations on the new taxes necessary for the defense program at an appropriate time.

Expanded Program Necessary

"In the meantime, it is positively certain that a much broader and expanded tax program will be necessary to meet the heavy costs of the defense program in the calendar year 1951 and subsequently."

Short's remark that he doubted there would be a request for new taxes in January was made to reporters last night after he had attended a dinner of the President and four top advisers — Secretary of Defense Marshall, Secretary of State Acheson, Secretary of the Treasury Snyder and Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Enforcement Of Flight Plan Rule Delayed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP) — A government order requiring airmen to file flight plans for planes entering or moving within vast air defense identification zones became effective today.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration announced that enforcement will be delayed 15 days to give fliers time to familiarize themselves with the rules and restricted areas.

The zones extend along the entire west coast, the northern half of the Atlantic coast, much of the Canadian and Mexican borders, and around atomic installations.

Relief From Cold Wave Is On Way

[By The Associated Press]

Bone-chilling cold swept across the Midwest and East Wednesday, but more moderate temperatures were on their way.

The lowest official reading in the nation was 36 degrees below zero at Lone Rock, Wis. It didn't feel any warmer in Decorah, Ia., and Big Moose, N. Y., with -35. Rochester, Minn., had -30.

The U. S. Weather Bureau at Chicago said the lows generally were reached around 7:30 a.m. Wednesday, and had moderated by afternoon over the area north and west of Chicago, including Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, the Dakotas and Nebraska.

Warmer air will spread gradually southward over Illinois and Indiana Wednesday night and Thursday, the bureau said, and will reach the east coast some 12 to 24 hours later.

U. S. Attorney Is Suspended

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP) — Harvey L. Carey was suspended by Attorney General McGrath today from his office as U. S. attorney for the western district of Louisiana.

McGrath's action was announced in a terse Justice Department statement. It said the Shreveport official was being placed on temporary leave status pending the outcome of an investigation into "allegations concerning the conduct of his office."

The Attorney General consented to see reporters a few minutes after this statement was issued, but he declined to elaborate or to discuss the nature of the allegations.

In his talk with reporters McGrath said:

"I do not think it fair to discuss the Louisiana inquiry until it is completed. However, I felt that the matter had gone far enough to justify, in the public interest, my announcement that Carey had been placed on temporary leave status."

All-Weather Jet Planes Guard Industrial East

MITCHELL FIELD, N. Y., Dec. 27 (AP) — The Air Force disclosed today that lightning-fast F-94 all-weather jet planes now are guarding New York City and the industrial East.

The Lockheed interceptors are designed for round-the-clock defense against enemy bombers.

O'Conor Heads Probers

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP) — Sen. O'Conor (D-Md) today was named chairman of a new Senate Commerce subcommittee created to investigate shipment of any war-useful materials to Communist areas.

Railroad Unions Are Dissatisfied With Peace Pact

CLEVELAND, Dec. 27 (AP) — Mutterings of dissatisfaction over last week's agreement in the rail dispute arose today from union strongholds.

It had appeared the three-year pact between the railroads and four operating brotherhoods had settled the wage disagreement.

But today James P. Shields, grand chief engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, said final acceptance of the agreement was up to union chairmen on each of the railroads.

Union To Consider Pact

Some 125 general chairman of the engineers' union will meet to consider the pact tomorrow.

"I'm not very well satisfied with the agreement," Shields said. "We don't like the three-year moratorium on further wage movements. And there are not sufficient increases for road engineers."

He said he would make no recommendation one way or the other to the general chairmen, however.

At Cedar Rapids, Ia., a spokesman for the Order of Railway Conductors said "we're not satisfied with the peace pact either."

Chairmen of that union decide on the agreement at a meeting in St. Louis on Jan. 7.

Two Other Unions Included

The other two unions involved are the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Brotherhood of firemen and Enginemen.

President David B. Robertson of the firemen and enginemen reported he had "no opinions to express on the subject" but added:

"When you're under government control you take what the government gives you."

He told reporters he would make no recommendations when the general chairmen of his union meet here Jan. 4.

Betty Hutton Again Files Divorce Suit

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Dec. 27 (AP)—Betty Hutton, right back where she started 10 months ago, filed a second suit for divorce today against Camera Manufacturer Theodore S. Briskin.

The actress charged Briskin with extreme cruelty "which caused me grievous mental suffering" and asked custody of their two daughters, Lindsay, four, and Candice, two. The last separation between the couple came Dec. 3.

Last February she filed her first suit. She obtained an interlocutory decree in April, but after the pair reconciled in Chicago last July the decree was set aside.

Half A Million Enemy Troops Set To Strike

B-29s Start Fires In Kumhwa Area

TOKYO, Thursday, Dec. 28 (AP) — Nearly half a million Chinese and Korean Reds massed along the 38th Parallel today for a big blow that may fall at any hour.

Military sources in Tokyo expressed confidence that the waiting and outnumbered United Nations army will deal the enemy punishing blows when the Communists unleash this second invasion of South Korea.

Gen. MacArthur estimated the total Red force at 1,350,000 men. This great mass of enemy troops was either in Korea or in reserve in Manchuria.

Around-the-clock air blows hit Red troop concentrations, tanks and lines of supply in an effort to put the enemy offensive off-balance before it could get under way.

Fighters and bombers were off at dawn today despite predictions of cloudy weather. They went out as night-flying B-26s returned from 36 missions. The Far East Air Force flew about 500 combat sorties Wednesday.

B-29s Start Fires

The biggest air blow was dealt by Okinawa-based B-29s against the Red staging area of Kumhwa, 20 air miles north of the 38th Parallel. The raiders started a series of fires.

Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, new commander of the U. S. Eighth Army, toured part of the nervous, 150-mile Allied front by jeep as evidence mounted that the Communists, first expected to strike Christmas Eve, were ready now.

South Korean troops tore apart two Communist units threatening the approaches to Seoul, the half-empty republican capital.

Two companies of probing Chinese Reds were annihilated 32 miles north of Seoul and a North Korean regiment was encircled and methodically slaughtered 45 miles northeast of Seoul, South Korean army headquarters announced.

Allied fighters and light bombers killed or wounded more than 800 Reds Wednesday in attacks on Communist troops concentrating for the offensive.

Allied Forces Dig In

Ridgway took over command of the unified Allied ground army in Korea Wednesday after a brief visit with President Syngman Rhee of the Republic of Korea at the presidential palace.

"I aim to stay in Korea," the new commander told Rhee.

Five divisions of the U. S. Tenth Corps, evacuated from Northeast Korea through the Hungnam beachhead, were added to the Eighth Army as Ridgway took over.

The augmented Eighth is deployed across the width of Korea in mountainous defensive terrain fronting the 38th Parallel, the arbitrary dividing line that once separated Red north from Republican South Korea.

The Army commands all approaches to South Korea, Tokyo military sources said. It is prepared, the sources added, to hit hard any Red force launching a southward drive.

Russia Cleans Up Its 1950 U. N. Assessment

LAKE SUCCESS, Dec. 27 (AP) — Russia and three Soviet bloc countries paid nearly $2,000,000 to the United Nations since Nov. 30 on their 1950 U.N. assessments.

Figures released today show the Russians paid $1,612,575.50, cleaning up the balance of the Soviet assessment of $2,166,378.

The Soviet Ukraine and White Russia also cleaned up their balance with payments of $215,271 and $59,432.50, respectively. Poland made a part payment of $100,000 on her $300,776 balance.

Czechoslovakia, the other Soviet bloc nation, still owes a balance of $191,005.3, a U.N. public information statement said.

The paid-up United States assessment for 1950 was $ 13,596,243.

Pearson Reveals Real Story Behind Anti-Tydings Leaflets

By DREW PEARSON
(Copyright, 1950, by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.

One of the most sensational upsets of the November election was the defeat of Millard Tydings of Maryland after a quarter of a century service in the Senate. Though Franklin Roosevelt failed to defeat Tydings in his purge campaign in 1938, in 1950 the Maryland Democrat was defeated by a hitherto unknown Republican, John M. Butler.

The Senate Campaign Investigating Committee has now unearthed some amazing evidence as to how the defeat was accomplished. If Sen. Gillette, chairman of the committee, decides to make it an issue, the evidence could prevent the seating of Butler on Jan. 3.

The facts gathered by Senate investigators also show such a complete disregard for the Corrupt Practices Act that, if the Justice Department wanted to move, certain politicos might find themselves in jail. Among other things, Senate investigators have discovered:

1. An $8,000 check to Butler from Clarence E. Tuttle, former president of the Rustless Iron and Steel Co. It is against the law for one person to contribute more than $5,000.

2. Various checks from Chicago, Wilmington, Del., and other big contributors used to pay printing bills directly, instead of being passed through campaign headquarters. This is illegal.

3. Candidate Butler wrote a letter to William H. Fedder, a Baltimore printer, guaranteeing to pay his mailing and production expenses. A candidate is limited regarding the amount of money he can spend personally.

Probably more important than any violations of the law, however, were some of the Fascist strong-arm tactics and unfair campaign literature put across by the McCarthy-Chicago Tribune group.

Most effective literature of the campaign, for instance, was a leaflet featuring a fake picture of Tydings supposedly in a chummy conversation with Communist Leader Earl Browder. Half a million copies of this leaflet were printed by the Washington Times-Herald, owned by the Chicago Tribune. Later, when the Senate committee investigated, Candidate Butler disclaimed responsibility, said that while he knew about the leaflet, he did not approve of it.

However, here is the real story of what happened.

About a week before the election, William H. Fedder, the Baltimore printer, sent his truck to the Washington Times-Herald, arrived with a letter from Jean Kerr, secretary to Sen. McCarthy, authorizing him to pick up half a million copies of the fake Tydings-Browder literature. He brought the literature back to his Baltimore warehouse, but having received no money for mailing costs, and since the Butler committee already owed him considerable unpaid bills, Fedder did not mail the literature. Instead, he approached Butler on Nov. 2, the Thursday before election, and reminded him that if he wanted the literature to get out before election in time to do any good,

Wealthy Oilman Acquires Pair Of New Sons-In-Law

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec., Dec. 27 (AP) —Multi-millionaire Glenn McCarthy had two new sons-in-law tonight — one a son of a banker, the other a son of a shoe repairman.

Mary Margaret, oldest of five McCarthy children, was married in an elaborate church ceremony a few hours after her oilman father confirmed the elopment of another daughter, Glenna Lee, 17.

Mary Margaret became the bride of Harry Richards, Jr., Texas A. and M. College junior and a son of a Houston banker. Glenna Lee was the matron of honor..

Glenna Lee and George Pontikes, 19, Rice Institute sophomore and a son of a Houston shoe repair shop owner, were married by a Waco, Tex., justice of the peace Dec. 2.

A high school senior, Glenna Lee will be 18 Sunday. She is a student yell leader at the public school where Pontikes starred in football and basketball.

Pintikes was among the guests at tonights wedding. He successfully avoided photographers as he entered the church and attempted to cover his face with his arms as he departed.

The ceremony was 15 minutes late starting because of a missing soloist.

Doomed Negro Takes Own Life

BALTIMORE, Dec. 27 (AP)—Edward L. Grear had been in a death cell at the Maryland penitentiary for 18 months while the wheels of justice ground over his conviction of killing a policeman.

Last evening, the prison radio reported Gov. Lane had signed a death warrant and set the execution for Jan. 27. Grear heard the broadcast.

This morning, the 45-year-old negro was found dead in his cell. He had slashed his throat with half a razor blade.

It was the same way another police killer, Roy Arnold Woods, had committed suicide on July 7, 1949, a few hours before he was to be hanged. Grear had been in the death house two weeks then.

Warden Edwin Swenson insisted there was no connection and that the half blades used by the two men were of different make.

Grear was sentenced to die for the fatal shooting of Patrolman John Arnold on Dec. 12, 1948.

"Spending" Survey

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP) — The government will begin in the next two weeks a survey of how 17,000 families in 91 cities spend their money. It wants to know their buying hibits for a general overhauling of the cost of living index.

Quadruple Amputee Arrives In Washington

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP)—Pfc. Robert Smith, who is an "ideal patient" although he lost parts of all four limbs through frostbite in Korea, arrived here tonight in a stretcher on an Air Force plane.

When Capt. William Lookadoo, public information officer at Bolling Air Force base, told him his mother is flying to Washington tomorrow to see him, the 20-year-old soldier smiled and said:

"It's a great surprise."

It was Lt. Bernadette Fahrekopf, a nurse aboard a four-engined hospital plane that flew him across the continent, who described him as an ideal patient.

Studebaker Cutback

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 27 (AP) — Studebaker Corp., announced today a 20 per cent cutback in passenger car and truck production next month.

Harold S. Vance, board chairman and president, attributed the cut to government restrictions in civilian use of defense materials.

Mrs. Torresola Freed

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP) — Mrs. Carmen Torresola, widow of one of the two Puerto Rican nationalists who attempted to slap President Truman, was ordered freed in the case today because the U. S. attorney's office was unable to produce competent evidence against her.

Next day Sen. McCarthy's secretary, Miss Kerr, came to Baltimore, and handed Fedder checks totalling $2,400, plus $20 in cash

Simultaneously, Butler himself handed Fedder a check for $5,000 signed by Ruth McCormick Miller, publisher of the Washington Times-Herald and niece of Col. Robert McCormick. The check had been endorsed by Butler over to Fedder.

Butler also gave Fedder a letter of guarantee, promising that he personally would pay all expenses incurred.

One of the checks Fedder received was for $1,000 from Sen. Owen Brewster of Maine.

Following this, the leaflets featuring the fake Tydings-Browder picture were mailed.

Following this, on Saturday, Nov. 5—just three days before election—Fedder was asked by Sen. McCarthy's office to help address 50,000 post cards. How McCarthy, supposed to be interested in Wisconsin politics, happened to be handling post cards, campaign contributions and fake Browder pictures for a candidate in Maryland has never been explained.

However, Fedder put a crew of girls to work addressing post cards —a tedious job because the cards featured an alleged personal message from Butler asking the recipient to vote for him; also, because Butler's signature had to be in the same handwriting as that of the addressee. Working all weekend, therefore, Fedder's staff was able to finish only 11,000 cards.

Finally, on Sunday midnight, Nov. 5, McCarthy's chief investigator, Don Surine, with two other burly young men, invited Fedder for a ride in their automobile. The ride started at about 12:30 a. m., and did not end until 6 a. m. During it, the three men put Fedder, a pudgy middle-aged man of about 5 feet 2, through a virtual third degree. What they wanted was the letter of guarantee previously given him by Candidate Butler.

McCarthy's strong-arm man, Surine, did most of the talking.

"We're not going to hurt you," he told the little Baltimore printer, "but where I come from your kind wouldn't get back alive."

"We could give you a nice Senate investigation," Surine also threatened. "Sen. McCarthy is good at that."

"If I had the letter of guarantee I'm scared enough so I'd give it to you. But it's at my lawyers. If you want it, get it from him."

Fedder begged all night to be allowed to go home. Finally, at 6 a. m., after signing a letter admitting that he had been late in printing certain literature and "volunteering" to make a contribution to the Butler campaign, Fedder was turned loose. The letter they demanded, which might have hooked Butler with responsibility for the fake Browder-Tydings picture, remained with Fedder's attorney. It is now in the hands of the Gillette committee.

City Generously Helps Christmas Fire Victims

Red Cross workers yesterday still were sorting clothing, food and furniture received by the local chapter in a generous response by the city of Cumberland to the appeal for help for the families left homeless in the disastrous Christmas night fire on Wineow Street.

Mrs. Lee W. Witherup, executive secretary of Allegany Chapter, American Red Cross, issued the urgent appeal for housing for the families left homeless by the fire. The immediate need is for rooms for the Carl Meade family of 17.

The disaster unit of the Red Cross and Mrs. Witherup worked until almost midnight Tuesday night picking up contributions.

One Baltimore Street merchant, gave generously of clothing, and another merchant sent pastries, bread and cookies. Some money and toys were also received.

Mrs. Witherup said there is enough household goods, clothing and food on hand to provide for the 34 people on the Red Cross list of victims.

Some of them, she said, did not want help beyond clothing suitable for them to return to work.

"They wanted to help themselves," she added.

The Meade family including children and grandchildren, which has been housed in the I. B. P. O. E. W. No. 173 home on Harrison Street, spent its second day there yesterday.

Small amounts of money were included in the contributions made after the Red Cross appeal yesterday. Beds, mattresses, new and almost new additional articles of furniture were placed at the families' disposal. A heating unit also was found among the stockpile.

Mrs. Witherup said a few small contributions also were made for the 15 persons left homeless Christmas eve at Lonaconing when fire leveled a two family dwelling. No one was hurt at this fire.

Another family of 12 is being cared for by relatives, she said, and individuals left homeless by the fire have found rooms in boarding houses.

City Generously Helps Christmas Fire Victims

Red Cross workers yesterday still were sorting clothing, food and furniture received by the local chapter in a generous response by the city of Cumberland to the appeal for help for the families left homeless in the disastrous Christmas night fire on Wineow Street.

Mrs. Lee W. Witherup, executive secretary of Allegany Chapter, American Red Cross, issued the urgent appeal for housing for the families left homeless by the fire. The immediate need is for rooms for the Carl Meade family of 17.

The disaster unit of the Red Cross and Mrs. Witherup worked until almost midnight Tuesday night picking up contributions.

One Baltimore Street merchant, gave generously of clothing, and another merchant sent pastries, bread and cookies. Some money and toys were also received.

Mrs. Witherup said there is enough household goods, clothing and food on hand to provide for the 34 people on the Red Cross list of victims.

Some of them, she said, did not want help beyond clothing suitable for them to return to work.

"They wanted to help themselves," she added.

The Meade family including children and grandchildren, which has been housed in the I. B. P. O. E. W. No. 173 home on Harrison Street, spent its second day there yesterday.

Small amounts of money were included in the contributions made after the Red Cross appeal yesterday. Beds, mattresses, new and almost new additional articles of furniture were placed at the families' disposal. A heating unit also was found among the stockpile.

Mrs. Witherup said a few small contributions also were made for the 15 persons left homeless Christmas eve at Lonaconing when fire leveled a two family dwelling. No one was hurt at this fire.

Another family of 12 is being cared for by relatives, she said, and individuals left homeless by the fire have found rooms in boarding houses.

Doomed Negro Takes Own Life

BALTIMORE, Dec. 27 (AP)—Edward L. Grear had been in a death cell at the Maryland penitentiary for 18 months while the wheels of justice ground over his conviction of killing a policeman.

Last evening, the prison radio reported Gov. Lane had signed a death warrant and set the execution for Jan. 27. Grear heard the broadcast.

This morning, the 45-year-old negro was found dead in his cell. He had slashed his throat with half a razor blade.

It was the same way another police killer, Roy Arnold Woods, had committed suicide on July 7, 1949, a few hours before he was to be hanged. Grear had been in the death house two weeks then.

Warden Edwin Swenson insisted there was no connection and that the half blades used by the two men were of different make.

Grear was sentenced to die for the fatal shooting of Patrolman John Arnold on Dec. 12, 1948.

Quadruple Amputee Arrives In Washington

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP)—Pfc. Robert Smith, who is an "ideal patient" although he lost parts of all four limbs through frostbite in Korea, arrived here tonight in a stretcher on an Air Force plane.

When Capt. William Lookadoo, public information officer at Bolling Air Force base, told him his mother is flying to Washington tomorrow to see him, the 20-year-old soldier smiled and said:

"It's a great surprise."

It was Lt. Bernadette Fahrekopf, a nurse aboard a four-engined hospital plane that flew him across the continent, who described him as an ideal patient.

Studebaker Cutback

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 27 (AP) — Studebaker Corp., announced today a 20 per cent cutback in passenger car and truck production next month.

Mrs. Torresola Freed

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP) — Mrs. Carmen Torresola, widow of one of the two Puerto Rican nationalists who attempted to slap President Truman, was ordered freed in the case today because the U. S. attorney's office was unable to produce competent evidence against her.

Pearson Reveals

it had better be mailed right away.

Next day Sen. McCarthy's secretary, Miss Kerr, came to Baltimore, and handed Fedder checks totalling $2,400, plus $20 in cash

Simultaneously, Butler himself handed Fedder a check for $5,000 signed by Ruth McCormick Miller, publisher of the Washington Times-Herald and niece of Col. Robert McCormick. The check had been endorsed by Butler over to Fedder.

Butler also gave Fedder a letter of guarantee, promising that he personally would pay all expenses incurred.

One of the checks Fedder received was for $1,000 from Sen. Owen Brewster of Maine.

Following this, the leaflets featuring the fake Tydings-Browder picture were mailed.

Following this, on Saturday, Nov. 5—just three days before election—Fedder was asked by Sen. McCarthy's office to help address 50,000 post cards. How McCarthy, supposed to be interested in Wisconsin politics, happened to be handling post cards, campaign contributions and fake Browder pictures for a candidate in Maryland has never been explained.

However, Fedder put a crew of girls to work addressing post cards —a tedious job because the cards featured an alleged personal message from Butler asking the recipient to vote for him; also, because Butler's signature had to be in the same handwriting as that of the addressee. Working all weekend, therefore, Fedder's staff was able to finish only 11,000 cards.

AIRMAN — Pvt. William B. Hughes, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hughes, 312 Independence Street, has completed his basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas.

Finally, on Sunday midnight, Nov. 5, McCarthy's chief investigator, Don Surine, with two other burly young men, invited Fedder for a ride in their automobile. The ride started at about 12:30 a. m., and did not end until 6 a. m. During it, the three men put Fedder, a pudgy middle-aged man of about 5 feet 2, through a virtual third degree. What they wanted was the letter of guarantee previously given him by Candidate Butler.

McCarthy's strong-arm man, Surine, did most of the talking.

"We're not going to hurt you," he told the little Baltimore printer, "but where I come from your kind wouldn't get back alive.".

"We could give you a nice Senate investigation," Surine also threatened. "Sen. McCarthy is good at that."

"If I had the letter of guarantee I'm scared enough so I'd give it to you. But it's at my lawyers. If you want it, get it from him."

Fedder begged all night to be allowed to go home. Finally, at 6 a. m., after signing a letter admitting that he had been late in printing certain literature and "volunteering" to make a contribution to the Butler campaign, Fedder was turned loose. The letter they demanded, which might have hooked Butler with responsibility for the fake Browder-Tydings picture, remained with Fedder's attorney. It is now in the hands of the Gillette committee.

City Generously Helps Christmas Fire Victims

Red Cross workers yesterday still were sorting clothing, food and furniture received by the local chapter in a generous response by the city of Cumberland to the appeal for help for the families left homeless in the disastrous Christmas night fire on Wineow Street.

Mrs. Lee W. Witherup, executive secretary of Allegany Chapter, American Red Cross, issued the urgent appeal for housing for the families left homeless by the fire. The immediate need is for rooms for the Carl Meade family of 17.

Mrs. Witherup said there is enough household goods, clothing and food on hand to provide for the 34 people on the Red Cross list of victims.

Some of them, she said, did not want help beyond clothing suitable for them to return to work.

"They wanted to help themselves," she added.

The Meade family including children and grandchildren, which has been housed in the I. B. P. O. E. W. No. 173 home on Harrison Street, spent its second day there yesterday.

Small amounts of money were included in the contributions made after the Red Cross appeal yesterday. Beds, mattresses, new and almost new additional articles of furniture were placed at the families' disposal. A heating unit also was found among the stockpile.

Mrs. Witherup said a few small contributions also were made for the 15 persons left homeless Christmas eve at Lonaconing when fire leveled a two family dwelling. No one was hurt at this fire.

Another family of 12 is being cared for by relatives, she said, and individuals left homeless by the fire have found rooms in boarding houses.

Entertain Students

The Sisters of Allegany Hospital entertained with a Christmas party for all the student nurses recently in the nurses' home. Preceding the party, the pre-clinical students sang carols throughout the hospital.

Entertainment featured "The Story of Christmas," presented by the Intermediates, class of 1952. The scene was a living room with young girls trimming a tree, wrapping packages and singing carols as they worked. Wondering about how the Christmas tree tradition began, one of them told the story of the "First Christmas Tree," introduced in Germany by Saint Boniface. When their mother came into the room, they sang more carols after which she read to them the story of "The Little Guest," which was pantomined as she read. The play ended with the singing of "Silent Night."

Characters were the mother, portrayed by Miss Frances Woods; the daughters, Miss Frances Campbell, Miss Mary Jane Emory, Miss Margaret Nies, Miss Doris O'Rourke, Miss Elizabeth Rice and Miss Beverly Turner.

Miss Margaret Hollar and Miss Jean Marker played the piano; Miss Susan Vachon told the story of the "Fir Tree," and the "Christmas Story" was pantomined by Miss Barbara Brown as Sister Angelia; Miss Anna Lee Rexroad, Louise; Miss Madeline Cooper, Miss Christine Joyce, Miss Margaret McGowan, Miss Elaine Rogers and Miss Juanita Shirley, boarding school girls, and Dorothy Malamphy, the angel.

Gifts and candy were distributed and a surprise jingle was given by the Allegany Hospital Nurses Alumnae Association. Concluding the party refreshments were served.

Aid From Necessity

Present and impending shortages of the things from which television sets are made led to the proposal that the manufacture of color television receivers be postponed as a war measure. This would postpone also the establishment of color television broadcasting.

The idea was brought forth by a group of wholesalers in the field of radio, television and household appliances. Hence it may be presumed that a need of the hour was seized on to lend force to a desire which already existed. Television distributors, at all levels, have had an understandable fear of being caught in the middle of the color controversy. The color system which has won Federal Communications Commission approval is not acceptable to the manufacturing and broadcasting industries in general. On this account all kinds of market uncertainties have been anticipated for the start of color broadcasting and the introduction of color receivers.

Whether by edict, general agreement or simple circumstance, color television for public consumption may well be held up until the period of crisis is past. Since research doubtless could go on, this might allow time for a conclusive settlement, one way or another, of the contention that a more suitable color system is feasible and probable. Thus would television have made capital or a notion which clearly intrigued Chaucer and has won attention from many other notable thinkers, that virtue is readily to be found in necessity.

More War In Indo-China

The imminent conquest of Vietnam is not enough for Ho Chi Minh, the Communist leader who is proving something of a match for the French. He now announces his intention to "liberate" Laos and Cambodia, the other two states which, with Vietnam, make up French Indochina. "Liberate" in his language, as in that of other Communists, means "to conquer and enslave."

He may have a little harder time of it than he has had in Vietnam. The Laotians and Cambodians are of different races from the Vietnamese, who are Mongolians, like the Chinese. The Cambodians or Khmers are part Malay, part Mongolian and part Aryan. The Laotians belong to the Thai race, whose chief representatives are the Siamese. The three differ in religion also. The Vietnamese learned classes are Confucians and the mass of the people are nature-worshippers. The Laotians and Cambodians are Buddhist. These differences make it likely that the population will look askance at Ho's army, whereas in Vietnam many of the people have helped it.

The one thing which seems clear is that the French, who at best have only held their own in Vietnam, are hardly prepared for a new war.

Sad Commentary

Obviously it would not have been necessary to impose all-out controls on the American people if the government had operated fiscally as it should have in the past five years.

Washington has been wasting the taxpayers' money on boondoggling and gadgets, many of them for vote-getting purposes. The government has popped off a lot of money abroad. As a result, in a period of peak prosperity budgets have been unbalanced, deficit financing has occurred and new money has been created so rapidly that the tremendous output of consumer goods couldn't keep the pace. Prices have been going up and wages have more than kept pace. This created the inflationary spiral.

Now, although the nation is just starting an all-out defense, full controls are deemed necessary to try to head off ruinous inflation.

It is a sad commentary on the capacity for government of the people that at a time when the national income exceeds $250,000,000,000 a year, the nation cannot find $2,000,000 000 a month for military rebuilding without putting the whole country to the strain of full government controls.

Youth And Security

"Adult leadership of this country can offer you no security in a world that is insecure." In these frank terms Warren R. Austin addressed the nation's young people in a recent speech before a group of their representatives in New York.

Urging them to fight cynicism and materialism, Austin went on to say that this is a spiritual task and involves active affiliation with religious organizations. He also recommended the building up of physical strength for the tasks these young people will be called on to face. Discrimination against minority groups was pointed out as a weakness which must be overcome.

That in the past our young people have led oversheltered lives and have matured late is a charge which has been frequently heard. If this be true, it is definitely time for a change. A youth who fights for his country must assume manhood if he is to survive, and his sister who must take his place in industry or in civilian defense must also attain maturity swiftly if she is to be of any use. Maturity is needed to settle problems without fighting, too. The only security in prospect for today's youth is that which they earn for themselves.

Explaining The Chinese

The brashness of Gen. Wu Hsiu Chuan before the United Nations meeting at Lake Success may be due in part to the fact that this is the first international battle, let alone war, that China has won in its own name alone in at least 150 years. Not since the Manchu emperor Kien-lung in the latter half of the 18th century has China had an army regarded as a force in the world. Its weakness was first revealed in the Japanese war of 1894-5, which Japan won about as she pleased. No individual successes of importance were achieved by the Chinese in combatting the Japanese in the recent war. It was the weight of the population's number that constituted the chief Japanese military problem.

Perhaps if the United States had just now won its first victory in over 150 years we too might feel a certain intoxication, and might be tempted to talk insolently to other nations. Not that we approve insolence—but that it is always well to study the causes of action.

The art of baking is unknown in Korea, one dispatch reports. That's nothing—there are plenty of American kitchens in which it is also a stranger.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Eczema Means Allergy

INFANTILE ECZEMA is a vexing problem to all concerned. The rash is unsightly and in this respect is disturbing to the parents, and it is irritating to the tot who tries to scratch it day and night. The physician also is bothered because the condition is allergic in nature and the cause often is hard to track down. Fortunately, this type of eczema usually disappears by the time the tike is 3 years old. It also is encouraging to know that scars or permanent disfigurements seldom occur.

Most victims are found to be sensitive to food. The most common offenders are milk, eggs, and wheat. When cow's milk is the culprit, goat, soybean, almond, or vegetable milk may be substituted.

But care must be taken not to neglect the health of the youngster. He should not be deprived of various foods just because he scratches or has a minor skin eruption. Good judgment is required and the pros and cons of the diet ought to be analyzed carefully. Unless nutrition is adequate to maintain good health and promote growth, rickets or scurvy may ensue. We feel certain that parents prefer a skin outbreak eruption to these deficiency diseases.

Altho food is the most common allergic irritant, additional possibilities must be considered. Stuffed toys as well as wool, silk, and other cloth may be culprits. When the playthings are implicated, wood or plastic toys can be substituted. Pets must never be allowed in the house even tho the tike is not sensitive to animals. Infantile eczema demonstrates that the child was born with an allergic trait which means that later he might develop other allergies such as hives, hay fever, asthma, migraine, or rhinitis. The more contact he has with potential offenders the sooner he becomes sensitive. While there is a good chance that allergy to dog and cat dander will occur in the future, the process need not be hastened.

Treating the rash locally may have no effect so long as the origin is not taken into consideration. Neighborhood cure-als are not advised; they help occasionally but more often aggravate the condition. Furthermore, it is not advisable to use products or procedures that might lead to permanent damage of the skin. After all, time may take care of the disorder; in many it ultimately fades away.

Smallpox vaccination should not be done during the acute stage of eczema because a serious reaction may follow. This is not true, however, of "shots" against diphtheria, whooping cough, and tetanus. Children with eczema may be unusually sensitive to insect bites; large welts appear on the skin whenever they are bitten by a mosquito, ant, or bee. When the youngster obviously is uncomfortable, the application of one of the antihistaminic creams to the skin often gives relief; otherwise the physician may have to administer an injection of adrenalin.

Allergic youngsters frequently are spoiled or pampered. They should be given love and affection without being made aware of the unsightly rash or that they are different from other children. Unless care is taken in this respect, psychological changes are likely to occur. [Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet offering additional suggestions on eczema.]

SMOKING AND ULCERS

W. O. writes: Will smoking on an empty stomach cause my boy friend to get ulcers?

REPLY

I doubt it, even though the cause of ulcer is not known definitely. There are ulcer victims among nonsmokers as well as smokers, even those who never took a puff before breakfast. This in itself should demonstrate that other origins of the lesions are more likely.

PNEUMONIA ADDICT

L. M. writes: What's the matter with a man who develops pneumonia every year? This is the fourth time.

REPLY

His body resistance may be low or his lungs "weakened" to such an extent by a mild infection as to make him more susceptible to the disease. Another possibility is that he is negligent and does not take care of his colds. He may benefit from a winter vacation and a change in his living habits.

BULBAR PALSY

L. N. writes: What is meant by bulbar paralysis?

REPLY

This refers to a brain lesion that produces paralysis of the muscles of the tongue, throat, and larynx. It may be caused by apoplexy, tumor, or infection such as polio. Most victims have difficulty in talking and swallowing. Because the soft palate is involved, there is a tendency to regurgitate food thru the nose. Emotional changes also occur and many patients laugh and cry alternately.

General Chennault Fights Communism; Who'd Be Shot First By Reds; Greatest Need Is To Bring British, Americans Together

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Claire Chennault, a big leathery man who speaks with a gruff intensity, has a plan for starting fires against Stalinism in Asia.

The famous Flying Tiger general who fought with the Chinese Nationalists has been pounding on doors in Washington and saying: "Let's arm the hatred against Russia which is spreading across China. The greatest fear of the Communist is of the guerrillas — a million of whom hold great pockets on the mainland. We should drop weapons to them, and smuggle munitions across the borders."

"The spirit of revolt is so strong in China today," says Chennault, "that Communist members don't dare go out alone for fear of being ambushed. The Communists control only the cities, the rail centers and the ports. The best troops are engaged in Korea, Tibet and along the Indo-Chinese border. But the guerrillas have only the arms they can steal. If we give them help, they can take the pressure off Korea."

According to the intelligence slipped out of China to General Chennault, this is the picture on the Chinese mainland:

Mao Tse-Tung, the titular boss of Red China, is acting as a moderator between quarreling Communist war lords and pressure from Moscow.

The general in command of Chinese troops fighting in Korea, Lin Piao, is Russian-trained and violently pro-Soviet. When the Kremlin strategy switched this spring, away from the conquest of Hong Kong, Lin Piao moved his 350,000 troops north to Manchuria.

"Silver Bullets"

Protecting the Chinese coastal area in the south, he left playboy Gen. Chen Yi, who has 500,000 troops stretched from Shanghai to Canton. General Chen, noted for his concubines and his drunken parties in Shanghai, has been bitterly accused by General Lin of being a "bad Communist."

Once a Kuomintang leader, General Chen has been susceptible to "silver bullets" in the past, might be so again.

In contrast, General Li Po-Chen, the one-eyed Communist war lord directing the invasion of Tibet, is loyal to Moscow.

However, a number of anti-Communist leaders, not tied up with Chiang Kai-Shek, are available to foment revolt, according to Chennault. Ma Pu-Fang, a Moslem, is now in Cairo asking help from Arab nations. He was the governor of a vast area bordering Tibet and could be a rallying figure for the 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 Chinese Moslems. Ma Hung-Kwei, the ex-governor of Ningshia, is in San Francisco, and Chang Fa-Kwei, a leader of the Cantonese, is in Hong Kong.

General Chennault proposes that the United States arm and supervise the guerrilas through a military mission headed by Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commander of American troops in China during World War II. He also recommends giving the Nationalist forces in Formosa modern planes for raiding the mainland.

"If this is done," says the Flying Tiger, "China will become a flaming hell for the Communists. They won't be able to conquer Korea for putting out fires at home."

Who The Russians Would Shoot

After all the brickbats Congressional Republicans have been tossing at Secretary of State Dean Acheson, it was like sweet music to President Truman when retiring Congressman Andy Biemiller, Wisconsin Democrat, told him:

"Mr. President, you showed a lot of spunk by sticking up for Acheson. What many of his critics don't seem to realize is that Acheson is one of the first Americans the Russians would like to shoot. He's the chief engineer of our anti-Soviet policies."

Truman appeared slightly startled, but agreed with Biemiller that a liberal, middle-of-the-road program was what the Russians feared most.

Anglo-American Relations

Kenneth Lindsay, a plain-talking British Labor member of Parliament, was talking to a small group at the home of Arthur Goldsmith, when Town-Hall-of-the-Air Moderator George V. Denny asked: "What does Britain feel about the Far Eastern war?"

"I have crossed the ocean many times between England and America, but this is the first time I felt I entered a strange world," commented the member of Parliament. "I can tell you we have no intention to back the befuddled, dangerous policy of General MacArthur. We have no intention of losing thousands of casualties on Chinese soil. We consider MacArthur a stooge of Chiang Kai-Shek. And I speak not just for myself, but for members of both Labor and Conservative parties. We do not want the Korean war to become an Asian war."

One guest countered that British coolness toward Chiang Kai-Shek was part of a play to keep the Communists from taking Hong Kong.

"We know we cannot hold Hong Kong," replied Lindsay, "but we do have great fear for Malaya. If we lose Malaya, we lose the sterling bloc. And there is no better way to lose Malaya than to go to war in China."

"Our greatest need today," Lindsay emphasized, "is to bring the American and British peoples together."

War Notes

General MacArthur has sent a new and lengthy cable to Defense Secretary Marshall pleading for permission to create a new Japanese army. MacArthur says the Chinese Communist attack on Korea makes it imperative to rearm Japan and forget about all American plans to keep the Japanese permanently demilitarized. Unless his advice is accepted promptly, the General says he will not be responsible for the consequences in the Far East. . . The same day that the first Russian jet fighter showed up in North Korea, General Vandenberg, the Air Force Chief of Staff, picked up the phone and ordered several squadrons of our fastest jets to Korea at once. He didn't waste a minute. . . . The man directing all Chinese military moves is Georgi Malenkov, one of Stalin's top deputies. In brief, the Kremlin pulls the strings, and the Chinese people go into battle. . . . The savage guerrilla attacks being launched against our rear bases and supply lines continue the Number 1 worry of our military men. . . . One of the most effective propaganda weapons the Communists are using in Asia is the story that American democracy doesn't apply to Asiatics. Nonetheless, Congress is delaying a bill that would give aged Japanese-Americans and Korean immigrants the right to die as American citizens. Some are parents of Nisei heroes who fought with the famed 442nd infantry team, most decorated outfit of the last war. Rep. Francis Walter (Pa.) forced the bill through the House, giving them U. S. citizenship, but it's now buried in the Senate. . . . The Communists are finding some resistance to drafting Chinese to fight for Stalin. Intelligence reports say a Chinese regiment of so-called volunteers to fight in Indo-China revolted north of Canton on December 2.

MATTER OF FACT

Christmas In America

WASHINGTON

CHRISTMAS TIME is a good time to think about the American responsibility. At this time, nineteen and a half centuries ago, a light was lighted in a humble cow-byre that still shines over the whole world, calling all men to mercifulness and goodness of heart. And now, in our own time, almost the whole duty of preventing that light from being put out forever rests upon the people of these United States.

If we do not acquit ourselves bravely and well, the new god-state will triumph in the world. This is a deity merciless as Moloch, served by a grim priesthood, buttressed on a bleak theology, tolerating no competing thought or worship to district the minds of men from their harsh labors as state-slaves. Even today, the final crisis in the vast struggle between this new god-state and the free part of the world is rushing down upon us with gathering speed.

It is a curious reflection that if we in America fail now, the generation now being born will be the last trained in the Christian ethic, knowing the Christian story. To re-make the past in its own ruthless image, is one of the tasks the god-state confers upon its priests. And if we now fail, the last, dim, precious memory will be fading from the last poor, once-free mind, just two millenia after Herod was troubled, and the shepherds saw the Star, and the Three Kings of the East made their hard, cold journey. After 2,000 years, all will be darkness then, and the night of the soul, and the silence broken only by the crack of the lash.

Such is the future that menaces our children, and our children's children. One has seen that future already, in the chilly glitter of fear in the eye of a man, once brave, now wholly cowed, in Prague; in the children waiting to prostitute themselves for some synthetic nastiness that will fill their poor bellies, outside the tawdry foodstore for party members in Leipzig; in the naked terror of the broken-bodied, half-crazed wretch who escaped from the secret police in Berlin. Those who have seen and understood that future all answer: "America cannot fail."

What has happened to America, one asks oneself, listening to the craven voices, the squalid little men who would throw away the future for an hour's partisan success, the trembling grave-diggers of freedom who would betray mankind for two more years' low taxes. And then one remembers what America is, and takes heart again.

The great land of broad valleys and proud mountains; the land's fat farms, its industry of infinite variety, its rich cities reaching towards the sky; the good life of this land, kindly, easy, pleasant and warm—all these flash through the mind. The great past rises up, the first comers clearing the forests to live a free life, the nation begotten of a passion for freedom, its men fighting for freedom, its freedom beckoning millions to these shores. And then one sees, like a procession in the mind, the people of this land, children of latecomer and children of the old stock, poor and rich, worker and farmer, Northerner and Southerner and men of the Western plains, every man differing from his neighbor, yet all one people, bold, ingenuous, brave and free.

This is not the land, these are not the people, to heed the craven voices, to say farewell to all their greatness, to surrender and submit. All the clanking apparatus of an iron empire, all its many millions of slaves in uniform, all its menaces and threats, will not overwhelm this land or terrify these people. Americans have fought before; they will fight again, that freedom, and mercifulness and goodness of heart shall not perish from the face of the earth. It is meet, right and our bounden duty so to do, as the communion service says; and we shall do it, and we shall win.

Let the American who doubts America come forward and say so in plain words; he will soon hear his answer. Let the American who would surrender speak his wish in clear language; he will soon receive his punishment. In the present interlude of turmoil and confusion, these men may safely speak with concealed meanings. But in the testing time ahead, they will be shouted down.

In every contest between slave state and free, the freemen begin with disadvantages, and the defeatists mumble. But when this nation is united by a common peril and a common faith, while it may lose the first battle, no power on earth can keep us from victory in the end.

U. S. Military Decisions Carry Many Implications

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 — Big decisions are in the making. They concern international policy, but they grow out of military developments.

Thus the decision to stay in Korea and fight it out with the Chinese Communists comes to the public only this week with the completion of the withdrawal by sea from northeastern Korea. But the orders to fight it out were issued many days ago. Such a mammoth operation could not have been undertaken without planning in minute detail for sea transportation to a definite destination — Pusan.

The decision to battle it out with the Chinese Communists along a defensive line, which it is now believed can be safely stabilized in Southern Korea, is one way to answer the defiant broadcasts from Peiping. The reorganized UN forces could in time influence the Communists to reconsider their arrogant attitude toward a cease-fire arrangement.

With an army of 250,000 men, the United Nations should be able to stand off a force of between 500,000 and 750,000 of the enemy. This ratio of one-to-two or one-to-three over an offensive army is based on the theory that a well-equipped defensive army has that sort of advantage in holding a line, especially when possessing superior air power and more ground artillery.

The determination to stay in Korea has many implications in the overall sense. It means that Soviet Russia now cannot transfer her military strength to Europe from the Far East but must keep that area supplied with munitions and manpower. The notion that America was ready to permit Moscow to concentrate her strength in Europe and be spared harassment along a potential second front in Siberia vanishes now with the plans to carry on indefinitely a sea and air war and a limited ground war in the Far East.

Incidentally, it is a matter of much surprise here to read how many comments there have been in recent weeks from uniformed quarters concerning the possibility of a ground war between America and Communist China. The vociferous denunciation of such a possible course arouses curiosity as to how the absurd suggestion gained credence. For at no time has it been part of American Military planning. If a limited war with Communist China became necessary, it was always the thought here that it should be carried on by sea and by air, with moral support to all non-Communist armies on the Asiatic mainland, irrespective of their nationality. European apprehensions that American manpower would become bogged down on the mainland of China are baseless.

So far as American commitments in the Far East are concerned, even 500,000 is not too big a number to use, though half that amount seems to be what will be needed for the limited war unless Russia intervenes actively there.

The plan for Europe, on the other, hand, envisages an international for of many millions of men. The bulk of the manpower will have to come from European countries themselves. In this respect the Hoover and Dewey speeches, plus the restrained comments of Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, will certainly serve notice on Europe that American public opinion is anxiously watching to see how soon the other UN members will wake up to their responsibility to furnish a substantial share of the manpower.

The Far Eastern war and its requirements need give Europeans little worry as to the flow of military aid to them. Lessons are being learned in the Far East which will be of inestimable value everywhere to the armed services of the United States. Korea has become a training school for officers in our ground armies and also for our air force squadrons. It has limbered up our entire sea transportation scheme and brought out of mothballs both planes and ships that would otherwise not have come into operation so soon. Some area-saturation bombing may be seen soon that will be helpful experiences for other possible war zones.

The world should get some real reassurance about the redeployment of our forces in Korea. It shows that the United States isn't accepting "defeat" but is merely digging in for further operations in the same area and will not be satisfied till the enemy calls for "cease fire" on terms that do not compromise the American position. The experience in 1941 is being repeated. The build-up that comes after a serious reverse is even more powerful and more rapid than might otherwise have been the case. The end result —victory—will come, though it takes months of relatively slow operations. Out of Pearl Harbor and Bataan came Midway, Guadalcanal, Leyte, and Okinawa. The victory timetable is sometimes slow but time and American resources do overcome earlier reverses.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Old Men

THOMAS C. Desmond, chairman of the New York State Joint Legislative Committee on Problems of the Aging, has for many years been devoting himself to the problem of old men and women.

There are more of them in these days than there used to be. They are not only healthier but quicker than old men and women used to be. They are stronger not only in body but in mind.

Of course, everybody admits that about such publicized human beings as Herbert Hoover, Bernard Baruch, William Randolph Hearst, Jesse Jones, Thomas Watson and many others. But simple men and women, not so well known, show exactly the same characteristics.

Back in 1900, the life expectancy of a man was 48 years; today it is 66 years. In 1900, women had an expectancy of 51 years; today, it is 71 years. In 1900, there were 13,500,000 men and women 45 years of age and over; today that segment of the population amounts to 42,500,000. That is a large slice out of 150,000,000 population.

If all those who are 50 and over are to have no work because they are too old, we are bound to have a labor shortage, with an enormous number of useful, competent, able persons twiddling their thumbs, living on pensions and social security. Instead of being useful, such so-called aged persons, whose experience is invaluable, would be living on the rest of the population. Businesses which refuse to give jobs to such men and women are doing themselves and the country infinite mischief.

Senator Desmond writes:

"Continual rebuffs may have brought you to the point where you feel that you are not, in fact, a qualified worker. As an individual, maybe yes and maybe no. But a number of studies show that mature workers, as a group, make good employes. When compared with younger workers, they are as productive, their attendance record is better, they are as efficient, more attentive more conscientious, less likely to be injured, and they cut down on labor turn-over. In addition, they offer the great benefit of their experience in working with other people and in knowing the conditions and the attitudes of work."

It would seem to be ridiculous for us to prolong life, to keen the heart strong, the arteries soft, the pancreas working and all that, and then to bring disaster to the lives of oldsters by telling them that they are too old, that they are being pushed aside to make room for others whose only superiority is that they were born later.

That does not mean that youth has no value. It does mean that experience, like aging of wine, has a value all its own. That is why men like Herbert Hoover and Bernard Baruch are not swept off their feet by popular slogans and the fierce fire of press agents who create what they call public opinion. Half a century of experience is a tool. It is a tool for which there is no substitute.

England sees that in the person of Winston Churchill. He stands like a Gibraltar against the socialistic leaders who frighten so easily. Churchill does not frighten. He has seen too much of life, four wars, the Boer War, World War I and World War II and now World War III. He has made frightful mistakes, particularly at Teheran and Yalta, but he knows what happens when great nations make historic mistakes: they can never be corrected. It takes a lot of experience to know that. It takes experience for a statesman to know that covering up mistakes does not keep them covered up.

Before we throw our men over 45 or over 50 or over 60 into the discard, we need to readjust our minds to the fact old age is not to be measured by the calendar; it is to be measured by quickness of response, mental flexibility, wisdom, experience, capacity. The old cabinet maker, the old tool maker, the old all-round mechanic is still a valuable citizen, whatever his age.

Perhaps this is a good week for everybody to think about that, for, if we are to send our youth to war, we must keep our labor force effective by using all who can do the work of this nation without regard to years.

Aid From Necessity

Present and impending shortages of the things from which television sets are made led to the proposal that the manufacture of color television receivers be postponed as a war measure. This would postpone also the establishment of color television broadcasting.

The idea was brought forth by a group of wholesalers in the field of radio, television and household appliances. Hence it may be presumed that a need of the hour was seized on to lend force to a desire which already existed. Television distributors, at all levels, have had an understandable fear of being caught in the middle of the color controversy. The color system which has won Federal Communications Commission approval is not acceptable to the manufacturing and broadcasting industries in general. On this account all kinds of market uncertainties have been anticipated for the start of color broadcasting and the introduction of color receivers.

Whether by edict, general agreement or simple circumstance, color television for public consumption may well be held up until the period of crisis is past. Since research doubtless could go on, this might allow time for a conclusive settlement, one way or another, of the contention that a more suitable color system is feasible and probable. Thus would television have made capital or a notion which clearly intrigued Chaucer and has won attention from many other notable thinkers, that virtue is readily to be found in necessity.

More War In Indo-China

The imminent conquest of Vietnam is not enough for Ho Chi Minh, the Communist leader who is proving something of a match for the French. He now announces his intention to "liberate" Laos and Cambodia, the other two states which, with Vietnam, make up French Indochina. "Liberate" in his language, as in that of other Communists, means "to conquer and enslave."

He may have a little harder time of it than he has had in Vietnam. The Laotians and Cambodians are of different races from the Vietnamese, who are Mongolians, like the Chinese. The Cambodians or Khmers are part Malay, part Mongolian and part Aryan. The Laotians belong to the Thai race, whose chief representatives are the Siamese. The three differ in religion also. The Vietnamese learned classes are Confucians and the mass of the people are nature-worshippers. The Laotians and Cambodians are Buddhist. These differences make it likely that the population will look askance at Ho's army, whereas in Vietnam many of the people have helped it.

The one thing which seems clear is that the French, who at best have only held their own in Vietnam, are hardly prepared for a new war.

Sad Commentary

Obviously it would not have been necessary to impose all-out controls on the American people if the government had operated fiscally as it should have in the past five years.

Washington has been wasting the taxpayers' money on boondoggling and gadgets, many of them for vote-getting purposes. The government has popped off a lot of money abroad. As a result, in a period of peak prosperity budgets have been unbalanced, deficit financing has occurred and new money has been created so rapidly that the tremendous output of consumer goods couldn't keep the pace. Prices have been going up and wages have more than kept pace. This created the inflationary spiral.

Now, although the nation is just starting an all-out defense, full controls are deemed necessary to try to head off ruinous inflation.

It is a sad commentary on the capacity for government of the people that at a time when the national income exceeds $250,000,000,000 a year, the nation cannot find $2,000,000,000 a month for military rebuilding without putting the whole country to the strain of full government controls.

Youth And Security

"Adult leadership of this country can offer you no security in a world that is insecure." In these frank terms Warren R. Austin addressed the nation's young people in a recent speech before a group of their representatives in New York.

Urging them to fight cynicism and materialism, Austin went on to say that this is a spiritual task and involves active affiliation with religious organizations. He also recommended the building up of physical strength for the tasks these young people will be called on to face. Discrimination against minority groups was pointed out as a weakness which must be overcome.

That in the past our young people have led oversheltered lives and have matured late is a charge which has been frequently heard. If this be true, it is definitely time for a change. A youth who fights for his country must assume manhood if he is to survive, and his sister who must take his place in industry or in civilian defense must also attain maturity swiftly if she is to be of any use. Maturity is needed to settle problems without fighting, too. The only security in prospect for today's youth is that which they earn for themselves.

Explaining The Chinese

The brashness of Gen. Wu Hsiu Chuan before the United Nations meeting at Lake Success may be due in part to the fact that this is the first international battle, let alone war, that China has won in its own name alone in at least 150 years. Not since the Manchu emperor Kien-lung in the latter half of the 18th century has China had an army regarded as a force in the world. Its weakness was first revealed in the Japanese war of 1894-5, which Japan won about as she pleased. No individual successes of importance were achieved by the Chinese in combatting the Japanese in the recent war. It was the weight of the population's number that constituted the chief Japanese military problem.

Perhaps if the United States had just now won its first victory in over 150 years we too might feel a certain intoxication, and might be tempted to talk insolently to other nations. Not that we approve insolence—but that it is always well to study the causes of action.

The art of baking is unknown in Korea, one dispatch reports. That's nothing—there are plenty of American kitchens in which it is also a stranger.

Amateur photography is a fascinating hobby, but the best "shots" always appear after the last film has been exposed.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Eczema Means Allergy

INFANTILE ECZEMA is a vexing problem to all concerned. The rash is unsightly and in this respect is disturbing to the parents, and it is irritating to the tot who tries to scratch it day and night. The physician also is bothered because the condition is allergic in nature and the cause often is hard to track down. Fortunately, this type of eczema usually disappears by the time the tike is 3 years old. It also is encouraging to know that scars or permanent disfigurements seldom occur.

Most victims are found to be sensitive to food. The most common offenders are milk, eggs, and wheat. When cow's milk is the culprit, goat, soybean, almond, or vegetable milk may be substituted.

But care must be taken not to neglect the health of the youngster. He should not be deprived of various foods just because he scratches or has a minor skin eruption. Good judgment is required and the pros and cons of the diet ought to be analyzed carefully. Unless nutrition is adequate to maintain good health and promote growth, rickets or scurvy may ensue. We feel certain that parents prefer a skin outbreak eruption to these deficiency diseases.

Altho food is the most common allergic irritant, additional possibilities must be considered. Stuffed toys as well as wool, silk, and other cloth may be culprits. When the playthings are implicated, wood or plastic toys can be substituted. Pets must never be allowed in the house even tho the tike is not senstitive to animals. Infantile eczema demonstrates that the child was born with an allergic trait which means that later he might develop other allergies such as hives, hay fever, asthma, migraine, or rhinitis. The more contact he has with potential offenders the sooner he becomes sensitive. While there is a good chance that allergy to dog and cat dander will occur in the future, the process need not be hastened.

Treating the rash locally may have no effect so long as the origin is not taken into consideration. Neighborhood cure-als are not advised; they help occasionally but more often aggravate the condition. Furthermore, it is not advisable to use products or procedures that might lead to permanent damage of the skin. After all, time may take care of the disorder; in many it ultimately fades away.

Smallpox vaccination should not be done during the acute stage of eczema because a serious reaction may follow. This is not true, however, of "shots" against diphtheria, whooping cough, and tetanus. Children with eczema may be unusually sensitive to insect bites; large welts appear on the skin whenever they are bitten by a mosquito, ant, or bee. When the youngster obviously is uncomfortable, the application of one of the antihistaminic creams to the skin often gives relief; otherwise the physician may have to administer an injection of adrenalin.

Allergic youngsters frequently are spoiled or pampered. They should be given love and affection without being made aware of the unsightly rash or that they are different from other children. Unless care is taken in this respect, psychological changes are likely to occur. [Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet offering additional suggestions on eczema.]

SMOKING AND ULCERS

W. O. writes: Will smoking on an empty stomach cause my boy friend to get ulcers?

REPLY

I doubt it, even though the cause of ulcer is not known definitely. There are ulcer victims among nonsmokers as well as smokers, even those who never took a puff before breakfast. This in itself should demonstrate that other origins of the lesions are more likely.

PNEUMONIA ADDICT

L. M. writes: What's the matter with a man who develops pneumonia every year? This is the fourth time.

REPLY

His body resistance may be low or his lungs "weakened" to such an extent by a mild infection as to make him more susceptible to the disease. Another possibility is that he is negligent and does not take care of his colds. He may benefit from a winter vacation and a change in his living habits.

•—•—•

BULBAR PALSY

L. N. writes: What is meant by bulbar paralysis?

REPLY

This refers to a brain lesion that produces paralysis of the muscles of the tongue, throat, and larynx. It may be caused by apoplexy, tumor, or infection such as polio. Most victims have difficulty in talking and swallowing. Because the soft palate is involved, there is a tendency to regurgitate food thru the nose. Emotional changes also occur and many patients laugh and cry alternately.

REPLY

Yes, but only in a limited way.

General Chennault Fights Communism; Who'd Be Shot First By Reds; Greatest Need Is To Bring British, Americans Together

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Claire Chennault, a big leathery man who speaks with a gruff intensity, has a plan for starting fires against Stalinism in Asia.

The famous Flying Tiger general who fought with the Chinese Nationalists has been pounding on doors in Washington and saying: "Let's arm the hatred against Russia which is spreading across China. The greatest fear of the Communist is of the guerrillas — a million of whom hold great pockets on the mainland. We should drop weapons to them, and smuggle munitions across the borders."

"The spirit of revolt is so strong in China today," says Chennault, "that Communist members don't dare go out alone for fear of being ambushed. The Communists control only the cities, the rail centers and the ports. The best troops are engaged in Korea, Tibet and along the Indo-Chinese border. But the guerrillas have only the arms they can steal. If we give them help, they can take the pressure off Korea."

According to the intelligence slipped out of China to General Chennault, this is the picture on the Chinese mainland:

Mao Tse-Tung, the titular boss of Red China, is acting as a moderator between quarreling Communist war lords and pressure from Moscow.

The general in command of Chinese troops fighting in Korea, Lin Piao, is Russian-trained and violently pro-Soviet. When the Kremlin strategy switched this spring, away from the conquest of Hong Kong, Lin Piao moved his 350,000 troops north to Manchuria.

"Silver Bullets"

Protecting the Chinese coastal area in the south, he left playboy Gen. Chen Yi, who has 500,000 troops stretched from Shanghai to Canton. General Chen, noted for his concubines and his drunken parties in Shanghai, has been bitterly accused by General Lin of being a "bad Communist."

Once a Kuomintang leader, General Chen has been susceptible to "silver bullets" in the past, might be so again.

In contrast, General Li Po-Chen, the one-eyed Communist war lord directing the invasion of Tibet, is loyal to Moscow.

However, a number of anti-Communist leaders, not tied up with Chiang Kai-Shek, are available to foment revolt, according to Chennault. Ma Pu-Fang, a Moslem, is now in Cairo asking help from Arab nations. He was the governor of a vast area bordering Tibet and could be a rallying figure for the 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 Chinese Moslems. Ma Hung-Kwei, the ex-governor of Ningshia, is in San Francisco, and Chang Fa-Kwei, a leader of the Cantonese, is in Hong Kong.

General Chennault proposes that the United States arm and supervise the guerrilas through a military mission headed by Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commander of American troops in China during World War II. He also recommends giving the Nationalist forces in Formosa modern planes for raiding the mainland.

"If this is done," says the Flying Tiger, "China will become a flaming hell for the Communists. They won't be able to conquer Korea for putting out fires at home."

Who The Russians Would Shoot

After all the brickbats Congressional Republicans have been tossing at Secretary of State Dean Acheson, it was like sweet music to President Truman when retiring Congressman Andy Biemiller, Wisconsin Democrat, told him:

"Mr. President, you showed a lot of spunk by sticking up for Acheson. What many of his critics don't seem to realize is that Acheson is one of the first Americans the Russians would like to shoot. He's the chief engineer of our anti-Soviet policies."

Truman appeared slightly startled, but agreed with Biemiller that a liberal, middle-of-the-road program was what the Russians feared most.

Anglo-American Relations

Kenneth Lindsay, a plain-talking British Labor member of Parliament, was talking to a small group at the home of Arthur Goldsmith, when Town-Hall-of-the-Air Moderator George V. Denny asked: "What does Britain feel about the Far Eastern war?"

"I have crossed the ocean many times between England and America, but this is the first time I felt I entered a strange world," commented the member of Parliament. "I can tell you we have no intention to back the befuddled, dangerous policy of General MacArthur. We have no intention of losing thousands of casualties on Chinese soil. We consider MacArthur a stooge of Chiang Kai-Shek. And I speak not just for myself, but for members of both Labor and Conservative parties. We do not want the Korean war to become an Asian war."

One guest countered that British coolness toward Chiang Kai-Shek was part of a play to keep the Communists from taking Hong Kong.

"We know we cannot hold Hong Kong," replied Lindsay, "but we do have great fear for Malaya. If we lose Malaya, we lose the sterling bloc. And there is no better way to lose Malaya than to go to war in China."

"Our greatest need today," Lindsay emphasized, "is to bring the American and British peoples together."

War Notes

General MacArthur has sent a new and lengthy cable to Defense Secretary Marshall pleading for permission to create a new Japanese army. MacArthur says the Chinese Communist attack on Korea makes it imperative to rearm Japan and forget about all American plans to keep the Japanese permanently demilitarized. Unless his advice is accepted promptly, the General says he will not be responsible for the consequences in the Far East. . . The same day that the first Russian jet fighter showed up in North Korea, General Vandenberg, the Air Force Chief of Staff, picked up the phone and ordered several squadrons of our fastest jets to Korea at once. He didn't waste a minute. . . . The man directing all Chinese military moves is Georgi Malenkov, one of Stalin's top deputies. In brief, the Kremlin pulls the strings, and the Chinese people go into battle. . . . The savage guerrilla attacks being launched against our rear bases and supply lines continue the Number 1 worry of our military men. . . . One of the most effective propaganda weapons the Communists are using in Asia is the story that American democracy doesn't apply to Asiatics. Nonetheless, Congress is delaying a bill that would give aged Japanese-Americans and Korean immigrants the right to die as American citizens. Some are parents of Nisei heroes who fought with the famed 442nd infantry team, most decorated outfit of the last war. Rep. Francis Walter (Pa.) forced the bill through the House, giving them U. S. citizenship, but it's now buried in the Senate. . . . The Communists are finding some resistance to drafting Chinese to fight for Stalin. Intelligence reports say a Chinese regiment of so-called volunteers to fight in Indo-China revolted north of Canton on December 2.

MATTER OF FACT

WASHINGTON

CHRISTMAS TIME is a good time to think about the American responsibility. At this time, nineteen and a half centuries ago, a light was lighted in a humble cow-byre that still shines over the whole world, calling all men to mercifulness and goodness of heart. And now, in our own time, almost the whole duty of preventing that light from being put out forever rests upon the people of these United States.

If we do not acquit ourselves bravely and well, the new god-state will triumph in the world. This is a deity merciless as Moloch, served by a grim priesthood, buttressed on a bleak theology, tolerating no competing thought or worship to district the minds of men from their harsh labors as state-slaves. Even today, the final crisis in the vast struggle between this new god-state and the free part of the world is rushing down upon us with gathering speed.

It is a curious reflection that if we in America fail now, the generation now being born will be the last trained in the Christian ethic, knowing the Christian story. To re-make the past in its own ruthless image, is one of the tasks the god-state confers upon its priests. And if we now fail, the last, dim, precious memory will be fading from the last poor, once-free mind, just two millenia after Herod was troubled, and the shepherds saw the Star, and the Three Kings of the East made their hard, cold journey. After 2,000 years, all will be darkness then, and the night of the soul, and the silence broken only by the crack of the lash.

Such is the future that menaces our children, and our children's children. One has seen that future already, in the chilly glitter of fear in the eye of a man, once brave, now wholly cowed, in Prague; in the children waiting to prostitute themselves for some synthetic nastiness that will fill their poor bellies, outside the tawdry foodstore for party members in Leipzig; in the naked terror of the broken-bodied, half-crazed wretch who escaped from the secret police in Berlin. Those who have seen and understood that future all answer: "America cannot fail."

What has happened to America, one asks oneself, listening to the craven voices, the squalid little men who would throw away the future for an hour's partisan success, the trembling grave-diggers of freedom who would betray mankind for two more years' low taxes. And then one remembers what America is, and takes heart again.

The great land of broad valleys and proud mountains; the land's fat farms, its industry of infinite variety, its rich cities reaching towards the sky; the good life of this land, kindly, easy, pleasant and warm—all these flash through the mind. The great past rises up, the first comers clearing the forests to live a free life, the nation begotten of a passion for freedom, its men fighting for freedom, its freedom beckoning millions to these shores. And then one sees, like a procession in the mind, the people of this land, children of latecomer and children of the old stock, poor and rich, worker and farmer, Northerner and Southerner and men of the Western plains, every man differing from his neighbor, yet all one people, bold, ingenuous, brave and free.

This is not the land, these are not the people, to heed the craven voices, to say farewell to all their greatness, to surrender and submit. All the clanking apparatus of an iron empire, all its many millions of slaves in uniform, all its menaces and threats, will not overwhelm this land or terrify these people. Americans have fought before; they will fight again, that freedom, and mercifulness and goodness of heart shall not perish from the face of the earth. It is meet, right and our bounden duty so to do, as the communion service says; and we shall do it, and we shall win.

Let the American who doubts America come forward and say so in plain words; he will soon hear his answer. Let the American who would surrender speak his wish in clear language; he will soon receive his punishment. In the present interlude of turmoil and confusion, these men may safely speak with concealed meanings. But in the testing time ahead, they will be shouted down.

In every contest between slave state and free, the freemen begin with disadvantages, and the defeatists mumble. But when this nation is united by a common peril and a common faith, while it may lose the first battle, no power on earth can keep us from victory in the end.

U. S. Military Decisions Carry Many Implications

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 — Big decisions are in the making. They concern international policy, but they grow out of military developments.

Thus the decision to stay in Korea and fight it out with the Chinese Communists comes to the public only this week with the completion of the withdrawal by sea from northeastern Korea. But the orders to fight it out were issued many days ago. Such a mammoth operation could not have been undertaken without planning in minute detail for sea transportation to a definite destination — Pusan.

The decision to battle it out with the Chinese Communists along a defensive line, which it is now believed can be safely stabilized in Southern Korea, is one way to answer the defiant broadcasts from Peiping. The reorganized UN forces could in time influence the Communists to reconsider their arrogant attitude toward a cease-fire arrangement.

With an army of 250,000 men, the United Nations should be able to stand off a force of between 500,000 and 750,000 of the enemy. This ratio of one-to-two or one-to-three over an offensive army is based on the theory that a well-equipped defensive army has that sort of advantage in holding a line, especially when possessing superior air power and more ground artillery.

The determination to stay in Korea has many implications in the overall sense. It means that Soviet Russia now cannot transfer her military strength to Europe from the Far East but must keep that area supplied with munitions and manpower. The notion that America was ready to permit Moscow to concentrate her strength in Europe and be spared harassment along a potential second front in Siberia vanishes now with the plans to carry on indefinitely a sea and air war and a limited ground war in the Far East.

Incidentally, it is a matter of much surprise here to read how many comments there have been in recent weeks from uniformed quarters concerning the possibility of a ground war between America and Communist China. The vociferous denunciation of such a possible course arouses curiosity as to how the absurd suggestion gained credence. For at no time has it been part of American Military planning. If a limited war with Communist China became necessary, it was always the thought here that it should be carried on by sea and by air, with moral support to all non-Communist armies on the Asiatic mainland, irrespective of their nationality. European apprehensions that American manpower would become bogged down on the mainland of China are baseless.

So far as American commitments in the Far East are concerned, even 500,000 is not too big a number to use, though half that amount seems to be what will be needed for the limited war unless Russia intervenes actively there.

The plan for Europe, on the other, hand, envisages an international for of many millions of men. The bulk of the manpower will have to come from European countries themselves. In this respect the Hoover and Dewey speeches, plus the restrained comments of Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, will certainly serve notice on Europe that American public opinion is anxiously watching to see how soon the other UN members will wake up to their responsibility to furnish a substantial share of the manpower.

The Far Eastern war and its requirements need give Europeans little worry as to the flow of military aid to them. Lessons are being learned in the Far East which will be of inestimable value everywhere to the armed services of the United States. Korea has become a training school for officers in our ground armies and also for our air force squadrons. It has limbered up our entire sea transportation scheme and brought out of mothballs both planes and ships that would otherwise not have come into operation so soon. Some area-saturation bombing may be seen soon that will be helpful experiences for other possible war zones.

The world should get some real reassurance about the redeployment of our forces in Korea. It shows that the United States isn't accepting "defeat" but is merely digging in for further operations in the same area and will not be satisfied till the enemy calls for "cease fire" on terms that do not compromise the American position. The experience in 1941 is being repeated. The build-up that comes after a serious reverse is even more powerful and more rapid than might otherwise have been the case. The end result —victory—will come, though it takes months of relatively slow operations. Out of Pearl Harbor and Bataan came Midway, Guadalcanal, Leyte, and Okinawa. The victory timetable is sometimes slow but time and American resources do overcome earlier reverses.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Old Men

THOMAS C. Desmond, chairman of the New York State Joint Legislative Committee on Problems of the Aging, has for many years been devoting himself to the problem of old men and women.

There are more of them in these days than there used to be. They are not only healthier but quicker than old men and women used to be. They are stronger not only in body but in mind.

Of course, everybody admits that about such publicized human beings as Herbert Hoover, Bernard Baruch, William Randolph Hearst, Jesse Jones, Thomas Watson and many others. But simple men and women, not so well known, show exactly the same characteristics.

Back in 1900, the life expectancy of a man was 48 years; today it is 66 years. In 1900, women had an expectancy of 51 years; today, it is 71 years. In 1900, there were 13,500,000 men and women 45 years of age and over; today that segment of the population amounts to 42,500,000. That is a large slice out of 150,000,000 population.

If all those who are 50 and over are to have no work because they are too old, we are bound to have a labor shortage, with an enormous number of useful, competent, able persons twiddling their thumbs, living on pensions and social security. Instead of being useful, such so-called aged persons, whose experience is invaluable, would be living on the rest of the population. Businesses which refuse to give jobs to such men and women are doing themselves and the country infinite mischief.

Senator Desmond writes:

"Continual rebuffs may have brought you to the point where you feel that you are not, in fact, a qualified worker. As an individual, maybe yes and maybe no. But a number of studies show that mature workers, as a group, make good employes. When compared with younger workers, they are as productive, their attendance record is better, they are as efficient, more attentive more conscientious, less likely to be injured, and they cut down on labor turn-over. In addition, they offer the great benefit of their experience in working with other people and in knowing the conditions and the attitudes of work."

It would seem to be ridiculous for us to prolong life, to keen the heart strong, the arteries soft, the pancreas working and all that, and then to bring disaster to the lives of oldsters by telling them that they are too old, that they are being pushed aside to make room for others whose only superiority is that they were born later.

That does not mean that youth has no value. It does mean that experience, like aging of wine, has a value all its own. That is why men like Herbert Hoover and Bernard Baruch are not swept off their feet by popular slogans and the fierce fire of press agents who create what they call public opinion. Half a century of experience is a tool. It is a tool for which there is no substitute.

England sees that in the person of Winston Churchill. He stands like a Gibraltar against the socialistic leaders who frighten so easily Churchill does not frighten. He has seen too much of life, four wars, the Boer War, World War I and World War II and now World War III. He has made frightful mistakes, particularly at Teheran and Yalta, but he knows what happens when great nations make historic mistakes: they can never be corrected. It takes a lot of experience to know that. It takes experience for a statesman to know that covering up mistakes does not keep them covered up.

Before we throw our men over 45 or over 50 or over 60 into the discard, we need to readjust our minds to the fact old age is not to be measured by the calendar; it is to be measured by quickness of response, mental flexibility, wisdom, experience, capacity. The old cabinet maker, the old tool maker, the old all-round mechanic is still a valuable citizen, whatever his age.

Perhaps this is a good week for everybody to think about that, for, if we are to send our youth to war, we must keep our labor force effective by using all who can do the work of this nation without regard to years.

Aid From Necessity

Present and impending shortages of the things from which television sets are made led to the proposal that the manufacture of color television receivers be postponed as a war measure. This would postpone also the establishment of color television broadcasting.

The idea was brought forth by a group of wholesalers in the field of radio, television and household appliances. Hence it may be presumed that a need of the hour was seized on to lend force to a desire which already existed. Television distributors, at all levels, have had an understandable fear of being caught in the middle of the color controversy. The color system which has won Federal Communications Commission approval is not acceptable to the manufacturing and broadcasting industries in general. On this account all kinds of market uncertainties have been anticipated for the start of color broadcasting and the introduction of color receivers.

Whether by edict, general agreement or simple circumstance, color television for public consumption may well be held up until the period of crisis is past. Since research doubtless could go on, this might allow time for a conclusive settlement, one way or another, of the contention that a more suitable color system is feasible and probable. Thus would television have made capital or a notion which clearly intrigued Chaucer and has won attention from many other notable thinkers, that virtue is readily to be found in necessity.

More War In Indo-China

The imminent conquest of Vietnam is not enough for Ho Chi Minh, the Communist leader who is proving something of a match for the French. He now announces his intention to "liberate" Laos and Cambodia, the other two states which, with Vietnam, make up French Indochina. "Liberate" in his language, as in that of other Communists, means "to conquer and enslave."

He may have a little harder time of it than he has had in Vietnam. The Laotians and Cambodians are of different races from the Vietnamese, who are Mongolians, like the Chinese. The Cambodians or Khmers are part Malay, part Mongolian and part Aryan. The Laotians belong to the Thai race, whose chief representatives are the Siamese. The three differ in religion also. The Vietnamese learned classes are Confucians and the mass of the people are nature-worshippers. The Laotians and Cambodians are Buddhist. These differences make it likely that the population will look askance at Ho's army, whereas in Vietnam many of the people have helped it.

The one thing which seems clear is that the French, who at best have only held their own in Vietnam, are hardly prepared for a new war.

Sad Commentary

Obviously it would not have been necessary to impose all-out controls on the American people if the government had operated fiscally as it should have in the past five years.

Washington has been wasting the taxpayers' money on boondoggling and gadgets, many of them for vote-getting purposes. The government has popped off a lot of money abroad. As a result, in a period of peak prosperity budgets have been unbalanced, deficit financing has occurred and new money has been created so rapidly that the tremendous output of consumer goods couldn't keep the pace. Prices have been going up and wages have more than kept pace. This created the inflationary spiral.

Now, although the nation is just starting an all-out defense, full controls are deemed necessary to try to head off ruinous inflation.

It is a sad commentary on the capacity for government of the people that at a time when the national income exceeds $250,000,000,000 a year, the nation cannot find $2,000,000,000 a month for military rebuilding without putting the whole country to the strain of full government controls.

Youth And Security

"Adult leadership of this country can offer you no security in a world that is insecure." In these frank terms Warren R. Austin addressed the nation's young people in a recent speech before a group of their representatives in New York.

Urging them to fight cynicism and materialism, Austin went on to say that this is a spiritual task and involves active affiliation with religious organizations. He also recommended the building up of physical strength for the tasks these young people will be called on to face. Discrimination against minority groups was pointed out as a weakness which must be overcome.

That in the past our young people have led oversheltered lives and have matured late is a charge which has been frequently heard. If this be true, it is definitely time for a change. A youth who fights for his country must assume manhood if he is to survive, and his sister who must take his place in industry or in civilian defense must also attain maturity swiftly if she is to be of any use. Maturity is needed to settle problems without fighting, too. The only security in prospect for today's youth is that which they earn for themselves.

Explaining The Chinese

The brashness of Gen. Wu Hsiu Chuan before the United Nations meeting at Lake Success may be due in part to the fact that this is the first international battle, let alone war, that China has won in its own name alone in at least 150 years. Not since the Manchu emperor Kien-lung in the latter half of the 18th century has China had an army regarded as a force in the world. Its weakness was first revealed in the Japanese war of 1894-5, which Japan won about as she pleased. No individual successes of importance were achieved by the Chinese in combatting the Japanese in the recent war. It was the weight of the population's number that constituted the chief Japanese military problem.

Perhaps if the United States had just now won its first victory in over 150 years we too might feel a certain intoxication, and might be tempted to talk insolently to other nations. Not that we approve insolence—but that it is always well to study the causes of action.

The art of baking is unknown in Korea, one dispatch reports. That's nothing—there are plenty of American kitchens in which it is also a stranger.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Eczema Means Allergy

INFANTILE ECZEMA is a vexing problem to all concerned. The rash is unsightly and in this respect is disturbing to the parents, and it is irritating to the tot who tries to scratch it day and night. The physician also is bothered because the condition is allergic in nature and the cause often is hard to track down. Fortunately, this type of eczema usually disappears by the time the tike is 3 years old. It also is encouraging to know that scars or permanent disfigurements seldom occur.

Most victims are found to be sensitive to food. The most common offenders are milk, eggs, and wheat. When cow's milk is the culprit, goat, soybean, almond, or vegetable milk may be substituted.

But care must be taken not to neglect the health of the youngster. He should not be deprived of various foods just because he scratches or has a minor skin eruption. Good judgment is required and the pros and cons of the diet ought to be analyzed carefully. Unless nutrition is adequate to maintain good health and promote growth, rickets or scurvy may ensue. We feel certain that parents prefer a skin outbreak eruption to these deficiency diseases.

Altho food is the most common allergic irritant, additional possibilities must be considered. Stuffed toys as well as wool, silk, and other cloth may be culprits. When the playthings are implicated, wood or plastic toys can be substituted. Pets must never be allowed in the house even tho the tike is not sensitive to animals. Infantile eczema demonstrates that the child was born with an allergic trait which means that later he might develop other allergies such as hives, hay fever, asthma, migraine, or rhinitis. The more contact he has with potential offenders the sooner he becomes sensitive. While there is a good chance that allergy to dog and cat dander will occur in the future, the process need not be hastened.

Treating the rash locally may have no effect so long as the origin is not taken into consideration. Neighborhood cure-als are not advised; they help occasionally but more often aggravate the condition. Furthermore, it is not advisable to use products or procedures that might lead to permanent damage of the skin. After all, time may take care of the disorder; in many it ultimately fades away.

Smallpox vaccination should not be done during the acute stage of eczema because a serious reaction may follow. This is not true, however, of "shots" against diphtheria, whooping cough, and tetanus. Children with eczema may be unusually sensitive to insect bites; large welts appear on the skin whenever they are bitten by a mosquito, ant, or bee. When the youngster obviously is uncomfortable, the application of one of the antihistaminic creams to the skin often gives relief; otherwise the physician may have to administer an injection of adrenalin.

Allergic youngsters frequently are spoiled or pampered. They should be given love and affection without being made aware of the unsightly rash or that they are different from other children. Unless care is taken in this respect, psychological changes are likely to occur. [Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet offering additional suggestions on eczema.]

I doubt it, even though the cause of ulcer is not known definitely. There are ulcer victims among nonsmokers as well as smokers, even those who never took a puff before breakfast. This in itself should demonstrate that other origins of the lesions are more likely.

PNEUMONIA ADDICT

L. M. writes: What's the matter with a man who develops pneumonia every year? This is the fourth time.

This refers to a brain lesion that produces paralysis of the muscles of the tongue, throat, and larynx. It may be caused by apoplexy, tumor, or infection such as polio. Most victims have difficulty in talking and swallowing. Because the soft palate is involved, there is a tendency to regurgitate food thru the nose. Emotional changes also occur and many patients laugh and cry alternately.

General Chennault Fights Communism; Who'd Be Shot First By Reds; Greatest Need Is To Bring British, Americans Together

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Claire Chennault, a big leathery man who speaks with a gruff intensity, has a plan for starting fires against Stalinism in Asia.

The famous Flying Tiger general who fought with the Chinese Nationalists has been pounding on doors in Washington and saying: "Let's arm the hatred against Russia which is spreading across China. The greatest fear of the Communist is of the guerrillas — a million of whom hold great pockets on the mainland. We should drop weapons to them, and smuggle munitions across the borders."

"The spirit of revolt is so strong in China today," says Chennault, "that Communist members don't dare go out alone for fear of being ambushed. The Communists control only the cities, the rail centers and the ports. The best troops are engaged in Korea, Tibet and along the Indo-Chinese border. But the guerrillas have only the arms they can steal. If we give them help, they can take the pressure off Korea."

According to the intelligence slipped out of China to General Chennault, this is the picture on the Chinese mainland:

Mao Tse-Tung, the titular boss of Red China, is acting as a moderator between quarreling Communist war lords and pressure from Moscow.

The general in command of Chinese troops fighting in Korea, Lin Piao, is Russian-trained and violently pro-Soviet. When the Kremlin strategy switched this spring, away from the conquest of Hong Kong, Lin Piao moved his 350,000 troops north to Manchuria.

"Silver Bullets"

Protecting the Chinese coastal area in the south, he left playboy Gen. Chen Yi, who has 500,000 troops stretched from Shanghai to Canton. General Chen, noted for his concubines and his drunken parties in Shanghai, has been bitterly accused by General Lin of being a "bad Communist."

Once a Kuomintang leader, General Chen has been susceptible to "silver bullets" in the past, might be so again.

In contrast, General Li Po-Chen, the one-eyed Communist war lord directing the invasion of Tibet, is loyal to Moscow.

However, a number of anti-Communist leaders, not tied up with Chiang Kai-Shek, are available to foment revolt, according to Chennault. Ma Pu-Fang, a Moslem, is now in Cairo asking help from Arab nations. He was the governor of a vast area bordering Tibet and could be a rallying figure for the 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 Chinese Moslems. Ma Hung-Kwei, the ex-governor of Ningshia, is in San Francisco, and Chang Fa-Kwei, a leader of the Cantonese, is in Hong Kong.

General Chennault proposes that the United States arm and supervise the guerrilas through a military mission headed by Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commander of American troops in China during World War II. He also recommends giving the Nationalist forces in Formosa modern planes for raiding the mainland.

"If this is done," says the Flying Tiger, "China will become a flaming hell for the Communists. They won't be able to conquer Korea for putting out fires at home."

Who The Russians Would Shoot

After all the brickbats Congressional Republicans have been tossing at Secretary of State Dean Acheson, it was like sweet music to President Truman when retiring Congressman Andy Biemiller, Wisconsin Democrat, told him:

"Mr. President, you showed a lot of spunk by sticking up for Acheson. What many of his critics don't seem to realize is that Acheson is one of the first Americans the Russians would like to shoot. He's the chief engineer of our anti-Soviet policies."

Anglo-American Relations

Kenneth Lindsay, a plain-talking British Labor member of Parliament, was talking to a small group at the home of Arthur Goldsmith, when Town-Hall-of-the-Air Moderator George V. Denny asked: "What does Britain feel about the Far Eastern war?"

"I have crossed the ocean many times between England and America, but this is the first time I felt I entered a strange world," commented the member of Parliament. "I can tell you we have no intention to back the befuddled, dangerous policy of General MacArthur. We have no intention of losing thousands of casualties on Chinese soil. We consider MacArthur a stooge of Chiang Kai-Shek. And I speak not just for myself, but for members of both Labor and Conservative parties. We do not want the Korean war to become an Asian war."

One guest countered that British coolness toward Chiang Kai-Shek was part of a play to keep the Communists from taking Hong Kong.

"We know we cannot hold Hong Kong," replied Lindsay, "but we do have great fear for Malaya. If we lose Malaya, we lose the sterling bloc. And there is no better way to lose Malaya than to go to war in China."

"Our greatest need today," Lindsay emphasized, "is to bring the American and British peoples together."

War Notes

General MacArthur has sent a new and lengthy cable to Defense Secretary Marshall pleading for permission to create a new Japanese army. MacArthur says the Chinese Communist attack on Korea makes it imperative to rearm Japan and forget about all American plans to keep the Japanese permanently demilitarized. Unless his advice is accepted promptly, the General says he will not be responsible for the consequences in the Far East. . . The same day that the first Russian jet fighter showed up in North Korea, General Vandenberg, the Air Force Chief of Staff, picked up the phone and ordered several squadrons of our fastest jets to Korea at once. He didn't waste a minute. . . . The man directing all Chinese military moves is Georgi Malenkov, one of Stalin's top deputies. In brief, the Kremlin pulls the strings, and the Chinese people go into battle. . . . The savage guerrilla attacks being launched against our rear bases and supply lines continue the Number 1 worry of our military men. . . . One of the most effective propaganda weapons the Communists are using in Asia is the story that American democracy doesn't apply to Asiatics. Nonetheless, Congress is delaying a bill that would give aged Japanese-Americans and Korean immigrants the right to die as American citizens. Some are parents of Nisei heroes who fought with the famed 442nd infantry team, most decorated outfit of the last war. Rep. Francis Walter (Pa.) forced the bill through the House, giving them U. S. citizenship, but it's now buried in the Senate. . . . The Communists are finding some resistance to drafting Chinese to fight for Stalin. Intelligence reports say a Chinese regiment of so-called volunteers to fight in Indo-China revolted north of Canton on December 2.

MATTER OF FACT

WASHINGTON

CHRISTMAS TIME is a good time to think about the American responsibility. At this time, nineteen and a half centuries ago, a light was lighted in a humble cow-byre that still shines over the whole world, calling all men to mercifulness and goodness of heart. And now, in our own time, almost the whole duty of preventing that light from being put out forever rests upon the people of these United States.

If we do not acquit ourselves bravely and well, the new god-state will triumph in the world. This is a deity merciless as Moloch, served by a grim priesthood, buttressed on a bleak theology, tolerating no competing thought or worship to district the minds of men from their harsh labors as state-slaves. Even today, the final crisis in the vast struggle between this new god-state and the free part of the world is rushing down upon us with gathering speed.

It is a curious reflection that if we in America fail now, the generation now being born will be the last trained in the Christian ethic, knowing the Christian story. To re-make the past in its own ruthless image, is one of the tasks the god-state confers upon its priests. And if we now fail, the last, dim, precious memory will be fading from the last poor, once-free mind, just two millenia after Herod was troubled, and the shepherds saw the Star, and the Three Kings of the East made their hard, cold journey. After 2,000 years, all will be darkness then, and the night of the soul, and the silence broken only by the crack of the lash.

Such is the future that menaces our children, and our children's children. One has seen that future already, in the chilly glitter of fear in the eye of a man, once brave, now wholly cowed, in Prague; in the children waiting to prostitute themselves for some synthetic nastiness that will fill their poor bellies, outside the tawdry foodstore for party members in Leipzig; in the naked terror of the broken-bodied, half-crazed wretch who escaped from the secret police in Berlin. Those who have seen and understood that future all answer: "America cannot fail."

What has happened to America, one asks oneself, listening to the craven voices, the squalid little men who would throw away the future for an hour's partisan success, the trembling grave-diggers of freedom who would betray mankind for two more years' low taxes. And then one remembers what America is, and takes heart again.

The great land of broad valleys and proud mountains; the land's fat farms, its industry of infinite variety, its rich cities reaching towards the sky; the good life of this land, kindly, easy, pleasant and warm—all these flash through the mind. The great past rises up, the first comers clearing the forests to live a free life, the nation begotten of a passion for freedom, its men fighting for freedom, its freedom beckoning millions to these shores. And then one sees, like a procession in the mind, the people of this land, children of latecomer and children of the old stock, poor and rich, worker and farmer, Northerner and Southerner and men of the Western plains, every man differing from his neighbor, yet all one people, bold, ingenuous, brave and free.

This is not the land, these are not the people, to heed the craven voices, to say farewell to all their greatness, to surrender and submit. All the clanking apparatus of an iron empire, all its many millions of slaves in uniform, all its menaces and threats, will not overwhelm this land or terrify these people. Americans have fought before; they will fight again, that freedom, and mercifulness and goodness of heart shall not perish from the face of the earth. It is meet, right and our bounden duty so to do, as the communion service says; and we shall do it, and we shall win.

Let the American who doubts America come forward and say so in plain words; he will soon hear his answer. Let the American who would surrender speak his wish in clear language; he will soon receive his punishment. In the present interlude of turmoil and confusion, these men may safely speak with concealed meanings. But in the testing time ahead, they will be shouted down.

In every contest between slave state and free, the freemen begin with disadvantages, and the defeatists mumble. But when this nation is united by a common peril and a common faith, while it may lose the first battle, no power on earth can keep us from victory in the end.

U. S. Military Decisions Carry Many Implications

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 — Big decisions are in the making. They concern international policy, but they grow out of military developments.

Thus the decision to stay in Korea and fight it out with the Chinese Communists comes to the public only this week with the completion of the withdrawal by sea from northeastern Korea. But the orders to fight it out were issued many days ago. Such a mammoth operation could not have been undertaken without planning in minute detail for sea transportation to a definite destination — Pusan.

The decision to battle it out with the Chinese Communists along a defensive line, which it is now believed can be safely stabilized in Southern Korea, is one way to answer the defiant broadcasts from Peiping. The reorganized UN forces could in time influence the Communists to reconsider their arrogant attitude toward a cease-fire arrangement.

With an army of 250,000 men, the United Nations should be able to stand off a force of between 500,000 and 750,000 of the enemy. This ratio of one-to-two or one-to-three over an offensive army is based on the theory that a well-equipped defensive army has that sort of advantage in holding a line, especially when possessing superior air power and more ground artillery.

The determination to stay in Korea has many implications in the overall sense. It means that Soviet Russia now cannot transfer her military strength to Europe from the Far East but must keep that area supplied with munitions and manpower. The notion that America was ready to permit Moscow to concentrate her strength in Europe and be spared harassment along a potential second front in Siberia vanishes now with the plans to carry on indefinitely a sea and air war and a limited ground war in the Far East.

Incidentally, it is a matter of much surprise here to read how many comments there have been in recent weeks from uniformed quarters concerning the possibility of a ground war between America and Communist China. The vociferous denunciation of such a possible course arouses curiosity as to how the absurd suggestion gained credence. For at no time has it been part of American Military planning. If a limited war with Communist China became necessary, it was always the thought here that it should be carried on by sea and by air, with moral support to all non-Communist armies on the Asiatic mainland, irrespective of their nationality. European apprehensions that American manpower would become bogged down on the mainland of China are baseless.

So far as American commitments in the Far East are concerned, even 500,000 is not too big a number to use, though half that amount seems to be what will be needed for the limited war unless Russia intervenes actively there.

The plan for Europe, on the other, hand, envisages an international for of many millions of men. The bulk of the manpower will have to come from European countries themselves. In this respect the Hoover and Dewey speeches, plus the restrained comments of Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, will certainly serve notice on Europe that American public opinion is anxiously watching to see how soon the other UN members will wake up to their responsibility to furnish a substantial share of the manpower.

The Far Eastern war and its requirements need give Europeans little worry as to the flow of military aid to them. Lessons are being learned in the Far East which will be of inestimable value everywhere to the armed services of the United States. Korea has become a training school for officers in our ground armies and also for our air force squadrons. It has limbered up our entire sea transportation scheme and brought out of mothballs both planes and ships that would otherwise not have come into operation so soon. Some area-saturation bombing may be seen soon that will be helpful experiences for other possible war zones.

The world should get some real reassurance about the redeployment of our forces in Korea. It shows that the United States isn't accepting "defeat" but is merely digging in for further operations in the same area and will not be satisfied till the enemy calls for "cease fire" on terms that do not compromise the American position. The experience in 1941 is being repeated. The build-up that comes after a serious reverse is even more powerful and more rapid than might otherwise have been the case. The end result—victory—will come, though it takes months of relatively slow operations. Out of Pearl Harbor and Bataan came Midway, Guadalcanal, Leyte, and Okinawa. The victory timetable is sometimes slow but time and American resources do overcome earlier reverses.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Old Men

THOMAS C. Desmond, chairman of the New York State Joint Legislative Committee on Problems of the Aging, has for many years been devoting himself to the problem of old men and women.

There are more of them in these days than there used to be. They are not only healthier but quicker than old men and women used to be. They are stronger not only in body but in mind.

Of course, everybody admits that about such publicized human beings as Herbert Hoover, Bernard Baruch, William Randolph Hearst, Jesse Jones, Thomas Watson and many others. But simple men and women, not so well known, show exactly the same characteristics.

Back in 1900, the life expectancy of a man was 48 years; today it is 66 years. In 1900, women had an expectancy of 51 years; today, it is 71 years. In 1900, there were 13,500,000 men and women 45 years of age and over; today that segment of the population amounts to 42,500,000. That is a large slice out of 150,000,000 population.

If all those who are 50 and over are to have no work because they are too old, we are bound to have a labor shortage, with an enormous number of useful, competent, able persons twiddling their thumbs, living on pensions and social security. Instead of being useful, such so-called aged persons, whose experience is invaluable, would be living on the rest of the population. Businesses which refuse to give jobs to such men and women are doing themselves and the country infinite mischief.

Senator Desmond writes:

"Continual rebuffs may have brought you to the point where you feel that you are not, in fact, a qualified worker. As an individual, maybe yes and maybe no. But a number of studies show that mature workers, as a group, make good employes. When compared with younger workers, they are as productive, their attendance record is better, they are as efficient, more attentive more conscientious, less likely to be injured, and they cut down on labor turn-over. In addition, they offer the great benefit of their experience in working with other people and in knowing the conditions and the attitudes of work."

It would seem to be ridiculous for us to prolong life, to keen the heart strong, the arteries soft, the pancreas working and all that, and then to bring disaster to the lives of oldsters by telling them that they are too old, that they are being pushed aside to make room for others whose only superiority is that they were born later.

That does not mean that youth has no value. It does mean that experience, like aging of wine, has a value all its own. That is why men like Herbert Hoover and Bernard Baruch are not swept off their feet by popular slogans and the fierce fire of press agents who create what they call public opinion. Half a century of experience is a tool. It is a tool for which there is no substitute.

England sees that in the person of Winston Churchill. He stands like a Gibraltar against the socialistic leaders who frighten so easily. Churchill does not frighten. He has seen too much of life, four wars the Boer War, World War I and World War II and now World War III. He has made frightful mistakes, particularly at Teheran and Yalta, but he knows what happens when great nations make historic mistakes: they can never be corrected. It takes a lot of experience to know that. It takes experience for a statesman to know that covering up mistakes does not keep them covered up.

Before we throw our men over 45 or over 50 or over 60 into the discard, we need to readjust our minds to the fact old age is not to be measured by the calendar; it is to be measured by quickness of response, mental flexibility, wisdom, experience, capacity. The old cabinet maker, the old tool maker, the old all-round mechanic is still a valuable citizen, whatever his age.

Perhaps this is a good week for everybody to think about that, for, if we are to send our youth to war, we must keep our labor force effective by using all who can do the work of this nation without regard to years.

When criticism is fired unfairly at the Army brass they can't easily fire back . . . They can only flare up inwardly . . . For example, radio commentator Earl Godwin pounced on a newspaper picture showing Gen. and Mrs. Anthony "Nuts" McAuliffe in a hotel supper room, drinks on the table, pleasant expressions on their faces . . . Mr. Godwin beat his chest and moaned over the airways about how could some of these generals and their wives be enjoying themselves at a party when our boys were suffering tragic defeat.

Austine

It so happens, Mr. Godwin, that picture had been taken last summer at a charity benefit, and at a time when we were told that the "little police action" in Korea was a great victory.

After a bad tumble from a horse on her estate in the hunt country, Alice duPont Mills, of the Delaware Dynasty, has been speeded to a Washington hospital . . . While it will be some months before she can take to a horse, her doctors say she is on the mend . . . Oddly enough her sister suffered a similar hunting accident a while back . . . And her polo-playing hubby, Jimmy Mills, hasn't been able to ride for some time either . . . Because of his severe arthritis . . . The attractive couple will just have to be content to stick to terra firma . . . The more firmer, the less terror.

SOIGNEE KAY

One of N. Y.'s slickest fashion magazine editors, who is now one of Washington's best hostesses, Mrs. Prentiss Coonley, still commutes to N. Y. and a fashion career . . . Managing her own public relations firm, she handles some of the largest fashion accounts in the country . . . Specializes in styling, etc., for woolen and silk manufacturers . . . Kay Sullivan Coonley whips up a party potpourri of Capital celebrities with the same ease . . . She masses her spacious apartment (the Veep and Mrs. Barkley have the identical one) with antiques, candlelight, white roses, a mixture of paintings, including vibrant primitives from Haiti, and a mixture of people.

Cyrus Ching, who as wage stabilizer decides how much dough you deserve to earn, was discussing the country's economy with Dr. Leon Keyserling, chairman of the President's Economic Advisory Council . . . When Mrs. Ching came up to join them, her grey-haired giant of a husband kidded, "Here comes one of the main reasons why I can't get stabilized!" . . . Later, on the level, Ching remarked, "While we are fighting for freedom, it is important that we not lose our freedoms. To line everybody up and hand out directives from the top — that's the easy way. Leaders can always do that. But that's not the solution."

At the same dinner Mrs. Wade Haislip, wife of Gen. Haislip, the Army's Vice Chief of Staff, was chat-mongering with handsome, white-haired Lady Lewis, widow of the late dean of foreign correspondent's, Britain's Sir Wilmot Lewis . . . Mrs. Haislip saying she had designed her own earrings, had them made in Mexico . . . While Lady Lewis gave "rave notices" to her own granddaughter . . . She's prejudiced, like all grandmothers, but the girl is divinely tall and most divinely fair . . . Making her debut this year, she's truly a great beauty.

JEWEL SHOWER

Mrs. Charles Brannan and the Secretary of Agriculture have breezed back from their trip to South America . . . In what may be their last fling for awhile, they were entertained royally up and down both coasts, and attended the Inter-American Conference on Agriculture in Montevideo . . . Just as they were leaving, some of the Uruguayan officials presented Mrs. Brannan with an interesting looking little package.

Imagine the smiles on pretty Mrs. Brannan's face when she opened the package and found it jammed with jewels . . . A blazing bracelet gift from Uruguay's minister of agriculture!

Beside the jewels, Mrs. Brannan brought back messages to chums from a former Washington newspaperwoman, Genevieve Reynolds, now assistant press attache at our Embassy in Rio. And from Carolina Nabuco, who has made many friends since she visited her brother, the Brazilian Ambassador in Washington.

Coax your hair into control with the Powers Girl sixty-minute set, while you bathe and dress for the next party!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

IN a date-loaded week like this, the moment is sure to come when permanents look endy, straight hair hangs limp, and even naturally curly hair gets ideas about going its own way. This nadir between sets is bad enough at any time but it's close to tragic when you want to look your extra special best.

That's the moment to treat yourself to the miracle of the Powers Girls' sixty-minute set. During the same sixty minutes you can bathe and dress for the party ahead.

Sixty-Minute Set

The second you hit your room, start your set by dry-cleaning your hair and scalp. Begin by parting your hair in a clean sweep over your left ear, clear across the crown of your head. Rub the part vigorously with a fresh turkish towel. Continue the parting and rubbing until you reach your right ear. Then, rub your hair with the towel as though you were drying it after a shampoo.

A good brushing comes next. Bend over and let 'er fly. Then stand erect and smooth all your hair straight back. Dip your comb in a quick-drying lotion (always on hand for these crucial moments) and comb it sparingly through your hair.

Now, make a part about an inch above the hairline, horizontally across the front hair. Subdivide this into inch-square sections. Roll each section in turn around your finger.

Curls Awhile

If you want your wave or curls to fall forward, roll the hair in a forward direction. If you want them to turn backward, pull them toward the back and roll. It's all right to mix the direction if some of your hair-do sweeps forward and some back.

When you've got a thick roll over your finger, slip it off and secure the curl flat to your head with straight hair pins. Systematically roll every inch of your head this same way. It shouldn't take more than fifteen minutes.

You can spend the time while your lotion dries bedecking yourself. Just five minutes before the clock strikes the hour, take the pins out, give your curls a swipe of pomade and brush your hair into your accustomed style.

Remember, all you have to say to compliments is "Thank you, kind sir!"

Coax your hair into control with the Powers Girl sixty-minute set, while you bathe and dress for the next party!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

IN a date-loaded week like this, the moment is sure to come when permanents look endy, straight hair hangs limp, and even naturally curly hair gets ideas about going its own way. This nadir between sets is bad enough at any time but it's close to tragic when you want to look your extra special best.

That's the moment to treat yourself to the miracle of the Powers Girls' sixty-minute set. During the same sixty minutes you can bathe and dress for the party ahead.

Sixty-Minute Set

The second you hit your room, start your set by dry-cleaning your hair and scalp. Begin by parting your hair in a clean sweep over your left ear, clear across the crown of your head. Rub the part vigorously with a fresh turkish towel. Continue the parting and rubbing until you reach your right ear. Then, rub your hair with the towel as though you were drying it after a shampoo.

A good brushing comes next. Bend over and let 'er fly. Then stand erect and smooth all your hair straight back. Dip your comb in a quick-drying lotion (always on hand for these crucial moments) and comb it sparingly through your hair.

Now, make a part about an inch above the hairline, horizontally across the front hair. Subdivide this into inch-square sections. Roll each section in turn around your finger.

Curls Awhile

If you want your wave or curls to fall forward, roll the hair in a forward direction. If you want them to turn backward, pull them toward the back and roll. It's all right to mix the direction if some of your hair-do sweeps forward and some back.

When you've got a thick roll over your finger, slip it off and secure the curl flat to your head with straight hair pins. Systematically roll every inch of your head this same way. It shouldn't take more than fifteen minutes.

You can spend the time while your lotion dries bedecking yourself. Just five minutes before the clock strikes the hour, take the pins out, give your curls a swipe of pomade and brush your hair into your accustomed style.

Remember, all you have to say to compliments is "Thank you, kind sir!"

LESLIE Biffle will fly Key West-ward ho! end of next month . . . That probably means the President will trek south, too . . . if the world's war clouds clear up a bit by '51 . . . Cronies have been urging Harry to take a much needed rest for the good of the world, the U. S. and himself.

When criticism is fired unfairly at the Army brass they can't easily fire back . . . They can only flare up inwardly . . . For example, radio commentator Earl Godwin pounced on a newspaper picture showing Gen. and Mrs. Anthony "Nuts" McAuliffe in a hotel supper room, drinks on the table, pleasant expressions on their faces . . . Mr. Godwin beat his chest and moaned over the airways about how could some of these generals and their wives be enjoying themselves at a party when our boys were suffering tragic defeat.

Austine

It so happens, Mr. Godwin, that picture had been taken last summer at a charity benefit, and at a time when we were told that the "little police action" in Korea was a great victory.

After a bad tumble from a horse on her estate in the hunt country, Alice duPont Mills, of the Delaware Dynasty, has been speeded to a Washington hospital . . . And her polo-playing hubby, Jimmy Mills, hasn't been able to ride for some time either . . . Because of his severe arthritis . . . KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 27 (INS) — Come the new year, our much loved Lionel Barrymore starts his 26th year at MGM and starts it off right by going into a picture shortly after the beginning of 1951.

Lionel Barrymore

"The Man With The Cloak," by Frank Fenton, has been chosen, and from the telling I'd say it is a typical Barrymore story.

Lionel plays an elderly man, very rich, who has been on the verge of dying for years, but keeps hanging on much to the nervous hysteria of his family, relatives and friends—all of whom have good reason to believe they'll get his money. Sounds right for Lionel's loveable brand of grumpiness.

Stephen Ames will handle the production reins.

In case George Sanders would like to get in a fight—on the screen I mean—with Burt Lancaster, the job is his. Burt wants George for "Ten Tall Men," his independent movie.

In this is a fist fight which will out-do the classic battle in "The Spoilers," which was supposed to be the fight to end all fights.

The battle with George versus Lancaster (in case George takes the role) will last for a full reel, and in the end, but natch, Burt comes off the victor. He plays the hero, doesn't he!

Chit Chat: Peter Lawford telephoned Hollywood over last weekend from Sydney, Australia, and he says the Australian bobby soxers are more persistent than the American variety.

He said the 'teen-agers were cutting classes to watch scenes being filmed for "Kangaroo" until truant officers asked Pete if he would speak to them at school. So Pete, being an amiable youth, agreed and requested the students to stick to their studies.

Whether they did or not I don't know, but at any rate, Pete made the speech at the high school.

The most talked of twosome of the holiday week is Jean Wallace and Ted Briskin. They were at Ciro's one night and the next night at the Encore for dinner.

Accordian Player Dick Contino is bringing them into Ciro's. At a table for two were Nancy Guild and Roger Haines. Wonder when Nancy is going to marry Ernie Martin? The marriage was supposed to take place in January.

Edna Skelton goes into Good Samaritan Hospital today to undergo an abdominal operation. She won't be able to accompany Red on his eastern tour as she planned.

On the set of "Kind Lady" the czar of Russia's Rolls Royce comes near to stealing the scene from Ethel Barrymore and Maurice Evans. It's a 1911 model with solid gold door handles, French brocaded seat covers and hand tooled upholstery. It was smuggled out of Russia during the revolution and is the property of Lendley Bothwell.

When Gig Young marries Sophie Rosenstein in New York Friday, Arthur Kennedy will give the bride away.

It will be hail and farewell for Esther Williams and Ben Gage in Acapulco. They left today to spend New Year's in the house they bought five years ago on their wedding trip. Now they plan to sell it.

Edmond O'Brien doesn't feel this is the luck of the Irish. He bought a new car for Olga San Juan for Christmas. Before she ever got into it the brakes gave way and it ran down the hill and crashed into a boulder near their home and was badly smashed.

Alan Nixon and Judy Landor, the girl who played opposite him in "Prehistoric Women" a new romantic combination.

Mrs. John Wayne, who has been suffering from a nerve condition, has gone to Mexico City to recuperate and she won't be here for New Year's.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 27 (INS) — Come the new year, our much loved Lionel Barrymore starts his 26th year at MGM and starts it off right by going into a picture shortly after the beginning of 1951.

Lionel Barrymore

"The Man With The Cloak," by Frank Fenton, has been chosen, and from the telling I'd say it is a typical Barrymore story.

Lionel plays an elderly man, very rich, who has been on the verge of dying for years, but keeps hanging on much to the nervous hysteria of his family, relatives and friends—all of whom have good reason to believe they'll get his money. Sounds right for Lionel's loveable brand of grumpiness.

Stephen Ames will handle the production reins.

In case George Sanders would like to get in a fight—on the screen I mean—with Burt Lancaster, the job is his. Burt wants George for "Ten Tall Men," his independent movie.

In this is a fist fight which will out-do the classic battle in "The Spoilers," which was supposed to be the fight to end all fights.

The battle with George versus Lancaster (in case George takes the role) will last for a full reel, and in the end, but natch, Burt comes off the victor. He plays the hero, doesn't he!

Chit Chat: Peter Lawford telephoned Hollywood over last weekend from Sydney, Australia, and he says the Australian bobby soxers are more persistent than the American variety.

He said the 'teen-agers were cutting classes to watch scenes being filmed for "Kangaroo" until truant officers asked Pete if he would speak to them at school. So Pete, being an amiable youth, agreed and requested the students to stick to their studies.

Whether they did or not I don't know, but at any rate, Pete made the speech at the high school.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

The most talked of twosome of the holiday week is Jean Wallace and Ted Briskin. They were at Ciro's one night and the next night at the Encore for dinner.

Accordian Player Dick Contino is bringing them into Ciro's. At a table for two were Nancy Guild and Roger Haines. Wonder when Nancy is going to marry Ernie Martin? The marriage was supposed to take place in January.

Edna Skelton goes into Good Samaritan Hospital today to undergo an abdominal operation. She won't be able to accompany Red on his eastern tour as she planned.

On the set of "Kind Lady" the czar of Russia's Rolls Royce comes near to stealing the scene from Ethel Barrymore and Maurice Evans. It's a 1911 model with solid gold door handles, French brocaded seat covers and hand tooled upholstery. It was smuggled out of Russia during the revolution and is the property of Lendley Bothwell.

When Gig Young marries Sophie Rosenstein in New York Friday, Arthur Kennedy will give the bride away.

It will be hail and farewell for Esther Williams and Ben Gage in Acapulco. They left today to spend New Year's in the house they bought five years ago on their wedding trip. Now they plan to sell it.

Edmond O'Brien doesn't feel this is the luck of the Irish. He bought a new car for Olga San Juan for Christmas. Before she ever got into it the brakes gave way and it ran down the hill and crashed into a boulder near their home and was badly smashed.

Alan Nixon and Judy Landor, the girl who played opposite him in "Prehistoric Women" a new romantic combination.

Mrs. John Wayne, who has been suffering from a nerve condition, has gone to Mexico City to recuperate and she won't be here for New Year's.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Over Million Dollars Spent For Construction This Year

A building boom this year skyrocketed estimated expenditures for construction in Cumberland to over 100 per cent more than the total recorded in 1949, records in the City Engineer's office show today.

The total estimate on construction this year was $1,086,590 as compared to only $515,790 a year ago, for a difference of $570,800.

Even the total number of permits increased. This year there were 257 permits granted. Of these 143 were for new construction. A year ago there were 203 of which 104 were for new constructions.

There were more new homes constructed: This year, permits were granted for 79 homes which, it was estimated, cost $460,650. A year ago, there had been issued 47 permits for new homes at an estimated expenditure of $220,800.

New construction alone, including additions and improvements, accounted for $776,635 this year. Last year, new work estimates totaled $381,480.

The largest item included in this year's list of additions and improvements was the construction of a contagious disease section at Memorial Hospital. Estimated cost of this project was $138,370.

In new construction, a permit for a Monumental Life Insurance Company building topped the list. Its cost was estimated at $56,850. Second was Burton's Baltimore Street store remodeling project which, it is estimated, cost $40,000.

The largest month during 1950 was May when permits calling for expenditures of $250,395 were issued.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

Patricia Richardson's dog, "Faun," had an aggravating habit of curling himself up in his mistress' favorite easy chair, and feigning sleep when she attempted to dislodge him. Next door there resided a cat whom Faun abhorred, however, and Miss R. learned that by going to the window and crying "Here comes that cat," Faun could be persuaded to vacate the chair and vanish from sight without further ado.

She had worked this dodge effectively on several occasions when, one afternoon, she sat dozing in her easy chair. Faun walked in, studied her with his head on one side, suddenly bounded to the door and began barking furiously. The aroused Miss Richardson rushed to investigate. The street was absolutely empty. When she returned, Faun was curled up blissfully, his eyes closed, in the easy chair.

Al Jolson used to tell about a ring of crooked gamblers who dosed their horse with a triple shot of marijuana just before a big race. "Did he come in first?" asked a listener. "No, he didn't," admitted Jolson, "but he certainly was the happiest horse on the track."

City's Oldest Five And Ten Store Will Close Saturday

Saturday at 6 p.m. the city's oldest five and dime store, the F. W. Woolworth Company's branch at Baltimore and George Streets, will close its doors, for the time being, at least.

V. B. Catts, district superintendent of the company, reported yesterday that the sub-lease on the quarters in the McMullen Building will not be renewed.

The lease in the building is being held on a long term basis by the Ann Lewis Shops, Inc., of New York City, a women's wear concern.

For the past year, Woolworth's has sub-let the store room from the New York company. The new occupant of the quarters has not been announced.

Woolworth's has had a branch in Cumberland since 1909. At that time the "five and dime" was located 134 Baltimore Street, now occupied by Lerner Shops.

Ten years later, Woolworth's moved to its present location at 154 Baltimore Street.

Catts said Woolworth's is moving from the McMullen Building location because the quarters are not large enough for operating a five and ten.

The district superintendent added that the firm is not abandoning Cumberland, but stated there is a possibility of relocating here later when store rooms large enough may be made available.

A. W. Murray, local manager, will be transferred to another of the company's stores. From 25 to 40 employes work at the Cumberland branch.

Over Million Dollars Spent For Construction This Year

A building boom this year skyrocketed estimated expenditures for construction in Cumberland to over 100 per cent more than the total recorded in 1949, records in the City Engineer's office show today.

The total estimate on construction this year was $1,086,590 as compared to only $515,790 a year ago, for a difference of $570,800.

Even the total number of permits increased. This year there were 257 permits granted. Of these 143 were for new construction. A year ago there were 203 of which 104 were for new constructions.

There were more new homes constructed: This year, permits were granted for 79 homes which, it was estimated, cost $460,650. A year ago, there had been issued 47 permits for new homes at an estimated expenditure of $220,800.

New construction alone, including additions and improvements, accounted for $776,635 this year. Last year, new work estimates totaled $381,480.

The largest item included in this year's list of additions and improvements was the construction of a contagious disease section at Memorial Hospital. Estimated cost of this project was $138,370.

In new construction, a permit for a Monumental Life Insurance Company building topped the list. Its cost was estimated at $56,850. Second was Burton's Baltimore Street store remodeling project which, it is estimated, cost $40,000.

The largest month during 1950 was May when permits calling for expenditures of $250,395 were issued.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

Patricia Richardson's dog, "Faun," had an aggravating habit of curling himself up in his mistress' favorite easy chair, and feigning sleep when she attempted to dislodge him. Next door there resided a cat whom Faun abhorred, however, and Miss R. learned that by going to the window and crying "Here comes that cat," Faun could be persuaded to vacate the chair and vanish from sight without further ado.

She had worked this dodge effectively on several occasions when, one afternoon, she sat dozing in her easy chair. Faun walked in, studied her with his head on one side, suddenly bounded to the door and began barking furiously. The aroused Miss Richardson rushed to investigate. The street was absolutely empty. When she returned, Faun was curled up blissfully, his eyes closed, in the easy chair.

Bout-A-Week Fighter

"Babe" Tops Trainers

Cadets Are Nosed Out

Boxers Turn Sissies

By C. V. BURNS

Sugar Ray Robinson's five wins within six weeks in Europe brings back memories of a quarter of a century ago when fighters like Harry Greb, the "Pittsburgh Windmill," fought on an almost weekly schedule.

FAY KEISER

Harry Keck, veteran Pittsburgh sports editor, recalls that Greb once had 52 fights in one year. And may we add that Greb, a 160-pounder, didn't mind fighting and trouncing 200 pounders.

Our own Fay Keiser was another middleweight of that era who gave away a lot of weight to tackle the big fellows — and he liked 'em tough.

They included Gene Tunney, Tommy Loughran, Billy Shade, Young Stribling, Jimmy Slattery, Bob Martin, Jimmy Darcy, Leo Houck, Buck Crouse, Happy Littleton, Young Bob Fitzsimmons, Jackie Clark and last but not least, Greb.

There were "tankers" 25 years ago like there are today but we don't recall Keiser ever getting warm-up bouts.

You'll note that there are several champs among Fay's opponents.

And the Gotham fight mob must have thought a lot of Keiser because Fay got four straight shots in New York.

Mrs. G. A. Saportas, Jr., of Monkton, Md., was the leading winning trainer on the Maryland minor tracks for 1950.

"Babe", as she is more familiarly known on the half milers, tied Bob Duffy for top honors at Fairgo in June with a 4-4-3 record, and saddled 33 winners in 50 days.

Jimmy Baird proved the most successful of the jockeys. He topped 'em all at Fairgo with a 7-10-6 record and piloted 60 winners in 50 days in the state. Mike Sorrentino, who also rode at the local half mile oval, had 48 winners for 2nd place.

The Bond Brothers — Bernie and J. Bowes — finished one-two by saddling 27 and 24 winners on the Maryland major tracks this year. The Bonds raced their strings at Fairgo for many years.

The District of Columbia Boxing Commission has ordered boxers — amateur and professional — to wear protective headgear in all bouts staged there.

Pretty soon the panty waists will be wearing suits of armor when they climb into the ring!

The mention of headgear for boxers reminds us of a story told by Jim Kelley. Jim was handling a college bout in Washington, D. C., several years ago and a team from the Carolinas was instructed to don the headgear. The boys objected at first but finally were persuaded to put on the harness.

The heavyweight bout was about half completed when one of the big fellows yanked off the headgear and yelled:

Steelers' Geri Makes All-Pro Football Team

Doak Walker, Lujack, Motley Other Backs

Doak Walker

Four other players in the National Conference of the National Football League are on the first team. They are ends Tom Fears of the Los Angeles Rams and Dan Edwards of the New York Yanks, guard Joe Signaigo of the Yanks and Doak Walker of the Detroit Lions.

The American Conference of the league gained four places — center Charley (Chuck) Bednarik of the Philadelphia Eagles, tackle Arnie Weinmeister of the New York Giants, and backs Joe Geri of the Pittsburgh Steelers and Marion Motley of the Cleveland Browns.

Repeaters from the 1949 team are Weinmeister, who played with the New York Yankees, and Barwegan, former member of the Baltimore Colts. Barwegan also made the all-pro team in 1948 as did Motley.

The first team includes four former All-American men in Connor and Lujack of Notre Dame, Bednarik of Penn and Walker of Southern Methodist.

The second team has Mac Speedie and Cloyce Box at end, Dick Huffman and Bob Reinhard at tackle, Ray Bray and Garrard Tamsey at guard, Clayton Tonnemaker at center and Bob Waterfield, Billy Grimes, John Strzykalski and Dick Hoerner as backs. Four of these men are former All-Americas. Ramsey starred for William and Mary in '42, Reinhard for California in '40, Tonnemaker for Minnesota in '49 and Huffman for Tennessee in '46.

The all-pro members were voted by Associated Press sports writers in 11 National League cities. Fears, Walker, Geri and Motley were unanimous choices in that they drew first place votes in every city in which they played.

Trout had a 13-5 record last season and a 3.75 earned run average. His name had been placed on the waiver list early in the season but no one thought he was worth $10,000.

Ortmann May Be Decisive Factor In Bowl Contest

Racked Up 590 Yards In Air For Michigan

By BOB MYERS

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 27 (AP)—California and Michigan stack up today as an evenly matched pair of football teams but there are many who think one young man will prove the difference in their Rose Bowl clash Jan. 1.

For three years the 21-year-old senior from Milwaukee has been a hero at Ann Arbor, and the six-foot Wisconsin-born lad looms large in the worries of the California coach, Lynn O. (Pappy) Waldorf.

Said Waldorf: "Ortmann presents a most difficult problem. He is a real and truly fine triple-threat player."

Ortmann led the big ten in total offense both as a sophomore and junior. This fall he was just in the first 15 minutes of the opening game against Michigan State and from there on was either out of action or hampered by injuries. He was still good enough to roll up 695 yards—590 yards via his passing and 105 on the ground.

Many credit Ortmann as being the decisive factor in the tingling triumph over Ohio State which sent the Wolverines to the Rose Bowl. His tremendous punting and placing of punts kept the Bucks hemmed back deep in the snow of their own backyard all afternoon and kept the stage set for two blocked punts which led to a safety and a touchdown, and a 9-3 victory.

"Yes," said Waldorf, "I understand Ortmann is in very fine health now. He would be, for us."

Coaches In Favor Of Standardizing Grid Jersey Colors

MOBILE, Ala., Dec. 27 (AP) — The old trick of wearing football jersies the same color as the ball to create deception may be on its way out in high school circles.

Delegates to the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations were told today there was an increasing demand from coaches and officials to standardize the colors of football uniforms.

Lyle T. Quinn of Boone, Ia., chairman of the football equipment committee, said the Iowa association was considering adopting two standard colors — one for the visiting team, the other for the home squad.

Quinn said standardizing of uniform colors by professional baseball teams had been well accepted for several years.

Tonight the federation members heard a discussion of the effects of television on high school sports. The panel was led by W. R. Fugitt, Beckley, W. Va., and H. R. Peterson, Minneapolis, Minn.

Kentucky Heads Basketball Poll, Bradley Is 2nd

Oklahoma Aggies 3rd, CCNY Skids To 11th

By JOE FALLS

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP)—Kentucky and Bradley, ranked one-two among the nation's college basketball teams for the second straight week, may have it out during the weekend in the New Orleans' Sugar Bowl Tournament.

Kentucky was the No. 1 choice of 105 of the 167 sports writers and sportscasters who voted in the Associated Press' weekly poll. Bradley was picked first by 37 but drew plenty of second place votes to give the Wildcats a close tussle in points, 1,498 to 1,432. Points are based on ten for first, nine for second, and so on.

May Tangle Saturday

If the two powers win their Friday night semifinals they will clash Saturday night, thus giving Bradley a chance to avenge its 71-66 loss to Kentucky in the Sugar Bowl finale last season.

Bradley warmed up for its shot at the No. 1 team tonight against Indiana (6-0), the fifth-ranking quintet. Oklahoma A & M's smooth crew was ranked third.

Joe Is 3-1 Choice In January 3 Bout

DETROIT, Dec., 27 (AP) — Former heavyweight champion Joe Louis inflicted a four-stitch cut in the chin of sparring partner McKinley English today as he continued his tune-up for a Jan. 3 fight here with Harrisburg's Fred Beshore.

Beshore boxed five rounds with Red Applegate of Cliffside, N. J., as he began to taper off training. The Harrisburg fighter weighed 187 today and said he planned to come in at 185 at ringtime.

Higher Purses Asked By Horsemen, Strike Vote Set For Friday

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 27 (AP) — Horsemen want minimum purses at Tropical Park race track increased by $300 and have called a strike vote meeting for Friday night.

At a meeting of the Florida division, Horsemen's Benevolent Protective Association (HBPA) last night, some members wanted an immediate vote but a clause in the by-laws provides a three-day notice must be given before such action can be taken.

Horsemen want the $1,800 minimum purses increased to $2,100 and Nathan Herzfeld, Tropical Park president, said the track could not pay it.

Bout-A-Week Fighter

"Babe" Tops Trainers

Cadets Are Nosed Out

Boxers Turn Sissies

By C. V. BURNS

Sugar Ray Robinson's five wins within six weeks in Europe brings back memories of a quarter of a century ago when fighters like Harry Greb, the "Pittsburgh Windmill," fought on an almost weekly schedule.

FAY KEISER

Harry Keck, veteran Pittsburgh sports editor, recalls that Greb once had 52 fights in one year. And may we add that Greb, a 160-pounder, didn't mind fighting and trouncing 200 pounders.

Our own Fay Keiser was another middleweight of that era who gave away a lot of weight to tackle the big fellows — and he liked 'em tough.

They included Gene Tunney, Tommy Loughran, Billy Shade, Young Stribling, Jimmy Slattery, Bob Martin, Jimmy Darcy, Leo Houck, Buck Crouse, Happy Littleton, Young Bob Fitzsimmons, Jackie Clark and last but not least, Greb.

There were "tankers" 25 years ago like there are today but we don't recall Keiser ever getting warm-up bouts.

You'll note that there are several champs among Fay's opponents.

And the Gotham fight mob must have thought a lot of Keiser because Fay got four straight shots in New York.

Mrs. G. A. Saportas, Jr., of Monkton, Md., was the leading winning trainer on the Maryland minor tracks for 1950.

"Babe", as she is more familiarly known on the half milers, tied Bob Duffy for top honors at Fairgo in June with a 4-4-3 record, and saddled 33 winners in 50 days.

Jimmy Baird proved the most successful of the jockeys. He topped 'em all at Fairgo with a 7-10-6 record and piloted 60 winners in 50 days in the state. Mike Sorrentino, who also rode at the local half mile oval, had 48 winners for 2nd place.

The Bond Brothers — Bernie and J. Bowes — finished one-two by saddling 27 and 24 winners on the Maryland major tracks this year. The Bonds raced their strings at Fairgo for many years.

The District of Columbia Boxing Commission has ordered boxers — amateur and professional — to wear protective headgear in all bouts staged there.

Pretty soon the panty waists will be wearing suits of armor when they climb into the ring!

The mention of headgear for boxers reminds us of a story told by Jim Kelley. Jim was handling a college bout in Washington, D. C., several years ago and a team from the Carolinas was instructed to don the headgear. The boys objected at first but finally were persuaded to put on the harness.

The heavyweight bout was about half completed when one of the big fellows yanked off the headgear and yelled:

Ortmann May Be Decisive Factor In Bowl Contest

Racked Up 590 Yards In Air For Michigan

By BOB MYERS

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 27 (AP)—California and Michigan stack up today as an evenly matched pair of football teams but there are many who think one young man will prove the difference in their Rose Bowl clash Jan. 1.

For three years the 21-year-old senior from Milwaukee has been a hero at Ann Arbor, and the six-foot Wisconsin-born lad looms large in the worries of the California coach, Lynn O. (Pappy) Waldorf.

Said Waldorf: "Ortmann presents a most difficult problem. He is a real and truly fine triple-threat player."

Ortmann led the big ten in total offense both as a sophomore and junior. This fall he was just in the first 15 minutes of the opening game against Michigan State and from there on was either out of action or hampered by injuries. He was still good enough to roll up 695 yards—590 yards via his passing and 105 on the ground.

Many credit Ortmann as being the decisive factor in the tingling triumph over Ohio State which sent the Wolverines to the Rose Bowl. His tremendous punting and placing of punts kept the Bucks hemmed back deep in the snow of their own backyard all afternoon and kept the stage set for two blocked punts which led to a safety and a touchdown, and a 9-3 victory.

"Yes," said Waldorf, "I understand Ortmann is in very fine health now. He would be, for us."

Coaches In Favor Of Standardizing Grid Jersey Colors

MOBILE, Ala., Dec. 27 (AP) — The old trick of wearing football jersies the same color as the ball to create deception may be on its way out in high school circles.

Delegates to the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations were told today there was an increasing demand from coaches and officials to standardize the colors of football uniforms.

Lyle T. Quinn of Boone,Ia., chairman of the football equipment committee, said the Iowa association was considering adopting two standard colors — one for the visiting team, the other for the home squad.

Quinn said standardizing of uniform colors by professional baseball teams had been well accepted for several years.

Tonight the federation members heard a discussion of the effects of television on high school sports. The panel was led by W. R. Fugitt, Beckley, W. Va., and H. R. Peterson, Minneapolis, Minn.

By JOE FALLS

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP)—Kentucky and Bradley, ranked one-two among the nation's college basketball teams for the second straight week, may have it out during the weekend in the New Orleans' Sugar Bowl Tournament.

Kentucky was the No. 1 choice of 105 of the 167 sports writers and sportcasters who voted in the Associated Press' weekly poll. Bradley was picked first by 37 but drew plenty of second place votes to give the Wildcats a close tussle in points, 1,498 to 1,432. Points are based on ten for first, nine for second, and so on.

Joe Is 3-1 Choice In January 3 Bout

DETROIT, Dec., 27 (AP) — Former heavyweight champion Joe Louis inflicted a four-stitch cut in the chin of sparring partner McKinley English today as he continued his tune-up for a Jan. 3 fight here with Harrisburg's Fred Beshore.

Beshore boxed five rounds with Red Applegate of Cliffside, N. J., as he began to taper off training. The Harrisburg fighter weighed 187 today and said he planned to come in at 185 at ringtime.

Higher Purses Asked By Horsemen, Strike Vote Set For Friday

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 27 (AP) — Horsemen want minimum purses at Tropical Park race track increased by $300 and have called a strike vote meeting for Friday night.

At a meeting of the Florida division, Horsemen's Benevolent Protective Association (HBPA) last night, some members wanted an immediate vote but a clause in the by-laws provides a three-day notice must be given before such action can be taken.

Horsemen want the $1,800 minimum purses increased to $2,100 and Nathan Herzfeld, Tropical Park president, said the track could not pay it.

Bout-A-Week Fighter

"Babe" Tops Trainers

Cadets Are Nosed Out

Boxers Turn Sissies

By C. V. BURNS

Sugar Ray Robinson's five wins within six weeks in Europe brings back memories of a quarter of a century ago when fighters like Harry Greb, the "Pittsburgh Windmill," fought on an almost weekly schedule.

FAY KEISER

Harry Keck, veteran Pittsburgh sports editor, recalls that Greb once had 52 fights in one year. And may we add that Greb, a 160-pounder, didn't mind fighting and trouncing 200 pounders.

Our own Fay Keiser was another middleweight of that era who gave away a lot of weight to tackle the big fellows — and he liked 'em tough.

They included Gene Tunney, Tommy Loughran, Billy Shade, Young Stribling, Jimmy Slattery, Bob Martin, Jimmy Darcy, Leo Houck, Buck Crouse, Happy Littleton, Young Bob Fitzsimmons, Jackie Clark and last but not least, Greb.

There were "tankers" 25 years ago like there are today but we don't recall Keiser ever getting warm-up bouts.

You'll note that there are several champs among Fay's opponents.

And the Gotham fight mob must have thought a lot of Keiser because Fay got four straight shots in New York.

Mrs. G. A. Saportas, Jr., of Monkton, Md., was the leading winning trainer on the Maryland minor tracks for 1950.

"Babe", as she is more familiarly known on the half milers, tied Bob Duffy for top honors at Fairgo in June with a 4-4-3 record, and saddled 33 winners in 50 days.

Jimmy Baird proved the most successful of the jockeys. He topped 'em all at Fairgo with a 7-10-6 record and piloted 60 winners in 50 days in the state. Mike Sorrentino, who also rode at the local half mile oval, had 48 winners for 2nd place.

The District of Columbia Boxing Commission has ordered boxers — amateur and professional — to wear protective headgear in all bouts staged there.

Pretty soon the panty waists will be wearing suits of armor when they climb into the ring!

The mention of headgear for boxers reminds us of a story told by Jim Kelley. Jim was handling a college bout in Washington, D. C., several years ago and a team from the Carolinas was instructed to don the headgear. The boys objected at first but finally were persuaded to put on the harness.

The heavyweight bout was about half completed when one of the big fellows yanked off the headgear and yelled:

Ortmann May Be Decisive Factor In Bowl Contest

Racked Up 590 Yards In Air For Michigan

By BOB MYERS

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 27 (AP)—California and Michigan stack up today as an evenly matched pair of football teams but there are many who think one young man will prove the difference in their Rose Bowl clash Jan. 1.

For three years the 21-year-old senior from Milwaukee has been a hero at Ann Arbor, and the six-foot Wisconsin-born lad looms large in the worries of the California coach, Lynn O. (Pappy) Waldorf.

Said Waldorf: "Ortmann presents a most difficult problem. He is a real and truly fine triple-threat player."

Ortmann led the big ten in total offense both as a sophomore and junior. This fall he was just in the first 15 minutes of the opening game against Michigan State and from there on was either out of action or hampered by injuries. He was still good enough to roll up 695 yards—590 yards via his passing and 105 on the ground.

Many credit Ortmann as being the decisive factor in the tingling triumph over Ohio State which sent the Wolverines to the Rose Bowl. His tremendous punting and placing of punts kept the Bucks hemmed back deep in the snow of their own backyard all afternoon and kept the stage set for two blocked punts which led to a safety and a touchdown, and a 9-3 victory.

"Yes," said Waldorf, "I understand Ortmann is in very fine health now. He would be, for us."

Coaches In Favor Of Standardizing Grid Jersey Colors

MOBILE, Ala., Dec. 27 (AP) — The old trick of wearing football jersies the same color as the ball to create deception may be on its way out in high school circles.

Delegates to the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations were told today there was an increasing demand from coaches and officials to standardize the colors of football uniforms.

Lyle T. Quinn of Boone, Ia., chairman of the football equipment committee, said the Iowa association was considering adopting two standard colors — one for the visiting team, the other for the home squad.

Quinn said standardizing of uniform colors by professional baseball teams had been well accepted for several years.

Tonight the federation members heard a discussion of the effects of television on high school sports. The panel was led by W. R. Fugitt, Beckley, W. Va., and H. R. Peterson, Minneapolis, Minn.

Culmone Rides Three Winners At Tropical

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 27 (AP)—River Divide Farm's Joe Puck ran away from five other sprinters in the featured Black Tarquinn Purse today before 7,931 fans at Tropical Park.

With nothing to carry him along, the three-year-old gelded son of Syl's Jimmy had what might be called a picnic as he sped along by himself to finish two lengths clear of Well Met. Set Free, managed to finish third, but never a potent contended in the race.

Mr. Joe Puck, which paid $6.70 straight, was marking up his second purse of the current meeting. Ridden by Apprentice Charlie Burr, he turned the six furlongs in 1:11 flat.

Joe Culmone, who is duelling with Willie Shoemaker for the national riding championship, came through with three winners. He now has a total of 378 winners.

Jockey Willie Zakoor was suspended for 10 days for rough riding in the stretch at the finish of the fifth race Tuesday. His mount, Yoicks, was disqualified from first and placed second.

Culmone Rides Three Winners At Tropical

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 27 (AP)—River Divide Farm's Joe Puck ran away from five other sprinters in the featured Black Tarquinn Purse today before 7,931 fans at Tropical Park.

With nothing to carry him along, the three-year-old gelded son of Syl's Jimmy had what might be called a picnic as he sped along by himself to finish two lengths clear of Well Met. Set Free, managed to finish third, but never a potent contended in the race.

Mr. Joe Puck, which paid $6.70 straight, was marking up his second purse of the current meeting. Ridden by Apprentice Charlie Burr, he turned the six furlongs in 1:11 flat.

Joe Culmone, who is duelling with Willie Shoemaker for the national riding championship, came through with three winners. He now has a total of 378 winners.

Jockey Willie Zakoor was suspended for 10 days for rough riding in the stretch at the finish of the fifth race Tuesday. His mount, Yoicks, was disqualified from first and placed second.

Louis Passes Exam For Beshore Match

DETROIT, Dec. 27 (AP) — Joe Louis passed a preliminary physical examination with flying colors today, a week before his scheduled fight with Freddie Beshore at Olympia Stadium.

Dr. Joseph Cahalan, Michigan Boxing Commission physician, said Louis "checked out fine on heart, lungs, pulse and blood pressure, and is in fine trim."

Dr. Cahalan also pronounced Beshore in "fin'st physical condition."

A Column for Men

STAG LINES

By BERT BACHARACH

Blazers and Flannels

Farrell in Blue and Gray

FASHION: Navy blue blazer and gray flannel slacks are still the classic leisure outfit—for North, South or anywhere else. The leisurely looking gent in our picture is columnist Frank Farrell.

Campaign: Let's start 1951, men, with a crusade against removing hats in elevators. It's an outmoded mark of courtesy that is unwanted by every one. It takes up space in crowded cars, which is resented by women passengers—and hats get crushed. Let's leave 'em on.

New Year's Eve Tip: Chill only the body of a champagne bottle, not the neck. Otherwise, the cork may be difficult to remove. . . . A glass of milk, at the conclusion of the festivities, is said to have a healthful effect.

Dress-Up Time: During the holidays there will be occasions when dinner clothes are called for. In the event you've forgotten, here are the proper accessories: Shirt with turned-down collar; black, midnight blue or tartan bow tie; black or gold studs; black, midnight blue or tartan waistcoat or cummerbund; black hose; black patent or calf dress shoes; black or midnight blue Homburg or snap-brim hat; white scarf; dark overcoat; and white or gray gloves.

Handyman: When windows stick, apply small quantity of liquid floor wax to sides of casing. . . . Paint spots on leather shoes? Moisten the head of a kitchen match, rub the spots—and they'll disappear.

Wrong

Hat Check: For man with broad, full face, a crown with slight taper and worn moderately back on head is best. He should never tilt hat over eyes nor wear a narrow brim.

Right

Odd Notes: Want a free meal? Michigan restaurateur George Pappavlahodimitrakopoulous offers chow-on-the-house if you can pronounce his moniker! . . . One pound of fine wool can be spun into 30 miles of yarn. A man's suit contains wool that could be spun into 100 miles of yarn! . . . Sign on a business friend's desk, "Don't go away mad. Just go away." . . . In the 1950 census estimate, Baton Rouge showed a 257 per cent increase in population—jumping from 296th to 84th place! . . . Tenor Felix Knight's new umbrella has a handle that holds loose change. (Our problem is—how to hold loose umbrellas!) . . . This week's "Pass the Cigars" to Sid Caesar, who, show folk claim, out-Chaplins Chaplin at his best.

Yesterday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

A X F N U P N Z H K W O D F W A N U U T C A ' H
C Z C H , L Q F I N W F D I Q U F X F D C U W O D F
P W F D W A — D X U T C H .

Blazers and Flannels

Farrell in Blue and Gray

FASHION: Navy blue blazer and gray flannel slacks are still the classic leisure outfit—for North, South or anywhere else. The leisurely looking gent in our picture is columnist Frank Farrell.

Campaign: Let's start 1951, men, with a crusade against removing hats in elevators. It's an outmoded mark of courtesy that is unwanted by every one. It takes up space in crowded cars, which is resented by women passengers—and hats get crushed. Let's leave 'em on.

New Year's Eve Tip: Chill only the body of a champagne bottle, not the neck. Otherwise, the cork may be difficult to remove. . . . A glass of milk, at the conclusion of the festivities, is said to have a healthful effect.

Dress-Up Time: During the holidays there will be occasions when dinner clothes are called for. In the event you've forgotten, here are the proper accessories: Shirt with turned-down collar; black, midnight blue or tartan bow tie; black or gold studs; black, midnight blue or tartan waistcoat or cummerbund; black hose; black patent or calf dress shoes; black or midnight blue Homburg or snap-brim hat; white scarf; dark overcoat; and white or gray gloves.

Handyman: When windows stick, apply small quantity of liquid floor wax to sides of casing. . . . Paint spots on leather shoes? Moisten the head of a kitchen match, rub the spots—and they'll disappear.

Wrong

Right

Hat Check: For man with broad, full face, a crown with slight taper and worn moderately back on head is best. He should never tilt hat over eyes nor wear a narrow brim.

Odd Notes: Want a free meal? Michigan restaurateur George Pappavlahodimitrakopoulous offers chow-on-the-house if you can pronounce his moniker! . . . One pound of fine wool can be spun into 30 miles of yarn. A man's suit contains wool that could be spun into 100 miles of yarn! . . . Sign on a business friend's desk, "Don't go away mad. Just go away." . . . In the 1950 census estimate, Baton Rouge showed a 257 per cent increase in population—jumping from 296th to 84th place! . . . Tenor Felix Knight's new umbrella has a handle that holds loose change. (Our problem is—how to hold loose umbrellas!) . . . This week's "Pass the Cigars" to Sid Caesar, who, show folk claim, out-Chaplins Chaplin at his best.

Yesterday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

A X F N U P N Z H K W O D F W A N U U T C A ' H
C Z C H , L Q F I N W F D I Q U F X F D C U W O D F
P W F D W A — D X U T C H .

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: IF I BE SERVED SUCH ANOTHER TRICK, I'LL HAVE MY BRAINS TAKEN OUT AND BUTTERED —SHAKESPEARE.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS)

THE PASSING show:

Since it has become abundantly evident that U. S. college graduates find little attraction in government careers, the new Congress might do worse than dust off a pigeon-holed bill aimed at creating a team worthy of the schedule we have accepted.

The bill is HR1739 introduced nearly a year ago by Rep. Charles E. Bennett, Florida Democrat. It would build in or near the District of Columbia the "government service university" with courses designed "to provide the balanced and liberal education in the field of public administration, economics, political science, foreign relations and such other subjects as will fit the students to better carry out the duty incident to the U. S. government."

The Civil Service Commission would select students "of good moral character who score the highest grades in highest competitive examination," and determine how many should be admitted to the university and how many of those admitted would specialize in each field of study.

Students would get their food and lodging free of charge and be paid $780 a year, somewhat in the matter of West Point and Annapolis cadets. Each student would contract to serve in the government for a period of ten years following graduation. All citizens who have graduated from high school and are not older than 38 years would be eligible to apply for entrance.

A five-man board of trustees would be appointed by the President, with the approval of the Senate, and would receive compensation only when attending board meetings. The actual president of the university would be selected by the board for a ten year term at $25,000 a year.

At present, HR1739 is a good intention paving the roadbed of the House Committee on Education and Labor and, while it rusts a lot of talent is shunning government work—from newt conservation to diplomacy in the White House.

The National Safety Council's committee on winter driving made a long survey of the peril of driving on bad roads last winter and has now released its somewhat alarming finding.

The average car with standard tires needs 21 feet to come to a full stop from 20 miles an hour on dry concrete. But on glare ice it needs 209 feet! Even with winterized tires and special marked-snowtires it requires somewhere between 188 and 201 feet for such a stop. With steel chains it requires only 77 feet. Stopping distances average from 10 to 50 per cent more with synthetic rubber tires. Tires made of coal synthetic rubber last longer than natural rubber tires but skid or spin ten to 35 per cent more.

The council urges that winter drivers get the "feel" of the road by testing their brakes while driving slowly and when no other vehicles are near. It is urged that the driver "pump" his brake because jamming them may lock the wheel and throw the car into a spin. It was found also that cars equipped with hydraulic or fluid couplings never suffered from rear wheel locking.

The writer has an even simpler solution for winter driving danger: Sell the car and move to Florida.

"The American Legion" magazine is to be complimented for printing Irene Corbally Kuhn's devastating article "Why You Buy Books That Sell Communists" in its January issue. It deals with a subject that has needed articulate airing for a long time. The article gives the troubled reader the astonishing reason why a book such as Owen Lattimore's quickie defending himself would receive nicer treatment by critics than, say, a book like "Seeds of Treason" or any other book that reflects even remotely on the loyalty of prominent members of the left.

The Kuhn article exposes the racket of placing left-wing books in the hands of pro-Communist reviewers (whom she names enthusiastically) and the purpose of handing pro-American books to critics who obviously are little more than hatchet men for the Communist Party.

Every person who dips deeper into current litreature than the stratum of Kathleen Winsor will find this searching and courageous article a "must"—if I may borrow a word from the Daily Worker's assay of the works of Howard Fast.

Refugees Seen Explosive Factor In German Politics

By BRACK CURRY

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Western Germany's 8,000,000 German refugees from East Europe may soon become an international political problem.

American authorities say the refugees could hold the balance of power in the West German government if a single, national refugee party is formed.

No national refugee party has yet been organized. No one leader speaks for the refugees.

The German refugees have been herded out of Poland, Prussia, East Germany and Czechoslovakia by the Communist governments of Eastern Europe.

A strong position for the refugees in the German political arena "could have serious international political repercussions," says the U. S. High Commission.

It gives these reasons:

The question of Germany's borders with Poland and Czechoslovakia is closely linked with the refugee problem. The pressures for border changes "would become exceedingly great" once the refugees win a strong political position.

"Furthermore," says the high commission, "by that time the refugee psychology would undoubtedly be quite ripe for the acceptance of militant radical leadership of the extreme right if not of the extreme left."

The refugees big bid for political power will come in 1952 when the next national elections are held.

Numbering 25 per cent of the population, they already have grabbed considerable influence in the states of Bavaria, Schleswig-Holstein and Wuerttemberg-Baden.

The high commission says that sooner or later a strictly refugee party will be organized on a national basis—unless "this perplexing refugee problem can be solved."

Since the war, the high commission maintains, the refugee problem has not been adequately considered by either the native Germans or the world at large.

Homeless, hopeless and hungry, the refugees sooner or later will combine on a platform of common misery unless they can be integrated into West German life, the high commission warns.

"It must be borne in mind," it says, "that at present almost 100 per cent of these people are living on a standard far below that which they enjoyed in their former homes. About 750,000 of them are completely without work.

"Great numbers of them were upper level members of business and the professions and this enforced reduction to a lowly and menial station has been destructive of spirit and morale. Moreover, it has created a feeling of resentment which in many cases reaches to dangerous depths."

Of the refugees' desperate plight the high commission says:

"Certainly the political dangers are apparent. x x x It would hardly be daring to predict that if and when a single refugee party is formed on a national basis to represent all the thousands of small refugee community groups, that party would very likely gain enough votes in a national election to hold the balance of power in the federal government.

Market Scores Sharp Gain As Buying Wave Continues

People demanded stocks and were willing to pay as much as $5 a share or so over Tuesday's closing prices to get what they wanted. More than 100 issues sold at peak prices for 1950 or longer—in some cases many years.

Today's rise on average was the steepest since December 1946 although matched once since then in May 1948. The market value of all stocks listed on the exchange increased by more than $1,500,000,000.

Buying orders rolled into the exchange in a steady impressive flow. Sales piled up to 2,930,000 shares from 2,660,000 Tuesday. It was the thirteenth full session in a row in which volume has topped the 2,000,000-share mark.

The Associated Press 60-stock average jumped $1.70 a share to $87.80. Each of the three major stock groupings, industrials, rails and utilities, made an excellent showing.

Pan American World Airways took top place on the most active list and gained 75 cents at $12 a share. Other airlines up 50 cents a share or more included American at $14, United at $24.37, Eastern $20.37, and Trans World $25.37.

Continental Motors, second most active share, added 87 cents at $9.50. Chrysler gained $1.25 at $70.75 and smaller advances were posted for General Motors, Packard, Studebaker, and Willys-Overland.

In the rail section, N. Y. Central stood out with a rise of $1 at $21.75 and Chesapeake & Ohio up as much at $35. Also up among the carriers were Santa Fe, Pennsylvania R. R. Nickel Plate, Missouri Pacific preferred and Southern Railway.

"The Authority on Authorities"

BEWARE PART SCORE

WHETHER or not to open the bidding in fourth-hand position can be decided by the question of who, if anybody, has a part score. If your own hand is about on the line between enough strength for a bid and not quite enough, it usually will pay you to open when your side has a partial. And it usually will not pay you to open with such cards if your opponents have a partial and your side hasn't. That is because the strength is so well divided around the table that probably no more than 2-No Trumps or three of a suit can be made by either side. The pair with the part-score therefore might be able to get a game out of the deal, whereas the scoreless side is very unlikely to.

South led his club A and, upon getting from North the lowest possible card, the 7, shifted to the diamond 9. The J and Q went on that, the A was scored and the 3 came back to the K. East thereafter lost a trick in hearts and two in spades, to be down two for a loss of 100 points.

East confessed during the post-mortem that he was sorry he had opened the bidding in view of his opponents having a part-score of 60, but prided himself on his being keen enough to make the 3-Hearts call. Otherwise, he said, they would have made their 3-Clubs and so would have had a game which East could have prevented by passing.

Then the players, since it was a close question, reconstructed the hands and went through the imaginary play at 3-Clubs. West said he would have led the spade 9. The plays which each thought he would make resulted in the defenders getting just one trick in each suit, leaving South with the nine tricks he needed.

All concerned then agreed that, with a hand about like East's, the bidding should be opened if your own side had a part score, not if the opponents did.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Answer: In theory, yes. For it "takes two" to maintain a real love relationship as surely as it does to "make a quarrel," and if either of the two ceases to love or to be kind, the other's love will die as soon as he or she has fully realized the situation. But in practice, few "breaks" are entirely one-sided. If someone ceases to love you—or if his or her love turns to hatred—it is because you no longer provide the satisfaction that the love was based on. And while this may not be "your fault," it was more or less your doing.

Answer: Any competent psychiatrist may be better than none if you have no choice about it. But since physician and patient are both human, psychiatric treatment undoubtedly works best when there is "rapport" between them, and many psychiatrists will not attempt to treat a person with whom they feel that a sympathetic understanding cannot be established. If the first psychiatrist you go to cannot help, you need not feel it is "all your fault"—you may be dealing with someone you resent or fear too strongly to be able to trust yourself to him.

Answer: It has been said that in view of the shortage of competent analysts, the treatment should be reserved for those who will be more worth while citizens if cured. But as Dr. Melitta Schmideberg reminds us in the Psychoanalytic Review, psychoanalyzing criminals is the only method by which we can even hope to understand crime, and can be of vital social value for that reason. A group of which Dr. Schmideberg is chairman—the Association for Psychiatric Treatment of Offenders—is beginning systematic work in this field.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS)

THE PASSING show:

Since it has become abundantly evident that U. S. college graduates find little attraction in government careers, the new Congress might do worse than dust off a pigeon-holed bill aimed at creating a team worthy of the schedule we have accepted.

The bill is HR1739 introduced nearly a year ago by Rep. Charles E. Bennett, Florida Democrat. It would build in or near the District of Columbia the "government service university" with courses designed "to provide the balanced and liberal education in the field of public administration, economics, political science, foreign relations and such other subjects as will fit the students to better carry out the duty incident to the U. S. government."

The Civil Service Commission would select students "of good moral character who score the highest grades in highest competitive examination," and determine how many should be admitted to the university and how many of those admitted would specialize in each field of study.

Students would get their food and lodging free of charge and be paid $780 a year, somewhat in the matter of West Point and Annapolis cadets. Each student would contract to serve in the government for a period of ten years following graduation. All citizens who have graduated from high school and are not older than 38 years would be eligible to apply for entrance.

A five-man board of trustees would be appointed by the President, with the approval of the Senate, and would receive compensation only when attending board meetings. The actual president of the university would be selected by the board for a ten year term at $25,000 a year.

At present, HR1739 is a good intention paving the roadbed of the House Committee on Education and Labor and, while it rusts a lot of talent is shunning government work—from newt conservation to diplomacy in the White House.

The National Safety Council's committee on winter driving made a long survey of the peril of driving on bad roads last winter and has now released its somewhat alarming finding.

The average car with standard tires needs 21 feet to come to a full stop from 20 miles an hour on dry concrete. But on glare ice it needs 209 feet! Even with winterized tires and special marked-snowtires it requires somewhere between 188 and 201 feet for such a stop. With steel chains it requires only 77 feet. Stopping distances average from 10 to 50 per cent more with synthetic rubber tires. Tires made of coal synthetic rubber last longer than natural rubber tires but skid or spin ten to 35 per cent more.

The council urges that winter drivers get the "feel" of the road by testing their brakes while driving slowly and when no other vehicles are near. It is urged that the driver "pump" his brake because jamming them may lock the wheel and throw the car into a spin. It was found also that cars equipped with hydraulic or fluid couplings never suffered from rear wheel locking.

The writer has an even simpler solution for winter driving danger: Sell the car and move to Florida.

"The American Legion" magazine is to be complimented for printing Irene Corbally Kuhn's devastating article "Why You Buy Books That Sell Communists" in its January issue. It deals with a subject that has needed articulate airing for a long time. The article gives the troubled reader the astonishing reason why a book such as Owen Lattimore's quickie defending himself would receive nicer treatment by critics than, say, a book like "Seeds of Treason" or any other book that reflects even remotely on the loyalty of prominent members of the left.

The Kuhn article exposes the racket of placing left-wing books in the hands of pro-Communist reviewers (whom she names enthusiastically) and the purpose of handing pro-American books to critics who obviously are little more than hatchet men for the Communist Party.

Every person who dips deeper into current litreature than the stratum of Kathleen Winsor will find this searching and courageous article a "must"—if I may borrow a word from the Daily Worker's assay of the works of Howard Fast.

Refugees Seen Explosive Factor In German Politics

By BRACK CURRY

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Western Germany's 8,000,000 German refugees from East Europe may soon become an international political problem.

American authorities say the refugees could hold the balance of power in the West German government if a single, national refugee party is formed.

No national refugee party has yet been organized. No one leader speaks for the refugees.

The German refugees have been herded out of Poland, Prussia, East Germany and Czechoslovakia by the Communist governments of Eastern Europe.

A strong position for the refugees in the German political arena "could have serious international political repercussions," says the U. S. High Commission.

It gives these reasons:

The question of Germany's borders with Poland and Czechoslovakia is closely linked with the refugee problem. The pressures for border changes "would become exceedingly great" once the refugees win a strong political position.

"Furthermore," says the high commission, "by that time the refugee psychology would undoubtedly be quite ripe for the acceptance of militant radical leadership of the extreme right if not of the extreme left."

The refugees big bid for political power will come in 1952 when the next national elections are held.

Numbering 25 per cent of the population, they already have grabbed considerable influence in the states of Bavaria, Schleswig-Holstein and Wuerttemberg-Baden.

The high commission says that sooner or later a strictly refugee party will be organized on a national basis—unless "this perplexing refugee problem can be solved."

Since the war, the high commission maintains, the refugee problem has not been adequately considered by either the native Germans or the world at large.

Homeless, hopeless and hungry, the refugees sooner or later will combine on a platform of common misery unless they can be integrated into West German life, the high commission warns.

"It must be borne in mind," it says, "that at present almost 100 per cent of these people are living on a standard far below that which they enjoyed in their former homes. About 750,000 of them are completely without work.

"Great numbers of them were upper level members of business and the professions and this enforced reduction to a lowly and menial station has been destructive of spirit and morale. Moreover, it has created a feeling of resentment which in many cases reaches to dangerous depths."

Of the refugees' desperate plight the high commission says:

"Certainly the political dangers are apparent. x x x It would hardly be daring to predict that if and when a single refugee party is formed on a national basis to represent all the thousands of small refugee community groups, that party would very likely gain enough votes in a national election to hold the balance of power in the federal government.

"It is a definite possibility that if a stricaly refugee party won a commanding position in the German political arena, it could have serious international political repercussions."

Market Scores Sharp Gain As Buying Wave Continues

People demanded stocks and were willing to pay as much as $5 a share or so over Tuesday's closing prices to get what they wanted. More than 100 issues sold at peak prices for 1950 or longer—in some cases many years.

Today's rise on average was the steepest since December 1946 although matched once since then in May 1948. The market value of all stocks listed on the exchange increased by more than $1,500,000,000.

Among the most popular groups were rails, steel, oils, airlines, motors and aircraft manufacturing stocks.

War-baby stocks figured prominently in the advance as well as many with a strong peace flavor.

Buying orders rolled into the exchange in a steady impressive flow. Sales piled up to 2,930,000 shares from 2,660,000 Tuesday. It was the thirteenth full session in a row in which volume has topped the 2,000,000-share mark.

The Associated Press 60-stock average jumped $1.70 a share to $87.80. Each of the three major stock groupings, industrials, rails and utilities, made an excellent showing.

Pan American World Airways took top place on the most active list and gained 75 cents at $12 a share. Other airlines up 50 cents a share or more included American at $14, United at $24.37, Eastern $20.37, and Trans World $25.37.

Continental Motors, second most active share, added 87 cents at $9.50. Chrysler gained $1.25 at $70.75 and smaller advances were posted for General Motors, Packard, Studebaker, and Willys-Overland.

In the rail section, N. Y. Central stood out with a rise of $1 at $21.75 and Chesapeake & Ohio up as much at $35. Also up among the carriers were Santa Fe, Pennsylvania R. R. Nickel Plate, Missouri Pacific preferred and Southern Railway.

Penicillin Injection Proves Fatal To Nurse

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 27 (AP) — A 23-year-old McKeesport nurse died yesterday after a self-administered injection of penicillin in an effort to relieve an allergy, Coroner William G. McClelland reported.

The coroner said Jeanne Beatty had complained of an intense itching, especially around her eyes, before taking the penicillin. She had been on duty in the children's ward.

"The Authority on Authorities"

BEWARE PART SCORE

WHETHER or not to open the bidding in fourth-hand position can be decided by the question of who, if anybody, has a part score. If your own hand is about on the line between enough strength for a bid and not quite enough, it usually will pay you to open when your side has a partial. And it usually will not pay you to open with such cards if your opponents have a partial and your side hasn't. That is because the strength is so well divided around the table that probably no more than 2-No Trumps or three of a suit can be made by either side. The pair with the part-score therefore might be able to get a game out of the deal, whereas the scoreless side is very unlikely to.

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	1 NT	Pass	Pass
2 ♣	2 ♥	3 ♣	3 ♥

South led his club A and, upon getting from North the lowest possible card, the 7, shifted to the diamond 9. The J and Q went on that, the A was scored and the 3 came back to the K. East thereafter lost a trick in hearts and two in spades, to be down two for a loss of 100 points.

East confessed during the post-mortem that he was sorry he had opened the bidding in view of his opponents having a part-score of 60, but prided himself on his being keen enough to make the 3-Hearts call. Otherwise, he said, they would have made their 3-Clubs and so would have had a game which East could have prevented by passing.

Then the players, since it was a close question, reconstructed the hands and went through the imaginary play at 3-Clubs. West said he would have led the spade 9. The plays which each thought he would make resulted in the defenders getting just one trick in each suit, leaving South with the nine tricks he needed.

All concerned then agreed that, with a hand about like East's, the bidding should be opened if your own side had a part score, not if the opponents did.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Can a loved one "kill" your love?

Answer: In theory, yes. For it "takes two" to maintain a real love relationship as surely as it does to "make a quarrel," and if either of the two ceases to love or to be kind, the other's love will die as soon as he or she has fully realized the situation. But in practice, few "breaks" are entirely one-sided. If someone ceases to love you—or if his or her love turns to hatred—it is because you no longer provide the satisfaction that the love was based on. And while this may not be "your fault," it was more or less your doing.

Is "any" psychiatrist the right one for you?

Answer: Any competent psychiatrist may be better than none if you have no choice about it. But since physician and patient are both human, psychiatric treatment undoubtedly works best when there is "rapport" between them, and many psychiatrists will not attempt to treat a person with whom they feel that a sympathetic understanding cannot be established. If the first psychiatrist you go to cannot help, you need not feel it is "all your fault"—you may be dealing with someone you resent or fear too strongly to be able to trust yourself to him.

Are criminals worth psychoanalyzing?

Answer: It has been said that in view of the shortage of competent analysts, the treatment should be reserved for those who will be more worth while citizens if cured. But as Dr. Melitta Schmideberg reminds us in the Psychoanalytic Review, psycho analyzing criminals is the on method by which we can eve hope to understand crime, and can be of vital social value for that reason. A group of which Dr. Schmideberg is chairman—the Association for Psychiatric Treatment of Offenders—is beginning systematic work in this field.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS)

THE PASSING show:

Since it has become abundantly evident that U. S. college graduates find little attraction in government careers, the new Congress might do worse than dust off a pigeon-holed bill aimed at creating a team worthy of the schedule we have accepted.

The bill is HR1739 introduced nearly a year ago by Rep. Charles E. Bennett, Florida Democrat. It would build in or near the District of Columbia the "government service university" with courses designed "to provide the balanced and liberal education in the field of public administration, economics, political science, foreign relations and such other subjects as will fit the students to better carry out the duty incident to the U. S. government."

The Civil Service Commission would select students "of good moral character who score the highest grades in highest competitive examination," and determine how many should be admitted to the university and how many of those admitted would specialize in each field of study.

Students would get their food and lodging free of charge and be paid $780 a year, somewhat in the matter of West Point and Annapolis cadets. Each student would contract to serve in the government for a period of ten years following graduation. All citizens who have graduated from high school and are not older than 38 years would be eligible to apply for entrance.

A five-man board of trustees would be appointed by the President, with the approval of the Senate, and would receive compensation only when attending board meetings. The actual president of the university would be selected by the board for a ten year term at $25,000 a year.

At present, HR1739 is a good intention paving the roadbed of the House Committee on Education and Labor and, while it rusts a lot of talent is shunning government work—from newt conservation to diplomacy in the White House.

The National Safety Council's committee on winter driving made a long survey of the peril of driving on bad roads last winter and has now released its somewhat alarming finding.

The average car with standard tires needs 21 feet to come to a full stop from 20 miles an hour on dry concrete. But on glare ice it needs 209 feet! Even with winterized tires and special marked-snowtires it requires somewhere between 188 and 201 feet for such a stop. With steel chains it requires only 77 feet. Stopping distances average from 10 to 50 per cent more with synthetic rubber tires. Tires made of coal synthetic rubber last longer than natural rubber tires but skid or spin ten to 35 per cent more.

The council urges that winter drivers get the "feel" of the road by testing their brakes while driving slowly and when no other vehicles are near. It is urged that the driver "pump" his brake because jamming them may lock the wheel and throw the car into a spin. It was found also that cars equipped with hydraulic or fluid couplings never suffered from rear wheel locking.

The writer has an even simpler solution for winter driving danger: Sell the car and move to Florida.

"The American Legion" magazine is to be complimented for printing Irene Corbally Kuhn's devastating article "Why You Buy Books That Sell Communists" in its January issue. It deals with a subject that has needed articulate airing for a long time. The article gives the troubled reader the astonishing reason why a book such as Owen Lattimore's quickie defending himself would receive nicer treatment by critics than, say, a book like "Seeds of Treason" or any other book that reflects even remotely on the loyalty of prominent members of the left.

The Kuhn article exposes the racket of placing left-wing books in the hands of pro-Communist reviewers (whom she names enthusiastically) and the purpose of handing pro-American books to critics who obviously are little more than hatchet men for the Communist Party.

Every person who dips deeper into current litreature than the stratum of Kathleen Winsor will find this searching and courageous article a "must"—if I may borrow a word from the Daily Worker's assay of the works of Howard Fast.

Refugees Seen Explosive Factor In German Politics

By BRACK CURRY

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Western Germany's 8,000,000 German refugees from East Europe may soon become an international political problem.

American authorities say the refugees could hold the balance of power in the West German government if a single, national refugee party is formed.

No national refugee party has yet been organized. No one leader speaks for the refugees.

The German refugees have been herded out of Poland, Prussia, East Germany and Czechoslovakia by the Communist governments of Eastern Europe.

A strong position for the refugees in the German political arena "could have serious international political repercussions," says the U. S. High Commission.

It gives these reasons:

The question of Germany's borders with Poland and Czechoslovakia is closely linked with the refugee problem. The pressures for border changes "would become exceedingly great" once the refugees win a strong political position.

"Furthermore," says the high commission, "by that time the refugee psychology would undoubtedly be quite ripe for the acceptance of militant radical leadership of the extreme right if not of the extreme left."

The refugees big bid for political power will come in 1952 when the next national elections are held.

Numbering 25 per cent of the population, they already have grabbed considerable influence in the states of Bavaria, Schleswig-Holstein and Wuerttemberg-Baden.

The high commission says that sooner or later a strictly refugee party will be organized on a national basis—unless "this perplexing refugee problem can be solved."

Since the war, the high commission maintains, the refugee problem has not been adequately considered by either the native Germans or the world at large.

Homeless, hopeless and hungry, the refugees sooner or later will combine on a platform of common misery unless they can be integrated into West German life, the high commission warns.

"It must be borne in mind," it says, "that at present almost 100 per cent of these people are living on a standard far below that which they enjoyed in their former homes. About 750,000 of them are completely without work.

"Great numbers of them were upper level members of business and the professions and this enforced reduction to a lowly and menial station has been destructive of spirit and morale. Moreover, it has created a feeling of resentment which in many cases reaches to dangerous depths."

Of the refugees' desperate plight the high commission says:

"Certainly the political dangers are apparent. x x x It would hardly be daring to predict that if and when a single refugee party is formed on a national basis to represent all the thousands of small refugee community groups, that party would very likely gain enough votes in a national election to hold the balance of power in the federal government.

"It is a definite possibility that if a stricaly refugee party won a commanding position in the German political arena, it could have serious international political repercussions."

Market Scores Sharp Gain As Buying Wave Continues

People demanded stocks and were willing to pay as much as $5 a share or so over Tuesday's closing prices to get what they wanted. More than 100 issues sold at peak prices for 1950 or longer—in some cases many years.

Today's rise on average was the steepest since December 1946 although matched once since then in May 1948. The market value of all stocks listed on the exchange increased by more than $1,500,000,000.

Among the most popular groups were rails, steel, oils, airlines, motors and aircraft manufacturing stocks.

War-baby stocks figured prominently in the advance as well as many with a strong peace flavor.

Buying orders rolled into the exchange in a steady impressive flow. Sales piled up to 2,930,000 shares from 2,660,000 Tuesday. It was the thirteenth full session in a row in which volume has topped the 2,000,000-share mark.

The Associated Press 60-stock average jumped $1.70 a share to $87.80. Each of the three major stock groupings, industrials, rails and utilities, made an excellent showing.

Pan American World Airways took top place on the most active list and gained 75 cents at $12 a share. Other airlines up 50 cents a share or more included American at $14, United at $24.37, Eastern $20.37, and Trans World $25.37.

Continental Motors, second most active share, added 87 cents at $9.50. Chrysler gained $1.25 at $70.75 and smaller advances were posted for General Motors, Packard, Studebaker, and Willys-Overland.

In the rail section, N. Y. Central stood out with a rise of $1 at $21.75 and Chesapeake & Ohio up as much at $35. Also up among the carriers were Santa Fe, Pennsylvania R. R. Nickel Plate, Missouri Pacific preferred and Southern Railway.

"The Authority on Authorities"

BEWARE PART SCORE

WHETHER or not to open the bidding in fourth-hand position can be decided by the question of who, if anybody, has a part score. If your own hand is about on the line between enough strength for a bid and not quite enough, it usually will pay you to open when your side has a partial. And it usually will not pay you to open with such cards if your opponents have a partial and your side hasn't. That is because the strength is so well divided around the table that probably no more than 2-No Trumps or three of a suit can be made by either side. The pair with the part-score therefore might be able to get a game out of the deal, whereas the scoreless side is very unlikely to.

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	1 NT	Pass	Pass
2 ♣	2 ♥	3 ♣	3 ♥

South led his club A and, upon getting from North the lowest possible card, the 7, shifted to the diamond 9. The J and Q went on that, the A was scored and the 3 came back to the K. East thereafter lost a trick in hearts and two in spades, to be down two for a loss of 100 points.

East confessed during the post-mortem that he was sorry he had opened the bidding in view of his opponents having a part-score of 60, but prided himself on his being keen enough to make the 3-Hearts call. Otherwise, he said, they would have made their 3-Clubs and so would have had a game which East could have prevented by passing.

Then the players, since it was a close question, reconstructed the hands and went through the imaginary play at 3-Clubs. West said he would have led the spade 9. The plays which each thought he would make resulted in the defenders getting just one trick in each suit, leaving South with the nine tricks he needed.

All concerned then agreed that, with a hand about like East's, the bidding should be opened if your own side had a part score, not if the opponents did.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Can a loved one "kill" your love?

Answer: In theory, yes. For it "takes two" to maintain a real love relationship as surely as it does to "make a quarrel," and if either of the two ceases to love or to be kind, the other's love will die as soon as he or she has fully realized the situation. But in practice, few "breaks" are entirely one-sided. If someone ceases to love you—or if his or her love turns to hatred—it is because you no longer provide the satisfaction that the love was based on. And while this may not be "your fault," it was more or less your doing.

Is "any" psychiatrist the right one for you?

Answer: Any competent psychiatrist may be better than none if you have no choice about it. But since physician and patient are both human, psychiatric treatment undoubtedly works best when there is "rapport" between them, and many psychiatrists will not attempt to treat a person with whom they feel that a sympathetic understanding cannot be established. If the first psychiatrist you go to cannot help, you need not feel it is "all your fault"—you may be dealing with someone you resent or fear too strongly to be able to trust yourself to him.

Are criminals worth psychoanalyzing?

Answer: It has been said that in view of the shortage of competent analysts, the treatment should be reserved for those who will be more worth while citizens if cured. But as Dr. Melitta Schmideberg reminds us in the Psychoanalytic Review, psycho analyzing criminals is the on method by which we can eve hope to understand crime, and can be of vital social value for that reason. A group of which Dr. Schmideberg is chairman—the Association for Psychiatric Treatment of Offenders—is beginning systematic work in this field.

Spencer To Head NPA Rubber Unit

Kelly Official Due To Fill Defense Post

Announcement Is Expected Soon

Leland E. Spencer, this city, is to become director of the Rubber Division of the National Production Authority soon, officials said yesterday in Washington.

The appointment of the vice president of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company to the post has not been formally made but is expected shortly. The appointment will be announced by NPA Administrator William H. Harrison, according to the Associated Press.

Thus far, NPA's Rubber Division has been supervised by acting directors.

Spencer, who makes his home at 119 North Allegany Street, has been vice president of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company here since September, 1949.

Aided Gen. Clay

Prior to coming to Cumberland, he had directed commerce and industry in the United States and British occupation zones in Germany.

Spencer was manager of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company's Topeka, Kan., factory at the time he was given a leave of absence to assume the international role following World War II.

Spencer's European position was described as "the tremendous job of leading the economic rehabilitation of Bizonia, Germany, for nearly two years."

At first Spencer was given only a year's leave of absence but at the request of Gen. Lucius D. Clay, the administrator, who expressed keen desire to return to America, agreed to spend a second 12 months in the German position.

At the time of his arrival in the British and U. S. zones the industrial output based on a 1936 normal of 100 was 36. After his term there the industrial capacity of the zone was 89 and rising rapidly.

Spencer, a member of the Goodyear organization for the past 24 years, started with the company in its Akron plant, serving in production control statistics and forecasting departments until 1939.

Deputy NPA Head

He was then made manager of merchandise planning. In 1945 he was appointed manager of the Topeka plant, newest and most modern tire factory in the nation. That appointment followed a three-year tour of duty with the government during the war years. There he served as deputy director of the Rubber division of the War Production Board working in Washington.

Spencer is a native of Meritt, N. C., and was a one-time profesional baseball player, holding the centerfield position on several North Carolina and Ohio professional teams.

The new NPA official is married and the father of four children. They are:

Marvin Lee, 19; Joyce Ann, 17; Larry Evans, 12 and Thomas McKinley, 6.

Social Security Applications Up 66 Per Cent

Area Office Reports 1,350 During 1950

A 66 per cent increase in applications for Social Security benefits has been recorded during calendar year 1950 by the Cumberland field office, according to an announcement yesterday.

In 1950 there have been 1,350 applications for Social Security benefits, compared with 810 processed during the calendar year 1949.

Presently, the office is paying $110,000 monthly in benefit payments to beneficiaries in this area, which includes seven counties. They are Allegany and Garrett counties in Maryland and Mineral, Hampshire, Hardy, Grant and Pendleton counties in West Virginia.

Before the amendments of September, 1950, total monthly benefits amounted to $50,000. At that time 3,188 persons were being paid and since September the number has increased to 4,000.

Among the some 800 additional persons getting benefits under the liberalized law are 500 retired workers and 300 in a group which includes wives, widows, minor children and dependent parents.

Virtually 60 per cent of the field office's work load in this area is concentrated in Allegany county. For example, claims processed through the last six months total 840, including 500 residents of Allegany county.

The six-months' breakdown in Allegany county:

Retired workers, 306; wives of retired workers, 75; widows over 65, 15; widows under 65 with minor children, 21; dependent children, 25; lump sum death payments, 56; and two dependent parents over 65.

Jaycees Give Toys For Fire Victims

Dozens of toys on hand late yesterday afternoon with more still coming. Some clothing and cash were included.

The Jaycee drive began as a result of a wish that the children made homeless in the blaze might not be deprived of the Christmas fun other children of the community are enjoying.

Tederick Urges Ban On Parking Of Large Trucks

Light Lack Blamed For Several Mishaps

Water Commissioner George H. Tederick believes that Cumberland police should prohibit the parking of large unlighted trucks on much-traveled streets at night.

The commissioner made his views known when he spoke at Tuesday night's Council meeting at City Hall. He called attention to the fact that a number of persons have been injured this month when automobiles struck unlighted trucks on busy streets, particularly Henderson Avenue.

Tederick's remarks brought from Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn an assertion that a truck on Henderson Avenue which was struck by a passing motorist over the weekend was equipped with red reflector buttons which serve as a signal to approaching motorists.

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long came to the Police Department's defense by stating that "if a problem exists Chief Flynn will follow through and see that it is corrected."

After a weekend accident on Henderson Avenue, city police reported that the crash occurred because poor street lights prevented the approaching motorist from seeing the parked truck.

Apartment House Gutted By Blaze

Fire last night gutted a four-apartment frame house in Meyersdale, Pa., as firemen battled the blaze for almost four hours in 4 below zero weather.

A former hotel that had been converted into apartments, the building was a total loss last night, although all the occupants reportedly escaped the blaze without injury.

Mrs. Leo Baer, who resides directly across the street from the halocaust on Myers Avenue, said last night that only a shell remained of the building. The fire apparently began about 6 p.m., Mrs. Baer related, and firemen had difficulty fighting the blaze because of the intense cold which froze up several water plugs near the scene.

Several articles of clothing and a few pieces of furniture were all that were saved by the owner of the premises, Mrs. Lucy Canonico, who also resided in the house with her daughter and son-in-law. Three other families and several roomers were also living in the apartment house, Mrs. Baer stated.

Robert Boger, Meyersdale newspaperman, said the fire apparently started from small bubbling lights on a Christmas tree and the blaze was very fierce for about an hour and a half before the Meyersdale Volunteer Fire Company, which battled the flames, could bring the fire under control.

Fourteen people were reported living in the home, which formerly was the old Bowser Hotel. Firemen had the fire out at 11 o'clock last night.

Former Frostburg Man To Head Office At Guam

John F. Narey and his wife and daughter, Sharon, will leave for their future home at Guam January 16, traveling by automobile to San Francisco, Calif. where they will board a vessel for Pearl Harbor in the Hawaiian Islands.

There, Narey will receive a training course in the Wage and Classification office before leaving February 12 for Guam, where the family is scheduled to arrive February 23.

A former student at Beall High School, Narey left Frostburg in 1940 and acquired his first job in Washington as a filling station attendent. He later studied at Southeastern University and Ben Franklin University in Washington, then worked for both the Army and Navy Departments.

He enlisted in the Army in 1942 and served abroad with the U. S. Eighth Air Force as a gunner in the European Theatre. Altogether he was credited with 33 missions while in the armed services.

Narey was discharged in 1945 and, upon returning to the United States, accepted a position with the War Production Board. He resigned this job in 1947 and acquired his present position in the Wage and Classification Division of the Navy Department. When the Navy Department decided to open a new branch office on Guam, Narey was picked to head the organization.

Mrs. Narey is the former Miss Gerrie Smith of Washington. Their daughter Sharon is three and a half years old.

At present the Narey family is visiting John's mother, Mrs. Veronica Narey, 22 Frost Avenue, Frostburg. Before leaving for their trip abroad the Narey's plan to visit many of ther friends and neighbors and renew old acquaintances, including another former Frostburg family, Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson, Harrisburg, Pa.

Robert D. Judy Is Thrown From Burning Auto

Celanese Employes Receive Minor Injuries

He is Robert D. Judy, 27, of 400 Maryland Avenue, who was admitted to Allegany Hospital yesterday at about 4 p.m. for X-rays.

Officer Louis D. Downey, who investigated the mishap, said the cause of the fire was unknown but that it might have been caused by a spray of gasoline from the engine.

Although Judy was not burned, Downey said he was thrown from the car, apparently before it plunged over an embankment and struck a tree. The officer estimated that the automobile finally came to a stop about 225 feet from the road.

The accident occurred at 3:15 p. m., Downey said, and reported that Judy apparently was not going fast at the time because the car did not go farther than one would have gone had it been pushed from a standstill over the embankment.

In its tumble over the bank, the car turned over at least once, Downey said.

East Side Fire Company, called to the scene, reported the car was a total loss.

Carl Jonosha, 50, of Westernport, received a possible fractured back when he fell from a ladder yesterday afternoon while working at the Amcelle plant of the Celanese Corporation of America.

The mishap occurred at about 2:30 p.m. in the electrical department of the plant. He was admitted to Memorial Hospital.

Daniel Faulkner, 47, Cresaptown, also a Celanese employe received a laceration near his left eye when he was struck by a steel rod. He was closing a vapor valve and slipped, falling to the floor when the accident occurred.

He was admitted to Memorial Hospital.

Three area men enlisted at the local Army recruiting station, M-Sgt. Biehn reported yesterday.

Carder and Hershberger will be sent for Fort Meade, for processing while Albright will go to Lackland Air Base, San Antonio, Texas.

Roads Reported Clear For Travel, Cold Continues

4 Below At Deal; Garrett Has Ice

Extremely cold temperatures continued last night in Cumberland and vicinity but State Roads Commission and State Police reported highways and roads both east and west clear for travel with no icy conditions except in Garrett County.

R. E. L. Putman, engineer for the State Roads Commission, reported last night that road crews had cleared up the majority of the roads surrounding Cumberland but that a glaze of ice still covered highways in Garrett County. Several crews are still cindering and touching up bad spots in Garrett, Putman said.

State Police reported the mountains east of the city as travelable

The Western Maryland Railway reported the lowest temperature for the night at Deal, Pa., where the thermometer registered four below. Other cold spots were Thomas, W. Va., with a reading of zero and Rockwood, Pa., also zero.

The B. and O. reported rising mercury with Altamont registering 14 above. At Terra Alta, W. Va., a report of 12 above was received while Oakland and Deer Park each had a low reading of zero.

West Virginia State Police at Romney reported roads on Route 50 generally were icy but travelable with caution. The mountains are particularly bad in this area. The thermometer registered 10 above in Romney, they stated.

As the wintry blasts hit the city the thermometer dropped to 2 degrees above zero, the lowest mark registered this season.

B. and O. trains which had been slowed down by snow and bad weather west of Cumberland, arriving one or two hours late, were back on schedule last night.

The cold is slated to continue today with only slightly increasing temperatures and cloudiness Threats of snow flurries were predicted in the western part of the state.

Children Ruled Out For Benefits

Noting that many Allegany county farmers depend upon family labor on their farms, County Agent Ralph F. McHenry said yesterday that latest information concerning Social Security benefits indicates that minor children of the farm operator cannot get Social Security credits for work done on the farm when the new farm regulations become effective New Year's Day.

Beginning with the first day of 1951, provisions of Old Age and Survivors Insurance will be extended to regular farm workers under terms of a recent amendment to Social Security provisions.

"For purposes of this act a farm worker is one who works in planting, cultivating or harvesting any farm crop; raising or tending livestock, bees, or fur-bearing animals on a farm; preparing, processing or delivering crops or livestock to storage or to market, a cook or household worker on a farm or any worker of a general nature on a farm," McHenry explained.

"However, husbands, wives, parents or children under 21 of the farm operator cannot get Social Security credit for work done on the farm," the agent concluded.

Weather

B-r-r-r! It was cold yesterday! Mr. Mercury dropped right down to 2 degrees above zero for the coldest snap recorded here this year. And the best the thermometer could struggle up to was 23 above for the high for the day. At 9 o'clock last night the official reading was 10. City degree meters registered 25 above high and 12 above low and the weather man said more cloudiness but not quite so cold today.

Deer Skins Urgently Needed By Army For Arctic Mittens

An emergency appeal to hunters and state game wardens throughout the country for deer skins to meet a vital need for Arctic and trigger-finger mittens has been issued by the U. S. Army, which warned that the combat effectiveness of our troops was menaced by the shortage of deer skins.

The appeal, issued through the New York headquarters of the Tanners' Council of America, called on hunters to turn over deer, including those now in deep freezes or cold storage, to local butchers or game wardens, who were asked to channel the skins to the nearest tanners.

Extensive research by the Army Quartermaster Corps has found that gloves made from native deerskin give combat troops the protection and freedom of action necessary for cold-weather combat.

Irving R. Glass, executive vice-president of the Tanners' Council, underscored the critical emergency in an appeal to state legislatures to reconvene, if necessary, to authorize an additional deer hunting season.

"It is obvious," Glass said, "that troops now engaged in combat under sub-freezing temperatures will be severely handicapped if they are not properly equipped."

Glass suggested that funds derived from the sale of skins collected by game wardens might be earmarked for a special fund to be used in the future to conserve and protect deer and to stimulate an increase in the deer population.

Today's Youth Is Smarter Than Dad Was, Gunter Says

Today's youths are a lot smarter than 'teen agers were 50 years ago, William A. Gunter, local attorney, declared at the annual Christmas party for newspaperboys and their parents in Hagerstown.

It is no wonder, he said, that today's youth is better informed, since he has the advantages of better educational facilities, the newspapers, automobiles, radio and television.

Baylor was allowed five full minutes to give the date of birth of Cardinal Speelman, Governor Thomas E. Dewey, Lawrence Tibbett, Thomas E. Edison and Alfred E. Smith. He couldn't make the grade.

Gunter selected a newsboy and told him he would allow him just five seconds to tell what common occupation the famous men had at his age.

Gunter advocated a reduction in the voting age from the present 21 years in view of the fact that today's 'teen agers are better informed than they were 50 years ago and may be called upon for military service in defense of democracy before they become 21.

Kelly Official Due To Fill Defense Post

Announcement Is Expected Soon

Leland E. Spencer, this city, is to become director of the Rubber Division of the National Production Authority soon, officials said yesterday in Washington.

The appointment of the vice president of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company to the post has not been formally made but is expected shortly. The appointment will be announced by NPA Administrator William H. Harrison, according to the Associated Press.

Thus far, NPA's Rubber Division has been supervised by acting directors.

Spencer, who makes his home at 119 North Allegany Street, has been vice president of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company here since September, 1949.

Aided Gen. Clay

Prior to coming to Cumberland, he had directed commerce and industry in the United States and British occupation zones in Germany.

Spencer was manager of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company's Topeka, Kan., factory at the time he was given a leave of absence to assume the international role following World War II.

Spencer's European position was described as "the tremendous job of leading the economic rehabilitation of Bizonia, Germany, for nearly two years."

At first Spencer was given only a year's leave of absence but at the request of Gen. Lucius D. Clay, the administrator, who expressed keen desire to return to America, agreed to spend a second 12 months in the German position.

At the time of his arrival in the British and U. S. zones the industrial output based on a 1936 normal of 100 was 36. After his term there the industrial capacity of the zone was 89 and rising rapidly.

Spencer, a member of the Goodyear organization for the past 24 years, started with the company in its Akron plant, serving in production control statistics and forecasting departments until 1939.

Deputy NPA Head

He was then made manager of merchandise planning. In 1945 he was appointed manager of the Topeka plant, newest and most modern tire factory in the nation. That appointment followed a three-year tour of duty with the government during the war years. There he served as deputy director of the Rubber division of the War Production Board working in Washington.

Spencer is a native of Meritt, N. C., and was a one-time profesisonal baseball player, holding the centerfield position on several North Carolina and Ohio professional teams.

The new NPA official is married and the father of four children. They are:

Tederick Urges Ban On Parking Of Large Trucks

Light Lack Blamed For Several Mishaps

Water Commissioner George H. Tederick believes that Cumberland police should prohibit the parking of large unlighted trucks on much-traveled streets at night.

The commissioner made his views known when he spoke at Tuesday night's Council meeting at City Hall. He called attention to the fact that a number of persons have been injured this month when automobiles struck unlighted trucks on busy streets, particularly Henderson Avenue.

Tederick's remarks brought from Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn an assertion that a truck on Henderson Avenue which was struck by a passing motorist over the weekend was equipped with red reflector buttons which serve as a signal to approaching motorists.

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long came to the Police Department's defense by stating that "if a problem exists Chief Flynn will follow through and see that it is corrected."

After a weekend accident on Henderson Avenue, city police reported that the crash occurred because poor street lights prevented the approaching motorist from seeing the parked truck.

Apartment House Gutted By Blaze

Fire last night gutted a four-apartment frame house in Meyersdale, Pa., as firemen battled the blaze for almost four hours in 4 below zero weather.

A former hotel that had been converted into apartments, the building was a total loss last night, although all the occupants reportedly escaped the blaze without injury.

Mrs. Leo Baer, who resides directly across the street from the halocaust on Myers Avenue, said last night that only a shell remained of the building. The fire apparently began about 6 p.m., Mrs. Baer related, and firemen had difficulty fighting the blaze because of the intense cold which froze up several water plugs near the scene.

Several articles of clothing and a few pieces of furniture were all that were saved by the owner of the premises, Mrs. Lucy Canonico, who also resided in the house with her daughter and son-in-law. Three other families and several roomers were also living in the apartment house, Mrs. Baer stated.

Robert Boger, Meyersdale newspaperman, said the fire apparently started from small bubbling lights on a Christmas tree and the blaze was very fierce for about an hour and a half before the Meyersdale Volunteer Fire Company, which battled the flames, could bring the fire under control.

Fourteen people were reported living in the home, which formerly was the old Bowser Hotel. Firemen had the fire out at 11 o'clock last night.

Robert D. Judy Is Thrown From Burning Auto

Celanese Employes Receive Minor Injuries

A local man was injured and his car completely destroyed by fire yesterday in a mishap on Fort Avenue between Rizer and Pine Streets.

He is Robert D. Judy, 27, of 400 Maryland Avenue, who was admitted to Allegany Hospital yesterday at about 4 p.m. for X-rays.

Officer Louis D. Downey, who investigated the mishap, said the cause of the fire was unknown but that it might have been caused by a spray of gasoline from the engine.

Although Judy was not burned, Downey said he was thrown from the car, apparently before it plunged over an embankment and struck a tree. The officer estimated that the automobile finally came to a stop about 225 feet from the road.

The accident occurred at 3:15 p. m., Downey said, and reported that Judy apparently was not going fast at the time because the car did not go farther than one would have gone had it been pushed from a standstill over the embankment.

In its tumble over the bank, the car turned over at least once, Downey said.

East Side Fire Company, called to the scene, reported the car was a total loss.

Carl Jonosha, 50, of Westernport, received a possible fractured back when he fell from a ladder yesterday afternoon while working at the Amcelle plant of the Celanese Corporation of America.

The mishap occurred at about 2:30 p.m. in the electrical department of the plant. He was admitted to Memorial Hospital.

Daniel Faulkner, 47, Cresaptown, also a Celanese employe received a laceration near his left eye when he was struck by a steel rod. He was closing a vapor valve and slipped, falling to the floor when the accident occurred.

He was admitted to Memorial Hospital.

Roads Reported Clear For Travel, Cold Continues

4 Below At Deal; Garrett Has Ice

Extremely cold temperatures continued last night in Cumberland and vicinity but State Roads Commission and State Police reported highways and roads both east and west clear for travel with no icy conditions except in Garrett County.

R. E. L. Putman, engineer for the State Roads Commission, reported last night that road crews had cleared up the majority of the roads surrounding Cumberland but that a glaze of ice still covered highways in Garrett County. Several crews are still cindering and touching up bad spots in Garrett, Putman said.

State Police reported the mountains east of the city as travelable

The Western Maryland Railway reported the lowest temperature for the night at Deal, Pa., where the thermometer registered four below. Other cold spots were Thomas, W. Va., with a reading of zero and Rockwood, Pa., also zero.

West Virginia State Police at Romney reported roads on Route 50 generally were icy but travelable with caution. The mountains are particularly bad in this area. The thermometer registered 10 above in Romney, they stated.

As the wintry blasts hit the city the thermometer dropped to 2 degrees above zero, the lowest mark registered this season.

B. and O. trains which had been slowed down by snow and bad weather west of Cumberland, arriving one or two hours late, were back on schedule last night.

The cold is slated to continue today with only slightly increasing temperatures and cloudiness Threats of snow flurries were predicted in the western part of the state.

Children Ruled Out For Benefits

Noting that many Allegany county farmers depend upon family labor on their farms, County Agent Ralph F. McHenry said yesterday that latest information concerning Social Security benefits indicates that minor children of the farm operator cannot get Social Security credits for work done on the farm when the new farm regulations become effective New Year's Day.

Beginning with the first day of 1951, provisions of Old Age and Survivors Insurance will be extended to regular farm workers under terms of a recent amendment to Social Security provisions.

"For purposes of this act a farm worker is one who works in planting, cultivating or harvesting any farm crop; raising or tending livestock, bees, or fur-bearing animals on a farm; preparing, processing or delivering crops or livestock to storage or to market, a cook or household worker on a farm or any worker of a general nature on a farm," McHenry explained.

"However, husbands, wives, parents or children under 21 of the farm operator cannot get Social Security credit for work done on the farm," the agent concluded.

Weather

Tederick Urges Ban On Parking Of Large Trucks

Light Lack Blamed For Several Mishaps

Water Commissioner George H. Tederick believes that Cumberland police should prohibit the parking of large unlighted trucks on much-traveled streets at night.

The commissioner made his views known when he spoke at Tuesday night's Council meeting at City Hall. He called attention to the fact that a number of persons have been injured this month when automobiles struck unlighted trucks on busy streets, particularly Henderson Avenue.

Tederick's remarks brought from Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn an assertion that a truck on Henderson Avenue which was struck by a passing motorist over the weekend was equipped with red reflector buttons which serve as a signal to approaching motorists.

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long came to the Police Department's defense by stating that "if a problem exists Chief Flynn will follow through and see that it is corrected."

After a weekend accident on Henderson Avenue, city police reported that the crash occurred because poor street lights prevented the approaching motorist from seeing the parked truck.

Apartment House Gutted By Blaze

Fire last night gutted a four-apartment frame house in Meyersdale, Pa., as firemen battled the blaze for almost four hours in 4 below zero weather.

A former hotel that had been converted into apartments, the building was a total loss last night, although all the occupants reportedly escaped the blaze without injury.

Mrs. Leo Baer, who resides directly across the street from the halocaust on Myers Avenue, said last night that only a shell remained of the building. The fire apparently began about 6 p.m., Mrs. Baer related, and firemen had difficulty fighting the blaze because of the intense cold which froze up several water plugs near the scene.

Several articles of clothing and a few pieces of furniture were all that were saved by the owner of the premises, Mrs. Lucy Canonico, who also resided in the house with her daughter and son-in-law. Three other families and several roomers were also living in the apartment house, Mrs. Baer stated.

Robert Boger, Meyersdale newspaperman, said the fire apparently started from small bubbling lights on a Christmas tree and the blaze was very fierce for about an hour and a half before the Meyersdale Volunteer Fire Company, which battled the flames, could bring the fire under control.

Fourteen people were reported living in the home, which formerly was the old Bowser Hotel. Firemen had the fire out at 11 o'clock last night.

Robert D. Judy Is Thrown From Burning Auto

Celanese Employes Receive Minor Injuries

A local man was injured and his car completely destroyed by fire yesterday in a mishap on Fort Avenue between Rizer and Pine Streets.

He is Robert D. Judy, 27, of 400 Maryland Avenue, who was admitted to Allegany Hospital yesterday at about 4 p.m. for X-rays.

Officer Louis D. Downey, who investigated the mishap, said the cause of the fire was unknown but that it might have been caused by a spray of gasoline from the engine.

Although Judy was not burned, Downey said he was thrown from the car, apparently before it plunged over an embankment and struck a tree. The officer estimated that the automobile finally came to a stop about 225 feet from the road.

The accident occurred at 3:15 p. m., Downey said, and reported that Judy apparently was not going fast at the time because the car did not go farther than one would have gone had it been pushed from a standstill over the embankment.

In its tumble over the bank, the car turned over at least once, Downey said.

East Side Fire Company, called to the scene, reported the car was a total loss.

Carl Jonosha, 50, of Westernport, received a possible fractured back when he fell from a ladder yesterday afternoon while working at the Amcelle plant of the Celanese Corporation of America.

The mishap occurred at about 2:30 p.m. in the electrical department of the plant. He was admitted to Memorial Hospital.

Daniel Faulkner, 47, Cresaptown, also a Celanese employe received a laceration near his left eye when he was struck by a steel rod. He was closing a vapor valve and slipped, falling to the floor when the accident occurred.

He was admitted to Memorial Hospital.

Roads Reported Clear For Travel, Cold Continues

4 Below At Deal; Garrett Has Ice

Extremely cold temperatures continued last night in Cumberland and vicinity but State Roads Commission and State Police reported highways and roads both east and west clear for travel with no icy conditions except in Garrett County.

R. E. L. Putman, engineer for the State Roads Commission, reported last night that road crews had cleared up the majority of the roads surrounding Cumberland but that a glaze of ice still covered highways in Garrett County. Several crews are still cindering and touching up bad spots in Garrett, Putman said.

State Police reported the mountains east of the city as travelable

As the wintry blasts hit the city the thermometer dropped to 2 degrees above zero, the lowest mark registered this season.

B. and O. trains which had been slowed down by snow and bad weather west of Cumberland, arriving one or two hours late, were back on schedule last night.

The cold is slated to continue today with only slightly increasing temperatures and cloudiness Threats of snow flurries were predicted in the western part of the state.

Children Ruled Out For Benefits

Noting that many Allegany county farmers depend upon family labor on their farms, County Agent Ralph F. McHenry said yesterday that latest information concerning Social Security benefits indicates that minor children of the farm operator cannot get Social Security credits for work done on the farm when the new farm regulations become effective New Year's Day.

Beginning with the first day of 1951, provisions of Old Age and Survivors Insurance will be extended to regular farm workers under terms of a recent amendment to Social Security provisions.

"For purposes of this act a farm worker is one who works in planting, cultivating or harvesting any farm crop; raising or tending livestock, bees, or fur-bearing animals on a farm; preparing, processing or delivering crops or livestock to storage or to market, a cook or household worker on a farm or any worker of a general nature on a farm," McHenry explained.

"However, husbands, wives, parents or children under 21 of the farm operator cannot get Social Security credit for work done on the farm," the agent concluded.

Weather

Deer Skins Urgently Needed By Army For Arctic Mittens

An emergency appeal to hunters and state game wardens throughout the country for deer skins to meet a vital need for Arctic and trigger-finger mittens has been issued by the U. S. Army, which warned that the combat effectiveness of our troops was menaced by the shortage of deer skins.

The appeal, issued through the New York headquarters of the Tanners' Council of America, called on hunters to turn over deer, including those now in deep freezes or cold storage, to local butchers or game wardens, who were asked to channel the skins to the nearest tanners.

Extensive research by the Army Quartermaster Corps has found that gloves made from native deerskin give combat troops the protection and freedom of action necessary for cold-weather combat.

Irving R. Glass, executive vice-president of the Tanners' Council, underscored the critical emergency in an appeal to state legislatures to reconvene, if necessary, to authorize an additional deer hunting season.

"It is obvious," Glass said, "that troops now engaged in combat under sub-freezing temperatures will be severely handicapped if they are not properly equipped."

Glass suggested that funds derived from the sale of skins collected by game wardens might be earmarked for a special fund to be used in the future to conserve and protect deer and to stimulate an increase in the deer population.

Today's Youth Is Smarter Than Dad Was, Gunter Says

Today's youths are a lot smarter than 'teen agers were 50 years ago, William A. Gunter, local attorney, declared at the annual Christmas party for newspaperboys and their parents in Hagerstown.

Gunter was principal speaker at the annual event sponsored by the Morning Herald and the Daily Mail of that city.

It is no wonder, he said, that today's youth is better informed, since he has the advantages of better educational facilities, the newspapers, automobiles, radio and television.

Gunter proved his point when he pitted a 14-year-old newsboy against C. Neil Baylor, general manager of the Herald-Mail in a quiz contest.

Baylor was allowed five full minutes to give the date of birth of Cardinal Speelman, Governor Thomas E. Dewey, Lawrence Tibbett, Thomas E. Edison and Alfred E. Smith. He couldn't make the grade.

Gunter selected a newsboy and told him he would allow him just five seconds to tell what common occupation the famous men had at his age.

Gunter advocated a reduction in the voting age from the present 21 years in view of the fact that today's 'teen agers are better informed than they were 50 years ago and may be called upon for military service in defense of democracy before they become 21.
